A national campaign to "Buy Now" and "Buy Under the Blue Eagle" to be launched Sept. 20 was announced yesterday by Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, as the next step in the recovery program. He addressed the Illinois State Federation of Labor in Labor day celebration—its 52d anniversary—in the court of the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress, and emphasized the development of latent buying power as the next essential.

While pointing out that increased prices will follow higher wages and shorter hours in the NRA codes, Administrator Johnson declared one job will be to see that prices do not rise faster than costs, and that, so far as consumer protection goes, President Roosevelt will not see the recovery plan frustrated by "runaway prices and profiteering."

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, presided and the assemblage filled the open court.

Prudence, Not Patriotism.

"We shall begin a nation-wide campaign," said Administrator Johnson "to try to convince the people of the need to buy freely and to begin at once—not as a patriotic duty, but as a prudent use of money.

"You cannot do what we are doing on every economic front without increasing prices. In agriculture we are working to abolish the surplus and to increase price even to the extent of taxing to increase it.

"In every line of industry and trade these higher wages are operating to increase production costs. In finance and fiscal policy the slightest move towards inflation might send prices skyrocketing overnight. Every force in the country is working towards increased prices along with increased wages and employment. In other words, things are going to be more valuable than money. At such a time free buying is the part of prudence.

Sees Need for Everything.

"There is an enormous latent buying power. Alongside of it is an even more enormous latent demand for things. Our clothes are shabby, our automobiles rattle, our houses are unpainted and unrepaired. We need nearly everything. We were afraid to buy because prices have steadily fallen and we were afraid of losing our jobs. But it is not the thing to do when everything is going the other way.

"Lower prices—unemployment—save. Higher prices—reëmployment—spend. That is good sense and a necessary part of this program."

Two troubles the recovery administration has run into were described by Mr. Johnson as, first, the failure of some employers to live up to their agreements under the Blue Eagle, and second, misunderstanding on the codes between employers and workers, with some resultant strikes and lockouts. For the next fortnight, he said, efforts will be concentrated upon explaining the obligations under the Blue Eagle in the case of complaints.

Relies on Public Opinion.

"Our chief reliance is in the force of public opinion," he said. "We know that to take away the Blue Eagle is a more severe penalty than any puny fine. It is, we think, enough, but if it should prove not enough, there are plenty of penalties in the law.

"In stating this plan we have been accused of inciting a boycott. Of course, what people are doing is not a boycott. No willing employer who complies with this great national purpose can live in competition with a chiseler who does not. The whole idea is based on unanimous agreement and action. It is for the benefit of the American people. It is their plan or it is nothing.

"It cannot last a month if a few unwilling or cheating employers are permitted [by the advantage of lower costs] to ruin the business of their willing and honest competitors.

Says Workers Return in Swarms.

"There are faults and errors, but the fact remains that practically every employer in the country is under the Blue Eagle, that people have gone back to work in vast swarms, and that those who had work are get-

FRESH REVOLT PERIL TO CUBA; SEIZE THE army

Cespedes' New Deal Attacked.

BULLETIN.

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 5 (Tuesday.)—(Special.)—The army has just revolted against its own officers throughout Cuba, arresting officers inside their homes and placing machine guns to prevent their escape. They demand that all officers from lieutenants up resign immediately.

The new Cespedes government is in some peril of an overthrow by the radical elements.

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Sergeants, corporals, and soldiers of the Cuban army, headed by Sergt. Batista, noncommissioned officers and men of the navy took command of military and naval forces tonight, displacing all officers.

Sergt. Batista told the Associated Press that "sergeants, corporals, and soldiers of the navy and army have taken over command."

"We will not relinquish control," he said, "until a truly revolutionary government has been established in Cuba. Then the command will be given back to the officers.

Threaten Pay Cut.

"The trouble arose over a proposed pay cut and dissatisfaction of the soldiers with the colonels in command.

"Secretary of War Ferrer tonight harrangued the troops, who were in an ugly mood. Ferrer was not molested when he was leaving the barracks."

Secretary Ferrer declared that "the dissatisfaction was due to a proposed cut in pay and a reduction in the size of the army. I think order will be maintained and the situation solved, although not as well as I hoped."

Troops under the command of sergeants began patroling strategic points throughout Havana and placing machine guns at corners.

It was authoritatively learned that the movement seeks a complete reorganization and "cleansing of the ranks, from privates to officers."

Students Execute Alleged Spy.

José Soler Lezama, accused of spying while a member of the A-B-C, anti-Machado organization, was executed tonight by a group of students. He was shot with eighteen bullets, fired to pattern a cross on his body. It was understood he was given a trial by his executioners. The victim was captured earlier in the day and held captive until he was shot down. Reports said he confessed and implicated several other A-B-C- members.

Red Strike Grows; Three Slain.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Sept. 4. — (AP)—Groups of women armed with clubs were scouring the city today attacking strike breakers as several communist organized strikes created disorder. Early today two civilians and one soldier were killed in a gun fight.

The army took possession of the streets, firing frequently to clear off traffic. Several persons were wounded.

The two civilians killed were Francisco Balart and Francisco Bordes. The dead soldier was Aniceto Puente.

Bordes sought to arrest another soldier, Ismael Aleman, charging he was an informant for former President Machado. Aleman shot and killed Bordes and escaped. Balart was pursuing Aleman and was challenged by Puente. Each shot and killed the other.

Plan to Cancel Back Taxes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 4.—Secretary of Treasury Saenz tonight submitted for the signature of President de Cespedes a decree canceling taxes owed to Cuban national, provincial, and local governments under the Machado régime from May 20, 1929, to Aug. 12, 1933. De Cespedes is expected to sign the measure tomorrow, thus definitely inaugurating the Cuban reconstruction program.

Machado Silent on Offer.

RABBI THUMPS PHILOSOPHY OF TIN PAN ALLEY

The stark materialism of modern philosophy is bad enough, but when tin pan alley sets these materialistic ideas to "blue" music to be broadcast by crooners and torch singers, it's no wonder that more and more folks are killing themselves.

This was the substance of the theme presented yesterday by Rabbi Morris M. Feuerlicht in his address before the fellowship of faiths in convention at the Morrison hotel. 'We hear jazz singers echoing the philosophy that 'Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries'," said the rabbi in illustrating his point. "That bit of materialism means there is no God and a man might just as well gorge himself with the cherries and die when they are all gone."

"A philosophy of futility is gripping modern thought," the rabbi continued, "and the result is that the fundamental sanctity of life has been cheapened so that thousands are beginning to believe it is better to die than live."

1,500 Checker Drivers May Strike Today

A showdown is expected today in the financial tangle involving Checker Taxi company officials and 640 of their drivers who have fallen in arrears in the payment of company garage storage charges.

Caucuses were held by the drivers in various parts of the city yesterday and after the meetings it was reported that all of the 1,500 Checker drivers would "make a gesture" today rather than submit to the seizure of their cabs for nonpayment of the charges.

Put Strike Up to Officials.

This gesture, it was indicated, would in all likelihood be a strike. It was hinted that all of the 1,500 Checker cabs will be off the streets of Chicago by 5 o'clock tonight unless the company officials relent in their plan to take forcible possession of all cars on which storage charges are not paid in full.

Last week Federal Judge John P. Barnes ruled that the drivers must pay up. He is scheduled to sign his order at 10 o'clock this morning. The court held, however, that the arrears would be on a basis of $60 for a double shift taxicab and $40 for a single shift cab, rather than on the contractual basis of $75-$55, which had been sought by the company.

Predict Action Today.

"I am afraid the men will not submit to having their only means of livelihood taken away without a gesture," said Attorney Luis Kutner, an associate counsel with Attorney David D. Stansbury for the 640 drivers. "There will be something done, although I understand the decision still is in a nebulous state, by 5 p. m. What it will be any one can conjecture. If there is a strike no Checker driver will dare go out on the street."

Attorney Kutner asserted that the men were resentful because, they contend, an earlier order by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward was upset by the order of Judge Barnes. Judge Woodward, who had been hearing the case and who is now on a vacation, on July 24 decided that until his master in chancery, Attorney Eldredge, had completed his hearing the drivers would proceed to operate their cars, meantime paying what they were able on a $60-$40 basis.

VETERAN HIKES IN GIFT SHOES FROM ROOSEVELT

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Pegging along in a pair of oxfords presented him by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Corporal John L. Sullivan passed through here for his home city of Cleveland and—he hopes—a job.

Holder of the Distinguished Service cross and other medals for acts of valor during the world war, Sullivan talked for a few minutes with the President in June. It was then that Mr. Roosevelt, noticing the shabbiness of the Sullivan footwear, called his valet and ordered a pair of black oxfords. Both wear size 10 shoe.

The oxfords since then have stomped over a greater part of New England and the territory ranging between there and the capital.

Nine Rescued as Speedboat Burns in Lake

Nine persons swam for their lives from a blazing speedboat to Navy pier yesterday afternoon, in the sight of thousands of holiday visitors, after the boat had burst into flames a hundred yards off the pier.

All of them, including a woman and four small boys, were rescued. Amid intense excitement in the crowd on the pier, a half dozen other speedboats dashed to the scene and dragged them from the water.

Third Accident in 10 Days.

The fire yesterday was the third speedboat accident on the Chicago water front in the last ten days. On Aug. 26 the speedboat Miss Chicago rammed the cabin cruiser Visitor at the mouth of the Chicago river. Both boats sank and three passengers on the speedboat were drowned.

Last Thursday another speedboat, the Texas, caught fire a mile out in the lake off 31st street. Other craft rescued the pilot and nine passengers. The speedboat burned to the water's edge.

The speedboat was equipped with life preservers, but when the fire broke out the passengers did not wait to don them in their leaps for safety. Albert J. Benson, 19 years old, 7849 Coles avenue, the pilot, raised the motor hatch as smoke began to pour from it, yelled to his passengers to jump for their lives, and then set them an example by diving into the water himself.

List of Passengers.

Besides the pilot, the passengers on board were:

MRS. D. W. WOOLLEY, 37 years old, of Wichita, Kas., and her son, RUSSELL, 11 years old.

JAMES OSBORN, 10 years old, also of Wichita, whom Mrs. Woolley had escorted to Chicago to visit the World's Fair.

R. L. McINTYRE, 4828 North Kildare avenue.

R. L. McINTYRE JR., 8 years old.

The speedboat, a Chris Craft owned by Max Shannon, has been operated as a sightseeing boat off the pier for some weeks.

Benson had gone about a hundred yards and was approaching the protective breakwater when the trouble started. The motor backfired as he turned on full throttle to speed up the boat, and smoke began to pour from the engine hatchway.

Orders Passengers Into Water.

When Benson lifted the cover to investigate he was driven back by the flames. He ordered his passengers to get into the water and away from the boat quickly for fear of an explosion of his gasoline supply.

The fireboat Joseph Medill, commanded by Battalion Chief James Doyle extinguished the fire after it had damaged the woodwork of the boat.

Benson and the passengers apparently suffered few ill effects from their dip in the lake. They were taken to the emergency hospital on the pier to dry their clothing and then were able to go to their homes and hotels.

Miss Klingensmith Is Victim at Glenview.

Balloonist Down

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Glenview, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Miss Florence Klingensmith of Minneapolis, Minn., 26 year old aviator, was killed late today when a plane which she was driving at more than 220 miles an hour in the main speed event of the international air races crashed near the village of Glenview.

More than 40,000 persons, seated in the stands at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport, had seen Miss Klingensmith complete three-quarters of the 100 mile course in fourth place, leading four of the ablest men pilots in the business to that point.

Fabric Rips from Wings.

But as she neared the home pylon on the triangular course, winging in from the north on the eighth lap, the massed spectators saw that she failed to make the required turn to the northeast. Instead they noted with horror that the fabric of one of the wings of her machine, a Gee-Bee racer powered with a Wright motor, was beginning to tear loose. This threw the craft slightly to the southeast.

For about a mile and a half the machine, with the woman pilot apparently making desperate efforts to retain control, continued its swift passage. At her speed that meant barely a minute. Then, all at once, the last vestige of control disappeared and the ship crashed nose first.

The scene of the crash was near the intersection of Glenview and Shermer roads in the Nelson Swain nursery.

Tries to Use Parachute.

The body of Miss Klingensmith was found about ten feet from the wreckage of the machine. About her body was the harness of her parachute. The chute itself was tangled in the machine, indicating that she had made an attempt to leap for safety, but had not had time to get out or had pulled the rip cord too soon.

Dr. A. A. Anderson, a physician for the department of commerce, arrived at the scene of the crash a few minutes after it occurred. The body of the woman pilot was taken to the St. Francis hospital and later to an undertaking establishment in Glenview.

Miss Klingensmith, although a pilot of wide experience in racing, had never before competed in an important speed event in which she drove a high powered ship. The one in which she fell was of 420 horse power.

Shortly before the start of the race, known as the $10,000 Phillips trophy race, she went to a microphone and told the thousands listening in:

"I hope that I shall make a good showing today. This is my first attempt to fly against such pilots as my competitors in this race. I can only say that I will be giving my best."

Makes a Good Showing.

She took off in good style with the other racers, gained altitude as rapidly as they did and proved that her best was good indeed. Her official time for the laps she completed was 220.65 miles an hour. She was fully up to the average, it was figured, when the fabric began to tear away from the wings.

On Sunday Miss Klingensmith raced against other women pilots over a 30 mile course and had finished second to Mrs. Mae Haizlip. Her success encouraged her to try against the men yesterday.

World Record Broken.

Earlier Wedell had broken the world's land plane speed records by flashing along a 3 kilometer course four times at an average of 305.33 miles an hour. The previous record, established by Maj. James H. Doolittle, was 294.38 miles an hour. It was made last fall.

Wedell flew a racer of his own design, the Wedell Williams Special racer No. 44, which is powered by a supercharged Wasp motor of 800 horse power, the same motor that Maj. Doolittle used to set his mark last fall when he took the speed record away from France. Wedell's red and black plane attained a maximum speed of 316.55 miles an hour as it flashed along the course on one down wind lap. The other laps were as follows: Up wind, 299.32 miles an hour; down wind, 311.12 miles an hour, and up wind, 294.83 miles an hour.

In his plane Wedell carried two barographs, recording altimeters, which will be calibrated to prove that he did not dive from the prohibited height to attain his speed on the course. Official regulations were that he could not exceed an altitude of 1,320 feet during his record making flight.

Expects Higher Speed.

When he landed Wedell informed the 40,000 spectators over the public address system that he believed there was still more speed left in his plane for a faster speed record at a later date. At peak speeds the motor was starved of gasoline, he said. Wedell is from Patterson, La. He is a well known racing pilot and designer of racing planes.

By far the outstanding performers of the day, as well as of the previous three days of the races, were the fighting planes of the army air corps and the marine corps, which flew in matchless formations and thrilling diving attacks to demonstrate their attack tactics.

The service craft, which were brought to Chicago on orders of Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps area, gave a show not equaled by civilian flyers. They were almost perfect in their formation flying and thrilled the crowds with their diving attack near the grand stands. They displayed high accuracy in their bombing of ground targets.

Maj. Woltjen spent yesterday assembling a jury of aviation experts to hear the case.

CHICAGO MAN'S LIFE SAVED AFTER WRECK AND GAS EXPLOSION

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Six thousand six hundred gallons of gasoline on two trailers exploded late today just after Emil de Grau of 3008 Addison street, Chicago, had been pulled from his automobile which had overturned in a ditch after colliding with the trailers.

The accident happened at Eagle Creek, in the Camp Custer reservation.

De Grau, attempting to pass the truck and trailers, struck one of them, veered to the side of the road, then struck the second trailer, knocking it into one ditch, while his car went into the ditch on the other side. De Grau was pinned beneath his car with a broken leg.

When the trailers caught fire Edward Asman of Lansing dragged De Grau from his car, carried him to safety, and ran down the road warning approaching drivers that an explosion was imminent. No one was injured when the blasts came, throwing flames for several hundred feet.

NAZI TROOPERS BEAT SON OF U. S. POLITICAL EXPERT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—According to information received here, the son of H. V. Kaltenborn, formerly of the Brooklyn Eagle and now political commentator with the Columbia Broadcasting system, was beaten by Nazi storm troopers in a Berlin street in the presence of his family. Kaltenborn complained to the American consul general George S. Messersmith, who protested to German authorities.

Germany promised to curb attacks on Americans after Dr. Daniel Mulvihill of the Long Island Medical college was struck by a Nazi storm trooper on Aug. 16, but another offense was reported to Consul General Messersmith in Berlin last Saturday. Samuel Bossard of Chester, Pa., a student, said he was beaten by Nazi storm troopers in front of a Berlin hotel. Another strong protest was made to the German foreign office.

MOLLISONS MAY START ON DOUBLE OCEAN HOP SOON

LONDON, Sept. 5 [Tuesday.]—(AP)—The Daily Mail today said Capt. James A. Mollison will sail from Liverpool Friday on the liner Duchess of York with a new airplane—the Seafarer II.—crated for reassembly at the Canadian De Havilland works. It was understood Mollison and his wife, Amy Johnson Mollison, will attempt a double Atlantic crossing and a long distance flight.

Yesterday friends of Mollison said final decision on the flight was unlikely until Mrs. Mollison had stated her views on the matter.

The Mollisons were slightly injured when they wrecked their plane, Seafarer, at Bridgeport, Conn., on July 23 after a trans-Atlantic flight that was to have been the first leg of a journey from London to New York, New York to Bagdad, and Bagdad to London.

BIRTHDAY CARD FROM MOTHER TO SON IS TOO LATE

In 1923 Nels Nelson, a world war veteran, left the home of his mother, Mrs. Anna Rueckert of 5317 North Laramie avenue, and became a sailor.

He established a residence in Milwaukee. There, on each of his birthdays, arrived a card from Mrs. Rueckert, expressing her love and best wishes.

The last of these cards reached Milwaukee a few days ago. It reached the residence of Nels Nelson, but it did not reach Nelson. He was dead, and his body, under the name Henry Peterson, lay in the county morgue, awaiting burial in the potter's field. But the card, returned to the mother in Chicago, caused her to start an investigation that resulted in the indentification of Nelson. The body will be brought here for burial.

O'Meara Makes 43 Loops in Glider for New Record

Skytop, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—A new record for consecutive loops in a glider was claimed today by J. K. [Jack] O'Meara of New York after he made 43 circles during a 31 minute flight. O'Meara holds the American distance and altitude records for gliders.

SETTLE BALLOON LANDS ON NEW ENGLAND COAST

Belgian Aeronauts Forced Down in Michigan.

The American navy balloon of Lieut. Commander Thomas G. W. Settle, which left the Curtiss-Wright airport at Glenview Saturday evening in the James Gordon Bennett international races, landed late last night at Hotchkiss Grove, Conn., on the shore of Long Island sound.

It was the fourth balloon of the six entered in the races, to land. It also had covered the greatest distance, approximately 800 miles. Two other balloons, one American, the other Polish, are still unreported. They may have already descended, perhaps in some wild region where communication to the outside world may take days.

Commander Settle's entry was first sighted over Connecticut around 10 p. m., eastern standard time. It was losing altitude gradually. Branford police, fearing Settle might drift out to sea, notified the New London coast guard station, and a cutter was sent into the sound to give aid if necessary. However, Settle floated a bit further in the air, and finally eased down in a clearing in the wooded section of Hotchkiss Grove.

Fine Weather on Trip.

"We had fine weather and a good trip," said Commander Settle on alighting. He was driven by car to nearby Branford Center, from where he officially reported his landing. His assistant, Lieut. Charles W. Kendall, guarded the bag, which was completely deflated soon after its descent.

Commander Settle's flight of 800 miles may enable him to retain the 1932 championship which he won at Basel, Switzerland, when he drifted 921 miles. He attracted world-wide attention a few weeks ago when he made an attempt here to ascend to the stratosphere in a balloon, but was forced down by a gas leak a few minutes after he ascended. He landed in a railroad yard.

Two Others Yet in Race.

Lieut. Com. Settle's only rivals in the race are the American Goodyear IX, piloted by Ward T. Van Orman, and the Polish Sp-ad, piloted by Capt. Franciszek Hynek. No word has been heard from them since the races started, although late last night a balloon was reported floating over Ottawa, Can. Its markings were indistinguishable.

The winner of the 1933 Bennett classic will be Settle or one of the two other men. Pilots of the three other contesting balloons dropped out of the running Sunday when their bags came to earth in upper Michigan. The French balloon landed at Homer, 145 miles from Glenview; the German bag at Kingston, 245 miles away, and the Belgian entry at Roscommon, 275 miles away.

Belgian Balloon Lands.

Although the Belgian balloon landed Sunday, the outside world did not learn of it until yesterday when the pilot, Philippe Guersin, and his assistant, Martial Van Schelle, made their way into the town of Harbor Springs, Mich., after spending the night in a cottage near the scene of their landing—the wild country near Roscommon.

The Belgians said that they had sacrificed all the ballast they had with them to keep the balloon aloft. It was all in vain. The balloon, with a final drop of 100 feet, came down in the midst of a state forest, the bag catching on a tree. Except for minor scratches on Quersin's face, the aeronauts were not hurt. They were sheltered in a cottage until next day.

VETERAN AND STUDENT FLYER KILLED AFTER WOMAN LEAPS, LIVES

Cleveland, O., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Ralph C. Wensinger, 28, hero of many previous escapes from death in the air, was killed today. A student pilot, Samuel Versaci, also died when an airplane piloted by Wensinger spun into Chippewa lake, 30 miles south of here, at the conclusion of a series of stunts at a Labor day exhibition.

Wensinger was known nationally for his work in the United States weather bureau. He narrowly escaped death several times while making those flights.

Wensinger was president of the Cleveland Air Service, Inc., and Versaci an employé.

A few minutes before the plane fell into the lake Miss Viola Pincombe, 21, of Berea, O., made an exhibition parachute leap from the plane at an altitude of 2,000 feet. She landed in the lake, where a waiting speedboat picked her up.

Versaci did not have a parachute. He leaped at about 200 feet and drowned in the lake. Wersinger's parachute tangled on a wing. He was killed by the impact with the water.

JUSTICE DE YOUNG DENIES PLEA FOR DOG RACE BETTING

Refuses Injunction Asked by Track.

Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court, sitting in his chambers in the county building yesterday, refused to issue a temporary injunction sought by the Thornton dog track to restrain the state's attorney and the sheriff from interfering with pari-mutuel betting on the races at the track.

The motion for an injunction was made by Attorney Daniel Healy of the firm of Litsinger, Healy and Reid, and Attorneys Leo and Joseph Weil of Peoria. They sought a temporary order while their appeal from the ruling of Superior Judge Joseph B. David, who dissolved an injunction on Sept. 1, is pending in the Supreme court.

Justice De Young's denial of the motion is believed to mark the close of dog racing in Cook county this year because the appeal will not be heard until the October term of the Supreme court, and the ruling of the court will be given too late to affect the situation this year.

Members of the state's attorney's staff, who have opposed the injunction, were not notified of the hearing yesterday. Justice De Young explained that a hearing at which only one side is present, known as an ex-parte hearing, is permissible in a case where the party appearing seeks a stay or restraining order pending an appeal to the Supreme court. Although the county building was officially closed yesterday, Judge De Young consented to hear the case as he had planned in advance to spend the day in his chambers.

In denying the injunction, Justice De Young held that the village of Homewood Park, which was recently incorporated with one of the dog track promoters as village president, had exceeded its power in adopting an ordinance permitting pari-mutuel betting at the Thornton track and licensing the track under this ordinance.

"I hold that the ordinance is void," Justice De Young said, "for the state law does not permit dog racing with betting under a pari-mutuel system. The common law of the state does not expressly prohibit gaming, but only such forms of wagering or pooling as later definitely written into the statutes is permissible. Thus, the horse racing laws expressly allowed pari-mutuel betting at horse race tracks, but this cannot be extended by implication to dog tracks.

"Why the pari-mutuel system should be allowed on horse races and not dog races is a question for the legislature, not the judiciary. Frankly, I don't see why horse racing is not gambling, and can perceive the incongruity in the legislation."

The bill for an injunction was first heard by Judge William J. Lindsay last June. He refused to sanction betting at the track. Meanwhile, the village was incorporated and a supplemental bill was filed. Judge Charles A. Williams last week granted an injunction to prevent the law enforcement officials from interfering with betting at the track. In voiding Judge Williams' order, Judge David characterized dog racing as a "cheating racket."

JAIL BREAKER IN NEW CELL; INQUIRY STARTS

U. S., Texas Look Into Bailey's Escape.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Heavily guarded, Harvey Bailey, charged with the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, and with participation in the Kansas City union station slaying, was placed in solitary confinement in the Oklahoma county jail tonight. That was the climax of a four hour dash for freedom from the Dallas jail.

"Well, I got out, didn't I?" Bailey said.

Recaptured at Ardmore at 11 a. m. today by three policemen after he sawed his way out of his Dallas cell, forced his way from the jail with a revolver, and kidnaped Nick Tresp, turnkey, Bailey was brought here by a five car caravan of police, deputy sheriffs, and federal agents. Those precautions were taken to prevent any rescue attempt. The ride was uneventful. Bailey's flight was about 150 miles.

Await Trial Sept. 18.

Alfred Bates, alleged to have been one of the Urschel kidnapers, and three members of the family of R. G. Shannon, on whose farm near Paradise, Tex., Bailey was captured recently, already were in the Oklahoma county jail awaiting trial, Sept. 18. Bailey will be arraigned on the kidnaping charge tomorrow or Wednesday.

It was said Bailey's dash for freedom was to have ended about 35 miles east of Ardmore, where members of an underworld gang of which Bailey allegedly is a member, were waiting.

Perhaps that was the meaning of the story told by Earl Scott, motor car salesman. He said a well dressed youth carrying a violin case stopped his automobile at the spot near where Bailey was captured in Ardmore this morning and forced him with a pistol to drive him northward on the main highway.

Seen as Rescue Plot.

Scott said the man dangled a handkerchief from a window of the car when he saw a car occupied by two other men approach from the road. Then ordering Scott to stop, he got into the other car and it sped northward. The salesman said he was warned to "keep your mouth shut." That story had been construed as a possible scheme to rescue Bailey on his way from Ardmore to Oklahoma City.

Word from Dallas tonight was that a federal inquiry was in progress there. It was asserted in Washington that Joseph B. Keenan, federal anti-crime administrator, expressed the belief that "corruption" figured in Bailey's escape. The Dallas county grand jury was said to be about to inquire into how Bailey had obtained saw blades for cutting steel and a revolver.

This seemed the more strange to United States agents as Bailey was in solitary confinement on one of the upper floors of a modern jail, from which, authorities said, no previous prisoner had escaped.

Will Push Inquiry.

A later statement from Mr. Keenan in Washington said: "An investigation is under way and if we find this escape was aided from within the institution we intend to establish a precedent for speedy federal justice."

William Decker, chief deputy sheriff in charge of the Dallas jail in the absence of Smoot Schmid, county sheriff, said he intended to find out how the most important prisoner in his care escaped, "let the rocks fall where they may."

"Some lawyers are the only persons who have been allowed to talk with him without witnesses being present. I expect that at least one or two of the lawyers will be questioned," Sheriff Decker added.

The Oklahoma City jail was turned into a veritable fortress. A heavy chain augmented the lock on the cell door on the fourth floor. Two federal operatives assist state officers on guard duty and six men will be on duty twenty-four hours daily, Sheriff Stanley Rogers said.

Bailey had led 11 convicts in an escape from the Kansas penitentiary at Lansing last Memorial day. His escape at Dallas was less violent but little less sensational. He had sawed his way out of his cell when Charles Young, deputy jailer, came with his breakfast. Bailey confronted him in the general enclosure. Bailey had a revolver. He forced Young into a cell, commandeered the jail elevator, kidnaped Tresp, and escaped in Tresp's car.

Seen; Alarm; Auto Crashes.

The hunt spread over hundreds of miles. Police cars with rifles, machine guns, and gas bombs gave chase or lay in wait on side roads.

Six airplanes from Love field, Dallas municipal airport, scouted over the highways.

As Bailey drove madly north from Dallas in the turnkey's car he talked little with Tresp, who was not harmed.

At Marietta Sheriff Sam Randolph of Love county sighted the machine and chased it after hurrying to a telephone to notify officers at Ardmore, 30 miles north. At Ardmore Chief of Police Hale Dunn and Detectives Raymond Shoemaker and Bennett Wallace sped out of the city in search of the fugitive.

They came upon Bailey and his prisoner at a filling station a short distance northeast of Ardmore. Bailey sped away, leaving a fuel hose dangling and spouting gasoline.

Bailey attempted to escape by cutting through the residential district. Shots were fired by his pursuers, but none hit the swerving target. Then came the crash and capture.

JUDGE J. H. FITCH DIES OF HEART ATTACK AT 74

Judge Joseph H. Fitch of the Superior court died suddenly of heart disease last night at his home, 828 Junior terrace. He had been ill for several days, but his condition had not been regarded as serious until the final attack came.

Judge Fitch, who was 74 years old, was born in Bristol, Me., but came to Chicago more than sixty years ago. He was educated in the grade and high schools, the old Chicago university and the Union College of Law.

He was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1881 and after practicing for a short time in New Mexico returned to take up a legal career here. He was master in chancery of the Superior court in 1892-93. First elected to the Superior court bench in 1910, he had served there continuously since. He was twice appointed to the Appellate bench and had also served a term as chief justice of the Superior court.

Judge Fitch, a Democrat, had received the indorsement of the Chicago Bar association in all his recent races. In 1923 he was given the third highest rating in the association primary and in 1929 was sixth among all the candidates. He had recently been selected as an emergency judge in the drive against criminals and was to have started serving today.

Surviving Judge Fitch are two sons, Joseph E. Fitch and Gerald Fitch, and four daughters, Mrs. Edna Cole, Mrs. Sarah Seal, Mrs. Clara M. Brown and Mrs. Geraldine Peace.

DAVISON TELLS OF THRILLING ELEPHANT HUNT

Tripped as Bull Charges; He and Wife Both Fall.

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Details of the exciting elephant hunt in which F. Trubee Davison, president of the American Museum of Natural History, and Mrs. Davison were charged by a great bull are related in a letter to his sons by Mr. Davison.

Excerpts from the letter were made public today, at the museum. Mr. and Mrs. Davison with Lieut. Elwood R. Quesada as their pilot left New York last June to join the Martin Johnsons at Nairobi on an expedition for four "shamba" or outlaw elephants to complete a group for the Akeley African hall at the museum.

The letter tells of the discovery of the herd, the five hour trailing through the thick bush and finally how, when a great bull charged them, Mrs. Davison stood her ground, by her husband, steadily turning a motion picture camera, until she was knocked flat when her husband tripped after firing.

Sight Fifteen Elephants.

On Aug. 3, before daybreak, with automobiles and trackers, the Davisons set out to complete their bag. The native trackers soon located a herd. The white hunters hurried after them, with guns and cameras, and sighted between twelve and fifteen elephants bunched, heads together, less than a hundred feet away. The herd moved off slowly. Then, wrote Davison:

"For five hours we followed and studied them, often very, very close, but never sure enough of any particular one to shoot. Believe me, it was a thrilling five hours! They looked as big as the Grand Central station, but there was one very cunning little calf about two feet high, playing around the old folks.

"Two Dangerous Minutes."

"At last a calfless one presented a fine target, and I fired. Then started the most exciting and dangerous two minutes I have ever been through. My bullet hit the cow in the neck and broke the spinal cord. She went down, instantly killed. It sounded like a ton of bricks falling.

"Immediately the herd stampeded and milled around in every direction, as they didn't seem to know where the danger was. But within two or three seconds a big bull picked us out and came for us like an express train.

"Can you imagine how we felt? As a matter of fact, we didn't have time to think. Mother had her movie camera going all the time and was standing back of me.

Face Elephant Charge.

"Well, the elephant came and came and came, followed by the herd. Klein yelled at him, hoping to turn him, but still he came. I had one shell left in my double-barreled gun and shot at his head. Klein and Pete shot at the same time. I was off my balance and we were in a fairly thick bush.

"My foot caught as I stepped back from the kick of the gun and down I fell on my back in the thorn bushes. Now, two things happened as I fell: First, I saw the bull go down, and secondly, I knocked your mother down, too. We were lying flat on our backs in the thorns. Pete shot again.

"After what seemed an hour we got out of the thorns and followed the rest back, my gun empty. After the bull had gone down the herd disappeared. We weren't a bit sorry to see them go out of sight."

POLICE QUIZ PALS OF BOY HURT BY CAPTAIN'S AUTO

Forced to Sign Unread Statement, One Says.

Today was to have marked an important occasion in the life of Johnny Heneghan, a newsboy of 4830 Maypole street.

Every day through the summer since he finished parochial school last June he had sold papers from a stand at Lake street and Cicero avenue to earn enough to buy a new suit and books and enroll at St. Mel's High school this morning. Johnny is 13 years old.

The new suit was hanging in his room at home last night and the money for his books was safe in his savings bank, but Johnny was no longer planning to enroll at St. Mel's.

Instead he was in a ward at St. Anne's hospital, suffering from a fracture of a leg. Johnny had been run down by an automobile.

Car Driven by Capt. Goldberg.

His day's work finished, he was crossing Fulton street at Cicero avenue about 9:15 o'clock last Friday evening on his way home to supper when the car struck him. The driver was Capt. Joseph Goldberg, commander of the Albany Park police district.

He hadn't seen the car approaching, Johnny afterward explained, because the headlights were not burning. Another newsboy, John Reinholtz, 15 years old, 4561 Fulton street, confirmed his statement that the headlights were unlit.

Two other boys, Charles Madden, 4853 Fulton street, and William Wilmot, 185 North Lemont avenue, also on the scene, said they heard a scream and turned around to see the bumper of the car strike Johnny's leg, throwing his face against the radiator.

Takes Boy to Hospital.

As Johnny lay in the street, they said, the motorist whom they later identified as Capt. Goldberg, got out and, noting the profuse bleeding from the boy's mouth, ordered the other boys to lift him into the back seat. Meanwhile, they said, the captain was busy getting names.

The captain drove the boy to the hospital. There, it was learned, he left his telephone number with Johnny's mother.

John Reinholtz and William Wilmot called on Johnny yesterday to tell him of being called on by Policeman George Hillock and another plain clothes man from Albany Park station. The accident, incidentally, occurred in the Austin district.

No Time to Read Statements.

"They asked me five or six times if I didn't see another car coming from the opposite direction to blind the captain's vision," Reinholtz said. "I told them no, but they kept on asking. Then they fixed up a statement and told me to sign. I asked if I could read it first. They said they were in a hurry to be on their way. So I signed, and they left."

Since then Johnny's mother has retained a lawyer, Thomas L. Owens.

Capt. Goldberg could not be reached last night to state his side of the case.

Reputedly wealthy and possessed of political influence, the captain is regarded as something of a czar in Albany Park and immune from transfer.

Teasing Neighbor's Dog Proves Painful Sport

Teasing a dog to make it bark proved painful last night for John Zak, 17 years old, of 4716 South Racine avenue. The dog is owned by Vandell Kambelec, 45, of 4715 South Elizabeth street, a neighbor of John's. Last night John leaned over the fence of Kambelec's back yard and shouted to the dog, making it yelp and bark. Kambelec fired a shotgun at the boy, peppering him about the chest and arms.

POLICE SQUAD WEEPS OVER FAILURE OF TRAP FOR BURGLARS

Sergt. Fred Graham and members of his Wabash avenue police squad expressed doubt last night as to the efficacy of home made tear gas bombs to keep burglars out of places of business. Tears trickled from their eyes as they spoke.

During the night reports were broadcast that burglars were ransacking the Regal Radio Manufacturing company rooms at 5127 South State street. Squads under Sergt. Graham and Sergt. Charles McGuire hurried there.

McGuire's men arrived first, just in time to see Leonard Brimege, 30 years old, a Negro, running away with a radio. A charge of buckshot halted him, sending him eventually to the Bridewell hospital.

Meanwhile Graham and his squad rushed into the place, seeking a second robber. Then they rushed right out. One of the policemen had tripped over and discharged two homemade tear gas bombs, flooding the rooms with fumes. The policemen returned later but failed to find the man.

Boy, 15, Routed in Attempt to Attack a Girl, 20

A boy about 15 years old was frightened away yesterday when he attempted to rape Miss Yvonne Evans, 20 years old, of 6139 McClelland avenue, in the northwest side forest preserves. Miss Evans was walking alone in the woods near Caldwell road and Loleta avenue, when the boy seized her and tried to drag her into the shrubbery. She screamed for help, attracting several men to the scene.

The boy seized her purse, containing 50 cents, and ran as the men came up.

NEW COURT CHIEF VOWS TO PRESS WAR ON CRIME

Philip Sullivan Succeeds Prystalski.

With a declaration that the war on crime must not cease, Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday became chief justice of the Criminal court. He succeeded Judge John Prystalski, who started the campaign against crime which in one month resulted in 251 penitentiary sentences and three death verdicts. Two of the death verdicts were returned against slayers of policemen. Judge Prystalski, under the rules of court, must return to the trial of civil cases.

The new chief justice said he expected his associates to start work this morning on the trial of criminal cases. Instead of the usual delay of two or three weeks which judges take after the vacation period in order to arrange their calendars the new chief justice said he hoped that some of the important murder cases set for today would be tried at once. Several cases against killers of policemen are on the call for today.

"Crime War Must Go On."

"The war must not cease," said the new chief justice as he took the oath of office in a courtroom packed with spectators. "The people of this community have a right to demand of their officials that there be no letup until a truce is declared, and by truce I do not mean an agreement or armistice, but results that will so impress the criminal that he may know that the penitentiary or electric chair awaits him within 30 days after his criminal act is committed.

"Speedy and exact justice means a deterrent to crime. There must be sufficient judges to dispose of cases speedily. Criminals work 24 hours a day and 365 days each year. The law enforcing agencies must work with the same zeal to cope with the situation.

"Laws and courts alone without effective administration are like a department store with an independent salesman at each counter. I am sure I will have the full cooperation of other officials and officers in the performance of my duties, and all working with the same object in mind will make criminal justice effective and just.

"A Tremendous Responsibility."

"The responsibility of chief justice of the Criminal court of Cook county is a tremendous one. I do not underestimate its responsibility at this time. My hope is that I shall be able to measure up to the requirements of so great an office.

"It is no easy task to succeed a man who has so ably measured up to those requirements of the office as did my friend Judge Prystalski. If I can but parallel his record of achievements I shall be content."

Judge Sullivan said that his first official act would be to demand that at least ten judges be permanently asigned to the Criminal court to carry on the work started by his predecessor. If a few additional judges are assigned to begin the fall term of court the dockets can be cleared so that the regular judges can then keep abreast of current crime, the judge pointed out. The Criminal Court building has room for 14 judges.

866 Indictments Pending.

The dockets show that 866 indictments are pending as the court opens a new year. These cases must be cleared up before the judges and prosecutors can hope for speedy trials of all criminals.

In view of the fact that most of the judges served some time during the last month in the Criminal court and now have first hand information of conditions existing there, Judge Sullivan said he expected no trouble in getting an adequate number of judges to keep the courts going at top speed.

Long continuances are to be eliminated, the new chief justice said. A defendant in a criminal case will be given a reasonable time to prepare a defense if he has one, but his case must be tried and disposed of within 30 days unless some good legal reason exists for its further continuance.

Cases Cleared Up Speedily.

Judge Sullivan said he hoped to dispose of the usual run of criminal cases within a much shorter time than 30 days. During the last month some cases have been disposed of within a week or two of the time of the crime. Even one murder case in which the death penalty was inflicted was tried and disposed of within 14 days of the crime. It was the case of Morris Cohen, the slayer of Policeman Joseph Hastings.

Judge Sullivan indicated that he would follow the method used by Judge Prystalski in speeding up the trial of important cases by cutting through much of the legal red tape which often causes delays of weks. Instead of waiting for the important murder cases to drag through the usual routine of a coroner's inquest and the Municipal court before they reach the grand jury, Judge Sullivan will do as Judge Prystalski did: order direct grand jury action. This will also save the time of witnesses.

Accused as Police Slayers.

Among the important cases which the judge hopes to bring to trial before this week is over are those of Kenneth Smith, alias Ross King, and John Bongiarno, paroled convicts, who are charged with the murder of Policeman Harry Redlich. The policeman was slain when he tried to prevent a robbery of the John W. Compton Advertising company, 9 South Kedzie avenue, on July 8.

Tony Rocco, Emil Manzone, Richard Basile, and Dominick Denardi are charged with killing Policeman Maurice Marcusson in an attempted robbery of a loan office at 323 West Jackson boulevard. This case has been pending since last January.

Both of these cases against alleged slayers of policemen are on the court calls for this week. The prosecution will ask for the death penalty in both cases.

James [Iggy] Varecha, the youthful killer who committed rape, robbery, and murder after he escaped from the Dixon home for the feeble minded, is to be brought to trial again soon. He was sentenced to death by Judge Prystalski in a bench trial, but was granted a new trial by the Supreme court because of technical errors.

Confers with Prystalski.

Before leaving the Criminal court building the outgoing chief justice and the new chief justice held a conference. Judge Prystalski gave his successor information he gained in the crime drive in forcing cases to a speedy trial over the protests of lawyers and defendants. The conference followed the usual speeches at the inaugural ceremonies in which Hyde Park post, No. 34, American Legion, presented the colors, under command of T. J. Cummings.

Among the speakers were Acting State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeyer, Attorney Ben Short, Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach, Dr. Harry Hoffman of the Criminal court behavior clinic, and Judges Charles P. Molthrop, Benjamin P. Epstein, and former Judge Charles A. McDonald.

"I am glad I am leaving this court," said the retiring chief justice. "I have worked for three consecutive years in the Criminal court and I think that is enough for any man at one stretch. I want to thank my associates on the bench, the sheriffs, the clerks and Public Defender Bachrach for cooperating with this court.

"The work started in this court during the last month has to be carried on. I feel confident that my successor will carry on efficiently and make a remarkable record for public achievements."

The inaugural speakers extolled the work of Judge Prystalski, pointing out the good he had accomplished for the community in the campaign against crime.

The new chief justice is the youngest jurist on the Circuit court bench. He is 43 years old. His wife and his daughter, Daisy, 11 years old, and other relatives attended the ceremonies.

NEVER A HOLIDAY

A. F. WILLIAMS.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

A. F. Williams, president of the Trade Circular company, 221 West Madison street, who asserts he has not had a vacation since he was 13 years old, celebrated his 81st birthday yesterday by working all day at his office. Twenty of Mr. Williams' employés, all of whom are working under the NRA code, worked through out the day with him.

"I got up at 4:30 in the morning as has been my custom every Sunday, weekday and holiday since I was a small boy, and arrived at the office promptly at 5:30," Mr. Williams said yesterday. "I can't see why any one wants to take a vacation if he loves his business. My business is my hobby and I've never played a game of golf in my life.

"My only recreation is movies three times a week. I'm in bed at 9 each night. I've never been sick, although I let a doctor examine me each year to see that I'm in shape. My friends call me a liar when I say I'm 81 and say I look half as old."

Mr. Williams attributes his health to his regular habits. He says he will continue on the job until he is 100 years old.

BRITISH IDLE TOTAL DECREASES; BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Great Britain's number of unemployed is still decreasing. There were 648,000 more people working today than a year ago. The total dropped more than 30,000 last month alone, according to figures issued by the ministry of labor tonight.

On Aug. 21 the unemployed totaled 2,411,137, or 31,000 less than the preceding month and 448,691 less than a year ago. It is the lowest figure since November, 1930. The ministry's report states that improvement is continuing in the iron and steel industries, shipbuilding, ship repairing, engineering, electrical apparatus manufacture, and the woolen and hosiery industries, as well as in shipping and hotel and boarding house service. Some improvement is also reported in coal mining and the building industry.

The increased business is attributed to import duties, boycotting of German steel by Jewish merchants, and replacement and constructional work which has been renewed by foreign railway undertakings. In the motor car and bicycle industries all production records were broken during the last few months. In the cotton industry many mills are working overtime. The iron and steel industry's average monthly production has risen to 530,500 tons, compared with last year's average of 438,000 tons.

WORLD SPEEDING TO DOGS? NO, SAYS EX-GOV. WHITMAN

Former Gov. Charles S. Whitman of New York does not believe the world is going to the dogs. He expressed this optimistic belief last night at a dinner in Burton court, University of Chicago, celebrating the 101st anniversary of Alpha Delta Phi, national fraternity.

"People have been talking so long about the world going to the dogs that I'm convinced the dogs have had a long wait and will have a still longer wait before that happens," observed the former governor. "As a matter of fact, times are improving. That has been noticeable during the last year."

President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, who is now in Europe, was elected national president of Alpha Delta Phi.

Compensation amounting to 64,000 yen [$17,280] has already been paid to Japan by the soviet government.

"The Same PACKARD MOTORS KEPT AMERICA ON TOP" —Says GAR WOOD

"Again it was America's Master Motor Builders against the rest of the World . . . . and the result is history"

"NO SPEEDBOAT is better than its motors. I'm not forgetting for a minute that the racing laurels of the world would not be resting on Miss America tonight were it not for the four Packard motors that powered her."

Thus spoke Gar Wood, famed international sportsman, after the proud nose of Miss America X had crossed the finish line, winner of still another great Harmsworth race.

This triumph was a convincing demonstration of motor dependability. For in the race, and in the history of these motors, is additional proof of Packard's ability to build engines that give lasting performance over years of long life.

Every one of these Packard motors is more than six years old. Every one has had a life full of service and of thrills.

They are the same motors that have brought victory to Gar Wood for six consecutive years. They are the same motors that last year helped him restore to America the world's speedboat record with an official speed of 124.91 miles an hour.

Two of the four have been in spectacular wrecks while wide open. Once they plunged to the bottom of the St. Clair River. Another time, they were retrieved from the depths of the bay at Lido, Italy. Both times, they came up smiling.

The horsepower of each has been stepped up from 770 to 1600 through supercharging and higher compression. And they took this extra burden without benefit of any important structural changes.

They have justified America's confidence in them. Again they have proven that the motor engineering supremacy of the world rests right here in this country.

These mighty motors were designed by the same engineers and built in the same plant by the same craftsmen who design and build Packard motor cars.

From this plant, in a few days, will emerge the new 1934 Packard cars—the "yardstick" with which to measure all fine car values. Watch for the early announcement of these new Packard models. Ride in one of them first. Then use it as your "yardstick" to decide which of America's great cars you want to make yours.

Right: 48 Cylinders—6400 Horse Power! These four twelve-cylinder Packard Motors—three times as powerful as a crack train—again propelled an American speedboat to world supremacy!

FAIR'S THRONGS SCURRY INDOORS TO ESCAPE RAIN

Sudden Downpour Causes Attendance Slump.

Paid attendance figures for A Century of Progress Exposition and for corresponding periods at the 1893 Columbian Exposition follow:

Sunday, Sept. 3, 1933.....	367,004
Sunday, Sept. 3, 1893.....	25,950
Total including Sept. 3, 1933 [100 days].....	13,573,069
Total including Sept. 3, 1893 [126 days].....	10,302,194

The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

A voluminous shower, falling between 8 and 9 o'clock last night to the accompaniment of thunder and lightning, sent vast throngs at A Century of Progress Exposition scurrying for shelter.

The buildings, from the north to south end, were crowded in a few minutes so densely that they overflowed and many would-be entrants found that they had to stay out and take the drenching. Some of the concessions, which ordinarily charge admission threw open their doors and allowed free entrances. Among these was Old Mexico, where the 50 cent charge was waived for the time being.

Some 10,000 persons viewing a performance at the floating theater were dispersed and the show was called off as an outdoor affair. It was broadcast via W-G-N from the Administration building.

Flags on Avenue Shredded.

The banners along the Avenue of Flags were all shredded by the storm. Otherwise property damage, aside from that to the garments of the visitors, was slight. The inside bus lines re-routed some of its cars to get passengers to the shelter of the north gates.

Partly because of the rain the attendance was greatly under that anticipated for the day. At 8:30 p. m. the total of admissions was 236,208, and at midnight the turnstiles showed only 238,012. A second factor working against the Labor day attendance was a belief on the part of the public that a crush greater than that of Sunday, when 367,004 passed through the gates, would be encountered.

Only 57 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair.

"Sunday's attendance did not begin to swamp us," said Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair. "Even a half million wouldn't be enough to do that. We had believed the crowd would be larger. But we are confident Chicagoans will make this Fair follow tradition by flocking here in great numbers during the last six weeks."

At the rodeo in Soldiers' Field, the downpour arrived just as the performers were starting their parade before some 10,000 spectators. Among those riding in the parade was James Roosevelt, son of the President. The spectators all rushed for shelter. Most of them were given rain checks when the performance had to be called off.

Trains and Highways Crowded.

Railway trains, highways, and airplanes were crowded yesterday as the hundreds of thousands who had come to Chicago and the Fair for the long holiday started their trek back home. Traffic congestion, both in the city and on the arterial highways, was reported less than on many previous Labor days, the movement having been spread over a longer time.

Elaborate arrangements had been made yesterday to care for the crowds. Transportation lines, including the elevated and surface cars, the Illinois Central, and the bus routes, had added equipment, and many repeat visitors to the Exposition reported that it was easier to find seats than on many ordinary days. At the Fair additional policemen, engaged for Sunday and yesterday, found their task easy, while most of the concessions had added workers.

Practically all the city's hotels, both in the loop and the outlying districts, were filled over the long holiday period. The United Air Lines reported that their planes had brought 1,000 persons to Chicago on Saturday and Sunday and had taken nearly all back on ships leaving yesterday. Many of the visitors by plane came from the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The New York Central lines announced that they had set a record for outbound travel from the city yesterday, 23 extra sections having been attached to regular train schedules to care for those returning after visiting the Fair.

EMPLOYERS ASK NRA HOLIDAYS BE SPENT AT FAIR

Association of Commerce Drive Wins Promises

Merchants, manufacturers and other business leaders yesterday announced they would urge employes who are released from the jobs one extra day each week under the NRA program to attend the World's Fair. The campaign is under the guidance of the Association of Commerce.

The new plan is a part of the campaign originating last Wednesday at a meeting of representatives of business interests at the Chicago club. According to statistics compiled by the association auditors, the ratio of increase in Chicago's business activities is dependent upon attendance at the Fair.

Hope to Strengthen Recovery.

Thus far, surveys have indicated, the Exposition visitors have largely been of men and women whose homes were outside of Chicago. On this basis, it is said, the upturn in Chicago's business world has been caused by the millions of dollars spent by these visitors. It is hoped that the campaign to direct Chicago residents to the Fair will place the city's industrial recovery upon an even more solid foundation.

The plan calls for the selection of a day by each of the large business concerns upon which all employes enjoying NRA holidays can go to the Fair in bodies. Perhaps several such concerns can adopt the same day and send their employes in a large group, Association of Commerce representatives said.

Letters outlining the plan to several hundred other large employers were dispatched by the Association of Commerce yesterday. In these letters George W. Rossetter, president of the association, said:

"It is our desire to feature a greater interest in the Fair among Chicago people and thus augment the wave of buying already very apparent.

Aims to Benefit All Business.

"We feel that through this campaign all business in Chicago can take advantage of the business producing possibilities of the Fair to the end that every one will feel a direct benefit.

"The ratio of business increase in Chicago is in direct proportion to the increase in attendance at the Fair. People in going to the Exposition do it in a mood to see something and spend a little money. Millions have already been spent in Chicago by visitors and yet their average expense on the Fair grounds proper is only $1.08 apiece. Business in Chicago thus is reaping a big harvest.

"Therefore, in aiding the new plan, we feel that if you will help us increase attendance on the Exposition grounds you will aid your own business."

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

A stained glass window depicting the crossing of the Illinois river by George Rogers Clark and his force of pioneer fighter who conquered Illinois and the upper Mississippi valley for the United States 150 years ago was unveiled yesterday in the Illinois Host hous on the Fair grounds. The unveiling was in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the surrender of Fort Vincennes to Clark. The window was unveiled by County Commissioner Mary McEnerney. It was designed by Robin A. Grey of Mount Carmel, Ill., and executed by Thomas O'Shaughnessy of Chicago.

The Rumanian charge d'affaires, André I. Popovici, was given an eleven gun salute on his arrival at the Fair yesterday morning. He was accompanied by Paul Tomy, chairman of the Rumanian commission to the Fair; Cornelius Dimitriu, consul in Chicago, and Alic J. Lupear, an attorney in Indianapolis, Ind.

Erwin C. Cameron, 42 years old, a mechanic, of Atlantic City, N. J., reached the Fair grounds late Sunday in his 18 foot outboard cabin cruiser, after a trip through the Hudson river, barge canal, the Trent canal, and the great lakes.

The Sky Ride had a total of 51,287 paying customers Sunday on the rocket cars and in the observation towers, setting an all time record. There was a long waiting line continuously from 9:30 a. m. until after 11:30 p. m. Every car was in operation all day.

A Labor day ceremony was staged yesterday at the Pantheon de la Guerre in tribute to the late Samuel Gompers, for many years president of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers is portrayed in the United States section of the world war panorama.

Dodge automobile dealers from all over the country will gather at the Chrysler building today for Dodge day. De Soto men will have their day at the building Thursday.

RODEO HORSES IN SWIMMING RACE ALMOST DROWN

Six riders from the rodeo in Soldiers' Field gathered at the west side of the north lagoon in the Fair grounds yesterday to stage a horse swimming race across the lagoon. The horses were jumped from a barge into the 30 foot water of the lagoon, the riders all sitting in their saddles.

As the horses rose to the surface, the combination of several motor boats circling them and the weight of their riders seemed to throw the animals into a panic. One or two began to swim, but others were in danger of drowning.

Comer Winter, vice president of the Progress Amusement corporation which operates the lagoon fleet ordered the men in the boats to pull them from the water. To the accompaniment of screams of woman spectators and shouts of advice from men lining the shore of the lagoon, the horses were lifted bodily from the water by man-power and ropes. No prizes were awarded in the race.

James Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt and his wife arrived in the Union station yesterday morning on the Milwaukee railway to visit A Century of Progress exposition. They went to the Lake Shore Drive hotel, where they are staying, and left for the Exposition grounds by speed boat shortly after their arrival. The Roosevelts arrived here from Mason City, Ia., where they went following the convention of the Young Democratic Clubs of America in Kansas City last week. Roosevelt was elected secretary of the young Democrats.

BUY NOW, NEXT APPEAL OF NRA, JOHNSON SAYS

Roosevelt to Keep Profits Fair, He Promises.

ting better pay. I go a step further and say that, although this Labor day was the first objective, we shall not stop. You cannot stop a movement like this—you must carry on to a conclusion.

"It is unfair to the loyal and patriotic men who have put up the Blue Eagle to permit any competitor to refuse to put him up.

"Since the plan is for the public and so much depends on it, they simply cannot tolerate noncompliance, and certainly they cannot by their patronage support enemies of their interest, to the destruction of their friends.

"It is absolutely essential that consumers support this program by buying under the Blue Eagle. There is no spite in this and no unfairness. No employer is asked to do anything that an overwhelming majority of employers have not agreed to and are doing."

No Mention of Henry Ford.

No mention was made of the position of Henry Ford towards the automobile code.

Mr. Johnson at times pounded the desk in emphasis until the water jounced out of the water glass, and when he mentioned President Roosevelt as the "apostle of action" he bent down to the microphone and spoke into its innermost ear. He sprinkled his address with epigram. A Century of Progress Exposition he called a recovery program in itself.

"It makes business. It circulates money. It lifts people's eyes and hearts. It creates confidence. Those things are of the essence of recovery," he said.

"We have always had years of hard times, ups and downs, and of course we always shall. Well, we are a brave, strong people, educated in hard knocks. Old Bob Fitzsimmons used to say a champion must 'take it as well as give it,' and this depression has proved our people can take it and smile.

Tells of National Advance.

"That's all to the good. But there is no virtue in sitting and taking it and never striking back. Even the good Lord only mentioned turning one cheek, and when he found men in the court of the temple fattening on the faith of a distressed people he used the knotted end of a rope.

"This country has tried sitting and taking it for four years, and now all together, as one man, they have a chance to do something about it—to strike back. At last a national march is moving forward under the inspired leadership of our great apostle of action, President Roosevelt.

Mr. Johnson refrained from estimating the volume of employment so far resulting from the recovery program.

"I regret," he said, "that specific figures on reëmployment are unavailable. There is no normal from which to judge reëmployment. It is a little too early to make a random test. A little later we are planning a quick census on how many people have gone back to work under codes and President's agreements.

Nearly All Industry Joins.

"A recent summary of the industries and trades indicated that practically all have submitted codes which are either in process of or awaiting hearings. Reports from leading cities indicate that practically all employers have signed the President's agreement.

"There have been so many disappointed prophecies in the past four years that we early decided not to indulge that habit. The curve of business activity usually dips in August. We think we have at least erased the dip. The real test will come in the next few weeks. I don't know what it will show, but that is because I cannot be absolutely certain what everybody in this country will do, but one thing I do know beyond any peradventure of doubt—if everybody in this country will do his part under the Blue Eagle—that is if every employer will live up to the code or agreement under which he got the Blue Eagle—if every consumer will buy under the Blue Eagle and buy generously and buy now to the very full of his prudent needs, American business and reëmployment will show the biggest spurt it has known for years and we shall be on our way out of this depression before snow flies.

"If ever a people had their fate in their own hands, it is this people. The President has shown the way—provided the organization—written the prescription—but that is all that any law or any executive can ever do for people—give them the chance to help themselves. If we take it the goal is already in sight. If we neglect it or abuse it or permit others to do so, the great opportunity will go by. The national recovery act has done its part. The result is up to you."

On the "open shop versus closed shop" question Administrator Johnson expounded the recovery act and pleaded against industrial conflicts.

"The law," he said, "established the rights of workers to organize and deal with their employers through any representatives whom they may choose. Workers are not compelled to do this. They can deal with the employers individually if they so choose. And, whether they are organized or not, their interests will be protected as to maximum hours and minimum wages in every hearing under a code.

No Interference by Employers.

"The obligation of employers is not to seek to interfere with efforts of workers to organize or with their choice of representatives. Employers cannot refuse to bargain about conditions of employment with the self-chosen representatives of their workers.

"Employers cannot make as a condition of employment that their workers join a company union. But employers are not compelled to agree on any particular scale of wages or conditions of employment merely because they are bargaining with self-chosen representatives of organized workers. And no employer is denied the right to bargain individually with any worker if the worker so chooses. It is, however, the worker's choice as to whether he shall bargain individually or collectively through a representative."

Gives Example of Coercion.

"If the employer should make a contract with a particular organization to employ only members of that organization, especially if that organization did not have 100 per cent membership among his employes, that would in effect be a contract to interfere with his workers' freedom of choice of their representatives or with their right to bargain individually and would amount to employer coercion on these matters, which is contrary to the law.

"That is the meaning and effect of the law as this administration understands it. Most of the trouble we have seen comes from the attempt of employers on the one hand or organizations on the other to read some different or more favorable interpretation into the law. We cannot permit that.

"Coercive measures on either side are wrong. It is as bad for an organization to tell workers that if they do not join a particular union they will get no rights as it is for employers to tell their men that if they do not join company unions they will get no rights. Both statements misrepresent."

The question of price control was discussed by Mr. Johnson:

"We are asked daily," he said, "Will we permit price control? Are we concerned with profits? Price control is a primary purpose. Price fixing is an entirely different matter. The aspect of price control varies with every industry.

"Our object is to erase disparities and to come as nearly as possible to a condition where every group of our people can exchange the products of their toil with all other groups on terms as nearly fair and equal as possible. That is the way to recovery and to the greatest prosperity this country ever knew."

He urged the strengthening of trade and manufacturing associations, and that all merchants and manufacturers who have signed the President's agreement should promptly join the associations whose codes are replacing the blanket agreement as fast as they can be adopted.

"These codes of fair competition," he remarked, "involve no government intervention in business except to aid business to police itself, or practices which it condemns itself and asks to have discarded.

"What our few critics overlook is that we have not had one code that has not been voluntarily presented and concurred in by an overwhelming majority of the industry and nearly the whole of American industry is now within codes."

Henry Ford Is Still Silent on Attitude on Auto Code

Big Bay, Mich., Sept. 4.—(AP)—With the deadline for acceptance of the NRA automotive code at midnight tonight, Henry Ford, as yet unsigned, today gave no indication of interrupting his north woods vacation for a return to Detroit or a statement of his position.

Ford's continued refusal to comment on his plans and his apparent intention to remain secluded in his elaborate Huron mountain camp near here until next Friday lent weight to the steadily growing opinion that once more the motor magnate is launched on a "go it alone" campaign, outside the NRA.

His plea for public support, observers believed, will be an enlargement of the brief comment made in Detroit today by a Ford official, to the effect that "we're already living up to the NRA code." The opinion expressed in the statement is known to be shared by the motor magnate.

Fails to Leave Camp.

Ford, expected to come here today from his 16 room "cabin" at the Huron Mountain club, several miles to the northwest, failed to make the journey. Camp stewards had little comment as to his activities, but said he expected to stay at the camp for several days. Messages for the motor magnate and his wife from representatives in Detroit were delivered to the camp, but, so far as was known, Ford was not in communication with any one outside his camp during the day.

The motor magnate in the last two weeks has made several trips to Big Bay, where there is a telephone. Last week he engaged his son, Edsel, vacationing at Seal Harbor, Me., in a lengthy telephone conversation.

In Detroit today officials of the Ford Motor company remained uncommunicative regarding the company's attitude on the NRA code.

"Living Up to It."

One official, however, declining the use of his name, indicated he did not believe anything would be forthcoming in the immediate future, and concluded his remarks with the firm declaration: "We're already living up to the NRA code."

This, observers pointed out, lent weight to the belief that Ford will make his public appeal on the basis that already he pays his 40,000 workers more than the minimum demanded by the code. The Ford minimum now is 50 cents an hour for a 40 hour week, while the code prescribes 43 cents an hour for a 35 hour week.

Provisions of the code calling for collective bargaining for workers and the right of the code-administration board to inspect the books of signatory companies are known to have met with Ford's disapproval. He is not a member of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the administrative body, and has said he objected to competitors inspecting his books.

For these reasons, his associates have indicated, he will "go the NRA one better" in provisions for workers and appeal to the public for support on that plea.

Several officials of the Ford Motor company returned from vacations to Detroit today, but would not comment on company plans. Edsel Ford, president of the Ford company, is expected in Detroit Wednesday.

AWAITS FORD'S ACTION.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administration administrator, said following his speech in Chicago yesterday that he planned no immediate action against Henry Ford if the motor manufacturer decided to remain outside the NRA fold.

"There is nothing for me to do," he said, "no action I can take. I shall wait and see what happens."

However, Gen. Johnson intimated that he believed Ford would do something spectacular along the line of improving labor conditions. No one, he added, was forced to sign a code.

"To get a Blue Eagle," he continued, "certain requirements must be met. Personally, I am going to feel sorry for the fellow who hasn't one, because the public is going to make it hard for him."

Having delivered that message, Gen. Johnson and a party of friends set out for an informal sightseeing tour of the World's Fair last night.

GREAT SOCIAL UPTURN VIA NRA, UNTERMYER VIEW

Will Confound Germ of Communism, He Says.

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—In an address before the Jewish Community Center in Yonkers tonight, Samuel Untermyer declared the national recovery act, if successful, "will mark the beginning of the greatest social and economic revolution of peace times in the history of the modern world."

All men of vision pray and expect it to be successful, Mr. Untermyer said, and "its success will confound and destroy the poisonous germ of communism and will furnish a conclusive answer to the well-intentioned doctrines and ambitions of socialism."

Says Ford Risks Disaster.

Mr. Untermyer declared Henry Ford is risking business disaster by opposing the NRA and refusing to sign the automobile code. He charged that in his opposition to the NRA, Mr. Ford was not concerned with "the revival and ultimate prosperity of his country that is in sore straits," but solely with the "question of the best interests of Henry Ford, regardless of all other considerations."

Mr. Untermyer predicted that under the NRA, "the anti-trust laws will be virtually scrapped, and trade combinations and associations, instead of being proscribed, dissolved and punished as crimes, will come under governmental supervision, with price-fixing and restriction of production, which is the antithesis of the present law and system."

Asks Constructive Action.

He pleaded for broad-minded approach to the experiment. All defects, he said, should be pointed out "in a helpful and sympathetic way and not in a hostile, carping fashion."

Digressing from his discussion of the NRA to a discussion of the German situation, Mr. Untermyer assailed the régime of Adolf Hitler as a recrudescence of barbarism. He said that the boycott of German goods initiated by powerful groups of Jews in this and other countries was "going almost famously," and that it would eventually lead to the downfall of the Hitler government.

British Labor Chief Praises NRA; Assails Dictatorships

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Fascist dictatorships came under the trade union rake at the annual congress of British labor organizations, which opened at Brighton today. Not only Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy were attacked, but efforts by Lord Trenchard, chief commissioner of London police, to reorganize the force on something resembling army lines were made a target for labor assaults.

The onslaught was led by A. G. Walkden in the presidential address opening the week's meeting of the trade union congress. His address contained a bouquet for President Roosevelt in that it justified the contention that the NRA is doing exactly what British trade unions have advocated in the past.

Cites Case of Germany.

"Within the last 12 months we have seen organizations of democracy and institutions of free citizenship smashed to fragments in Germany, and we now know that destruction of freedom and democracy in that country is not an exceptional or isolated incident," Walkden said. "Evidence accumulates to show that in many other countries that are powerful, ruthless influences at work with the same sinister end in view.

"The growth of the movement that calls itself Fascism in Italy and can be identified under other names—and by shirts of different colors—in other countries is a significant fact. It is significant because wherever that movement appears it has the same characteristics and employs the same methods for identical objectives in every case.

Praises Roosevelt's NRA.

"It is anti-parliamentarian and destructive of free institutions. It is fanatically anti-Socialist and hostile to trade unionism. It exploits the patriotism and the enthusiasm of youth and subjects its followers to a militarized form of political organization. Its goal is a political dictatorship culminating in state absolutism which denies to free voluntary organizations the right to exist."

Walkden asserted that President Roosevelt is only taking a leaf out of the British trade union bible.

"The industrial recovery act requires for its fulfillment," he said, "full recognition of trade unionism by employers and the utmost coöperation between unions and employers in carrying out the recovery program. Fundamental to the program is the trade union principle of a shorter working week and higher wages.

SCHALL TO SEEK QUIZ IN REPORTS ON EMPLOYMENT

Senator Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Minn.], a visitor to the World's Fair, declared yesterday that he is skeptical of the figures on reëmployment and business recovery given out at Washington and that in the next congress he will seek a senatorial inquiry.

"At the next session," said Senator Schall, "I intend to introduce a resolution to ascertain who is responsible for the false figures regarding employment gains and increase in trade which are now being given to the public through the $100,000 a day publicity bureau of the national recovery administration. The newspapers have recently exposed this fiction in figures.

"For example, we are told everything is on the upgrade and our factories are turning out almost as much goods as in the 1923-1925 period. When you investigate, you find only 70 per cent of the workers employed at that time are at work now, and we find the pay rolls approximate only 50 per cent of what they were in the 1923-1925 period. By this deduction we find the figures are without doubt incorrect, that the public is being fed falsehoods by government departments, and back of this there must be some specific reason for this attempt to fool our citizens."

ALL CO-OPERATE! WARNS COUNSEL OF RECOVERY ACT

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 4.—Speeding here by airplane from Cttumwa, Ia., where he spoke this afternoon, Donald R. Richberg, general counsel of the NRA, told a Labor day audience tonight that the country's economic and political salvation "depends on the successful expansion of our machineries of voluntary coöperation."

Saying that there could be no distinction "between the labor leader who demands too much and the industrial manager who yields too little," he warned that "we cannot be long tolerant of men who will not cooperate."

Mr. Richberg's address was preceded by a huge Labor day "recovery" parade down Main street, in which hundreds of workers participated.

"Will the dominant men of industry and labor—the generals of long contending armies—be able to serve as civil administrators of a program of peaceful coöperation?" he asked.

Home Owners! ask for a BTU Survey on Heating Costs

LUMBER is measured by the board foot—sugar by the pound—cloth by the yard—but the standard measurement of HEAT is the British Thermal Unit, or B.T.U. Regardless of fuel used, the price you pay to heat your home depends entirely on the number of B.T.U. (heat units) required and how much they cost.

More Heat for Your Money

There are 100,000 B.T.U. in a "Therm", which is the measure by which automatic heating, other than oil, is sold. The lowest household price of such heating, per therm, is 7 cents.

There are 142,000 B.T.U. in a gallon of ordinary (No. 3) fuel oil, costing 5¾ cents. This is at the rate of 4 cents per 100,000 B.T.U., as compared with 7 cents.

Figure it on any basis—by the day, by the year—oil heat is still the lowest cost automatic heat obtainable!

What will it cost to heat your home? What do you get for your money? Certainly, you want automatic heat. But, don't buy it blindly, trusting to the mere unproved claims of those whose primary business is to sell fuel.

Ask for the B.T.U. Survey on Home Heating. Get the facts. Demand proof. You will get it from Oil-O-Matic. Phone and ask our heating engineer to call.

Lowest Price in History—Easy Terms

Oil-O-Matic, due to its low-priced fuel oil, will deliver more B.T.U. (heat units) into your home for each dollar's worth of fuel consumed than any other kind of automatic heating. Today prices are the lowest in history. Oil-O-Matic is sold on generously easy terms. Telephone today—get a B.T.U. Survey on Home Heating Costs. 4,000 GARMENT WORKERS RETURN TO JOBS TODAY Remainder Are Expected Back Tomorrow.

Four thousand members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, approximately half of the workers who have been on strike for two weeks, will return to work this morning.

The remaining 4,000 workers are expected to return to work tomorrow, after a few remaining details of the general agreement which was signed late Sunday night have been settled at a conference between union representatives and garment manufacturing contractors. The conference is scheduled to be held today.

Workers Ratify Agreement.

The back to work announcement was made yesterday at a massmeeting held at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, Van Buren street and Ashland boulevard. By acclamation the meeting ratified the agreement which was signed after a series of conferences lasting seven days and nights.

In a speech Morris Bialis, vice president of the garment workers' union, acclaimed the new era beginning in Chicago in which the garment manufacturing shops will be 100 per cent unionized.

The strike was called when the employés protested that the employers were not abiding by the terms of the NRA code which they had signed. The strike settlement, which was accomplished by the signing of a two year contract, provides for shortening of hours from 44 to 35 a week, increasing wages 15 to 25 per cent and for minimum wages ranging from $14 to $39 a week.

Expect Contractors' O. K.

The employés going back to work today are returning to about 100 shops out of the 187 affected by the strike. These 100 employers are members of the Chicago Association of Dress Manufacturers and the Independent Dress Manufacturers' association.

Mr. Bialis said that the most of those remaining idle are employed by contractors. While these contractors have not yet signed the agreement, union officials said it was almost a certainty that they would do so today.

In an open letter to employers striking members of the millinery workers' union yesterday announced their willingness to abide by the suggestions of Max Meyer, national labor board member sent here by the NRA, in arriving at a speedy settlement of their differences.

They asserted that they stand ready to coöperate with Mr. Meyers as the government's representative and with all constructive elements in the industry in a sincere effort to rehabilitate the Chicago millinery industry and bring peace to their field.

Samuel Laderman of New York, who organized a pocketbook workers' union here a month ago, announced late last night that the organization's 1,000 members, employed in 18 Chicago shops, would go on strike this morning. Laderman said the workers are seeking to uphold their rights under the NRA.

WOMAN DIES IN AUTO CRASH.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Sweeney, 45, of Fort Branch, was killed today at the intersection of highways 42 and 61 when the car driven by her husband, Earl Sweeney, struck that driven by Bernard Salsvi of Chicago. Three other passengers were hurt.

A. F. OF L. PRESIDENT TO INVOKE COURTS FOR LABOR UNDER NRA

Akron, O., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Court action against violators of NRA collective bargaining provisions was threatened today by William Green as he reminded employers that "labor has the right to organize 100 per cent without interference or restraint."

The president of the American Federation of Labor asserted the right to organize is now "part of the law of the land" and announced the organization's intention "to invoke punishment, through proper court procedure, upon those employers who are charged with and found guilty of violating the law."

The threat of prosecution was made in an address at a Labor day meeting sponsored by the Akron Central Labor union. Earlier Green had commented informally on a demand made by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, for recognition of the "open shop."

"The statement made by Mr. Harriman," Green said, "simply reflects the traditional attitude which the chamber of commerce and manufacturers always have had."

ROOSEVELT DUE BACK TODAY TO PUSH PROGRAM

Delay on Coal Code One of His Problems.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Labor day in the Capital finds the President yachting up the Potomac, Washington bound; Gen. Johnson making a speech in Chicago; Secretary Ickes taking his first day off in months; Secretary Wallace telling the farmers of New York state all about the Agricultural Adjustment corporation, and the reporters of Washington, getting a break for once, have time to think about what the first six months of the new deal, marked off today, have brought to the United States.

When the President returns to the White House tomorrow, after topping off his fortnight's holiday with a sea cruise aboard the Astor yacht Nourmahl, he will find one vexatious problem awaiting his immediate hand.

Appears Far from Solution.

That is the code for the soft coal industry. Wrangles, misunderstandings, empty threats by Gen. Johnson to force action, have marked the administration of the code thus far, and although the NRA chief promised the President he would have the document ready for the Roosevelt signature upon his return, the situation is seemingly as deeply involved as before the President went away.

Some of the leading operators have refused to extend formal recognition to the United Mine Workers, and are insisting upon language in the code to protect their rights to operate on an open shop basis.

The general opinion hereabouts is that President Roosevelt must bring all his force and persuasion into play before the coal code can be completed and there is some thought that he may have to take drastic action and enforce an arbitrary code upon the industry.

Await Action of Ford.

One other difficulty which is freighted with much significance, is the attitude which Henry Ford has taken to the automobile code. Although Mr. Ford has refused to make known any position, and has until the deadline, tomorrow, to make up his mind whether he wants to operate under the code or not, it has been reported that he might stand and fight against the boycott to be directed by Gen. Johnson. The President may take a hand in the Ford case also, recognizing in the defiance of such a large manufacturer, if he does show defiance, a deleterious effect on other manufacturers confronted with the necessity of rearranging their organizations to fit into codes.

Except for these major obstacles the entire Roosevelt emergency program for whipping the depression may be said to be practically fully under way, and the President and his advisors have shown themselves greatly confident that the country has been put on the high road to better days, and that it will not falter and slip back again.

The changes wrought in the American government in the last half year have no counterpart since the first revolution; since '76. When the second revolution was ushered in, on March 4, 1933, the country was at its lowest ebb. Every bank was closed. Twelve to fourteen million workers were jobless. Business was standing still.

Today there is a wealth of activity, and most signs are generally interpreted as pointing to a defeat of the depression. Steel production has held strong, rising during July to equal the normal years of 1923-'25, and general industrial production, both manufacturing and mining, has risen from the sag of 60 per cent of normal last March to 98 per cent of normal in July.

Employment on Increase.

Employment has shown encouraging increases, rising from a low of 57 per cent in March to 70 per cent in July, and pay rolls rose from 37 per cent to 50.

Because no figures showing the trends for these indices of business during August are yet available and because August is always a dubious month for business activity, great interest has been shown and some apprehension felt, as to what those figures will show.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, reported through the navy department that the Roosevelt party had gone ashore late this afternoon from a temporary anchorage off Stratford Cliffs, Va., for a visit to the birthplace of George Washington, at Wakefield.

The Nourmahal later proceeded farther up the Potomac to spend the night near Quantico, Va. Early said it was expected the party would dock at the navy yard here about noon tomorrow.

ROOSEVELT CATCHES LARGE SEA TURTLE; SOUP GOES ON MENU

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, aboard the luxurious Astor yacht, Nourmahal, headed into a Potomac river anchorage not far from the capital tonight, planning a final night afloat before returning to the White House early tomorrow afternoon.

In celebration of the last full day of his yachting cruise, the President early today hooked a monster sea turtle, weighing more than 100 pounds. The prize was distributed through the Nourmahal's convoys for turtle soup and steaks.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, reported through the navy department that the Roosevelt party had gone ashore late this afternoon from a temporary anchorage off Stratford Cliffs, Va., for a visit to the birthplace of George Washington, at Wakefield.

NRA FILM CODE ASSERTED BLOW AT INDEPENDENTS

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Warning that they may find themselves out of jobs in two weeks was sent out today by the Independent Motion Picture Producers' association to a dozen workers in independent producing studios and theaters.

Jack Hess, who made the announcement, said the motion picture code adopted by Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America [Will Hays' organization] would prohibit independent theaters from showing double features, and that this prohibition would greatly reduce production and distribution of independent films.

Hess asserted thirteen independent producers in Hollywood, employing sixteen hundred persons, sixty-five independent exchanges and thousands of independent theaters throughout the country, would be affected. He said the closing of the smaller independent theaters to the larger film interests' action in backing the NRA code in its present form.

Son of H. L. Roosevelt Arrested on Auto Charge

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—William Morrow L. Roosevelt of Whitemarsh, son of Henry L. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, was arrested early today in lower Merion charged with hit and run driving and assault and battery by automobile. He was released in $500 bail to appear at a further hearing on Monday. A companion, Avery Clark, 30 years old, of Chestnut Hill was fined $18.50 on a charge of disorderly conduct following a street corner fracas in Bryn Mawr.

GERMANY SEEKS TO SETTLE ALL JEWS IN ONE LAND

Hitler Aid Argues They Are Alien Race.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—Germany must begin international negotiations to help find and set aside a new country, larger than Palestine, to settle Jews from all parts of the world. This is the main point in a new report on the Jewish problem under discussion in official circles in Germany.

"The Jewish problem can and must be settled only by state measures and the only possible goal is a systematic emigration of all Jews from Germany," one of Chancellor Hitler's experts contends.

He is opposed to the idea of putting Jews together in special settlements in Germany as under a "Judenvogt," or Jew warden, the way it was in the middle ages.

"Fight Against Bolshevism."

"This would anchor the Jews in Germany and create a group which might claim the rights of national minorities," Hitler's aid continued. "It would be political insanity to permit the domestic problem of what to do with the Jews become an international one by coupling it with entanglements of international law.

"It is of interest to the whole world that the Jewish problem should be settled once and for all, since Jews will remain centers of unrest, constantly creating secret societies which tend toward bolshevism. To scatter the Jews in all directions will not help. It is best to afford them the possibility of forming a nation, settled in one country. Then they will no longer wander restlessly through the world.

"We want to erect our German state without the Jews. For us they remain aliens and they can hold no position protected by law. Thus the Jew shall be compelled to take his staff for the last time and finally change it into an axe and spade."

Half-Jews Affected.

These are a few of the chief paragraphs of the report to the government. It goes further. In a special chapter it deals with the "necessity of including the half-Jews or quarter blooded Jews in all measures the government will take to restrict the rights of Jews and their greed in getting everything for themselves."

Mixed marriages are to be forbidden by law, but the report insists this will not be sufficient.

"Public branding" and education of the masses to the danger of "mixing races," meaning Jews and Aryans, in Germany are to be brought into play.

New mixed marriages will be few, the expert argues, but he sees "marriages between quarter Jews and Aryan Germans as a distinct danger to the German race." He says that unless something is done here Jewish blood will be absorbed by the German race.

"Only people without a drop of Jewish blood are Aryans," he insists.

The report further attacks German aristocracy for mixing with Jews and spurning "healthy German peasant blood. Aristocracy must not be astonished to see its influence dimmed through marriages with non-Aryans."

Urges Wholesale Exile.

Throwbacks as discovered in the study of heredity induce the racial expert to demand that all people with only a fraction of Jewish blood should, for the good of the race, be moved out of Germany. This would not be so great a loss, he explains, because "only people from the so-called intellectual classes intermarried. Long ago, they lost their title to leadership. Degenerate noblemen, artists, politicians, diplomats and officers married Jewesses but the truly healthy strata of German society, bourgeois and farmers, have no Jewish blood. They represent the real force of the nation and everything depends upon them."

He calculates that 1,800,000 persons should leave Germany to achieve his ideal. This number includes 600,000 Jews, 600,000 Jews who adopted the Christian faith, and an approximate 600,000 descendants of mixed marriages.

To trace persons with Jewish ancestors, it will not be necessary to study genealogies further back than the year 1800 because before that date marriages between Christians and Jews were not allowed in Germany, the expert points out.

Few Exceptions Made.

A few exceptions will be made for men and women of Jewish descent, but only for a single individual at a time. Their families, the report says, are to be submitted to severe tests since it is a well known fact that "sons of specially brilliant parents often degenerate" and should therefore be relegated to the mysterious country which is to harbor "the Jewish nation" Germany's new racial experts want to help resurrect.

Madagascar is the newest country being discussed in Jewish circles in Germany at present.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

NUREMBERG, Sept. 4.—The great rally of the National Socialist party, concluded last night, was followed by a new boycott on several Jewish stores in Nuremberg today. Brown shirts and also Nazis in civil clothes and women stood before their doors and warned the people the shop in question was Jewish in so impressive a manner no one dared to go inside. One store had to shut up for several hours.

Force was employed on several occasions to keep shoppers from the stores. In some cases a Nazi in plain clothes or a Nazi woman was posted before the door and kept would-be purchasers in conversation until brown shirts had crowded around.

Careful observation has proved the average Nuremberg citizen has no anti-Semitic prejudices and desires to patronize Jewish stores, but the amount of intimidation in the city, already great before the rally, has increased enormously. The streets are still packed with brown shirts, although the Nazi congress is over.

SMOKER DOZES, DIES OF BURNS.

VERMONT VOTES ON REPEAL TODAY —AVOID BOASTS

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 4.—(AP)—With the issue in doubt and the weather and size of the vote unknown factors, Vermont tomorrow will ballot to repeal or retain the 18th amendment.

The weather was expected to play a more important part than usual in elections. Repeal forces felt tonight that the state would be the 25th to approve the 21st amendment, if rain kept down the rural vote. Those favoring retention of the dry law admitted their strength was in the smaller communities, while the repealists were looking for the city vote in western Vermont to swing the result in their favor.

The anti-drys believe stormy weather will have little effect on the balloting in larger communities. No extravagant claims have been made by either side.

The voters will elect fourteen delegates to a convention to be held between twenty and thirty days after the election. The convention will officially place on record the state's decision on prohibition. The two slates of fourteen candidates each are pledged one for and the other against repeal.

Vermonters will have to be content with 3.2 per cent beer for some time, regardless of the fate of the amendment in the nation at large. The state is under a prohibition enforcement law passed by the legislature after the 18th amendment and the Volstead act became law. An act of the state legislature would be necessary to amend the law and the body does not meet again until 1935.

10 PERSONS RESCUED FROM LAUNCH WHEN IT CRASHES ON PILE

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Ten persons were rescued from the excursion launch Interurban on Paw Paw lake north of here today when the boat struck a hidden piling and threatened to sink. An outboard motorboat piloted by Jack Goldman, 5000 East End avenue, Chicago, a high school student, was the first to reach the scene several hundred yards off shore and took five passengers from the launch.

Five Chicagoans were taken from the boat. They were Attorney Horace S. Gurvey, 2721 Leland avenue; his wife and their young son, Roy; J. C. Rosenberg, 3610 Wilson avenue, and his wife.

When the launch struck, the passengers donned life preservers, but help came promptly.

ATLANTIC SAFE IN PORT AFTER HOURS ON SHOAL

Mackinac Island, Mich., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—After being aground for more than twelve hours on a shoal off Bois Blanc island, in Lake Huron, the luxurious three-masted schooner Atlantic, owned by Erwin Uihlein, president of the Schlitz Brewing company of Milwaukee, reached this port late this morning.

The Atlantic, valued at half a million dollars, was pulled from the bar on the third attempt early this morning by the 130 foot yacht Seaforth, owned by Herman Falk, Milwaukee sportsman. The schooner went aground in a deep fog at 4:30 yesterday morning.

Owner Uihlein and two guests, Lewis R. Bunde, a stock broker, and A. O. Hansen, an architect, both of Milwaukee, were aboard. The schooner carried a crew of five.

Coast guard picket boats sped to the aid of the Atlantic shortly after she went aground, one of them from the Mackinac Island station and another from Bois Blanc.

Austrian Border Guard Huts Dynamited; Nazis Blamed

VIENNA, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Two border guard huts on the Austro-German boundary west of Rohrbach were dynamited today by a number of unidentified persons. The dynamiters were presumed by the authorities to be Austrian Nazis on their way across the border to Germany. In Salzburg the citizenship of twelve persons, including an army captain and a member of the federal council, was revoked because of their Nazi activities.

TROPICAL STORM STRIKES TEXAS; 100 MILE GALE

Florida Is Buffeted by Other Winds.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 5 [Tuesday].—(AP)—A tropical hurricane of great intensity swooped down on Brownsville and the lower Rio Grande valley late last night, uprooting trees, damaging homes, and severing all communications between that area and the outer world.

Unofficial reports from nearby towns placed the velocity of the wind at 100 miles an hour. The storm, roaring across the rich winter garden country, damaged citrus groves and other valuable crops.

Even at Corpus Christi, roughly 300 miles north of the valley, the force of the storm was felt. In a six minute period the wind jumped from a velocity of 40 miles an hour to 54 and the lights were "blinking."

No Deaths Reported.

No reports of death were received, however. Storm warnings were out many hours before arrival of the tropical terror.

"It is storming terribly here," the chief telephone operator at Harlingen reported at 11:40 p. m. "And I don't know what has happened to them down at Brownsville."

Brownsville is about 30 miles from Harlingen.

Water was pouring through some of the principal business streets of Corpus Christi, but all the residents had fled to a low bluff separating the city of 35,000 population. Three boats were lost in the storm.

Four persons were believed to be in danger of death on the craft, Japonica, which had been tied to the end of the Corpus Christi pleasure pier. About 150 feet of the pier was washed away.

Roofs Blown Away.

Persons in the towns between Corpus Christi and Brownsville huddled close in barricaded buildings and listened to the roar of the gale.

In Raymondville, residents could not venture from their refuge but they could see roofs ripped from supports and tumbled in the streets. All lights there had been out since 7 p. m.

The storm struck Texas after sweeping across the gulf of Mexico. It had left a toll of more than 100 dead in Cuba and the eastern coast of Florida had been buffeted.

Striking at Lake Worth, south of Palm Beach, the hurricane ripped through the south central interior of Florida and left a trail of more than a million dollars' property damage and one known fatality. Citrus growers estimated 75 to 80 per cent of their crops was destroyed.

Orlando, Lakeland, Sarasota, Bradenton, Fort Myers, Miami, West Palm Beach, and Fort Lauderdale, with their surrounding areas, were cut off from communication with each other or the outside, except by radio.

A 200 mile strip along the Texas coast received weather bureau advices to take all precautions with life and property as a 90 mile an hour wind struck Padre island, 20 miles north of Brownsville, at the southernmost tip of Texas.

Declares Public Emergency.

A public emergency was declared at Corpus Christi by Mayor William Shaffer. Residents were ordered to remain on high ground and forbidden entrance without a pass to the business district.

Residents of the area on which the storm was driving fled, causing traffic jams on the avenues to safety. Relief agencies stood by, ready to offer succor to storm victims.

The town of Freeport, with a population of about 3,000, had been virtually evacuated by all save the coast guard crew. Communication lines to the city failed.

Similar conditions prevailed at Velasco, another coast town of about 1,200 population. At 4 p. m. the wind there had a velocity of 65 miles an hour and the tide was eight feet. The coast guard moved families from homes in lowlands.

JUDGE R. L. HENRY AND PARTY HURT IN CRASH ABROAD

Dispatches from Munich yesterday stated that Judge Robert Llewellyn Henry, formerly of Chicago, his wife, Elaine, and two sons were injured in an automobile accident near Weilheim, Bavaria. Another member of their party, Miss Vivian Jennings-Bramley, a British subject, also was hurt.

Judge Henry, who is 50 years old, was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1902. For twelve years he has been a judge of the mixed court at Alexandria, Egypt. Last summer he was a visitor in Chicago and taught in a six weeks' course in law at the University of Chicago.

According to the report from Germany, Judge Henry suffered a broken shoulder. Mrs. Henry and Miss Jennings-Bramley sustained fractured spines. Their condition is critical. The judge's sons, Alvan, 22 years old, and McClelland, 14 years old, were only slightly injured. The report said Judge Henry drove over an embankment at a corner at 60 miles an hour.

U. S. FACES NEW ROW WITH JAPAN OVER AIR SERVICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 4.—Harold M. Bixby of St. Louis, representative of the Pan-American airways, said today he has recommended the inauguration of regular mail and passenger service immediately between Shanghai, Hongkong, and Manila. Bixby returned here today after a survey flight to the Philippines with three other Pan-American flyers.

Bixby said he was unaware of any Japanese protests regarding the establishment of the new service. He said that if a protest is made it will be referred to the home office.

In Japanese military circles here last week it was stated that Japan would invoke the Sino-Japanese treaty of 1915 (the famed twenty-one demands) which forbids China to grant concessions on the coast of Fukien province to any foreign interest without Japan's consent. Fukien province is located opposite Formosa.

HORNER CONFERS TODAY ON EXTRA RELIEF SESSION

Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, members of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission and leaders of the legislature will meet this afternoon to discuss the possibility of calling a special session of the legislature to provide means of raising a deficit of $12,400,000 in relief funds which will accumulate by the end of the year.

The meeting place had not been decided last night, but it will probably be held in some loop hotel. The governor spent yesterday conferring with Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission; Director of Finance Joseph J. Rice, and other officials. In the evening he paid a short visit to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, who spoke at the World's Fair yesterday.

Since a special session of the assembly has been inevitable, for the purpose of passing laws governing the manufacture and sale of hard liquors, in anticipation of repeal by Nov. 7, it was considered practically certain that the relief question would be dealt with at the same time the liquor laws were drawn. The commission studying that problem is expected to report to the governor this month.

LINDBERGHS VISIT SWEDEN; INVITED BY CROWN PRINCE

Will Remain a Week to Study Winter Flying.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Making his first visit of any length to the land of his grandfather's birth at the invitation of the crown prince of Sweden, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, accompanied by his wife, arrived at Hagernas naval air base outside Stockholm today.

He is scheduled to remain in Sweden a week to study winter and night flying in this country.

The visit was not announced to the general public and only a few newspapermen and the official welcoming committee were present when the colonel brought his plane down.

Taken On Sightseeing Tour.

After brief handshaking and presentation of flowers to the flyers, their baggage was inspected and stamped in the regular fashion. They were escorted on a brief sightseeing tour before being taken to the Royal Automobile club, where they will reside.

(It was the second visit of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh to Sweden since arriving in Denmark. On Aug. 31 they crossed by ferry to Helsingborg and were guests of the Swedish crown prince and princess at their summer residence, Soficro palace.)

Included in the group that greeted the pair inside the carefully guarded naval enclosure were Gen. Eric Virgin, chief of the Swedish air ministry; Laurence Steinhardt, American minister to Sweden, and other members of the American legation, and Capt. Carl Florman, chief of the Swedish aerotransport.

Protected from Public.

Col. Lindbergh has asked that he be permitted to live quietly here while conferring on aeronautical problems, and the crown prince has assigned him an adjutant to protect him from the public.

It is assumed that Lindbergh may now avail himself of an opportunity to visit Smedstorp, a little community of 300 persons in southern Sweden where his grandfather, Klas Manson, lived before moving to America, and where two cousins, Franz Lindbergh and Bertha Persson, now reside.

He paid an aerial tribute to the old homestead where his grandfather was born when passing over the village on the way here. The flyer dipped the plane before proceeding northward.

Tonight he and Mrs. Lindbergh were entertained at the home of Minister Steinhardt.

DRESSES STOLEN FROM AUTO.

Fifty-nine dresses, valued at $700, were stolen yesterday from the automobile of W. G. Richardson, a salesman, while the car was parked in front of the Cedal hotel, 1118 North State street.

MOB AT DALLAS JAIL SEEKS TWO SLAYERS OF GIRL

Call Police Reserves; Second Mob Formed.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Police reserves were called out shortly after 2 p. m. today as a menacing mob gathered at the Dallas county jail, apparently bent upon seizing Thurman and Bluitt Burkley, addmitted Negro killers of Katheryn Prince, and lynching them.

The "mob doors" leading to the jail office on the ground floor were closed for the first time in several years and a heavy guard prepared to resist any attempt of the growing crowd to take the alleged killers.

About the same time word came from Mesquite, the rural community near Dallas where Miss Prince lived, that another mob was gathering to reenforce the crowd at the jail here.

The absence of deputy sheriffs, who had gone out in search of Harvey Bailey, Kansas City killer, was believed by officers to have encouraged the mob against the Negro killers. Bailey had escaped from the jail at breakfast time and all available officers were engaged in the search for him.

District Judge Grover Adams had considered it too dangerous under the circumstances to arraign the Burkley brothers in his court here this morning, as he originally had planned.

The two Negroes were indicted last Friday for the killing of Miss Prince, 19, after they had confessed to a similar attack and the killing of Abe Schreiber and his companion. Miss Pauline Corman, 17, on a lonely road

AUTO ENGINEERS WIND UP 8 DAY CONGRESS HERE

The Society of Automotive Engineers yesterday concluded its eight day international congress at the Palmer house. According to Harold Nutt, chairman of the Chicago section, more than 1,000 delegates from all over the world attended. In addition to lectures and illustrated talks by prominent engineers in every branch of the automotive field special engineering exhibits were shown.

Because of the growing importance of aeronautics and flying, the sessions of the last four days of the congress dealt with the development of aircraft. P. G. Johnson, president of United Air lines and Boeing Airplane company, and Dr. Kurt Schnauffer, research engineer of the Experimental Institution for Aviation, were among the speakers at the final session yesterday.

Schools in Los Angeles Still Bear Quake Marks

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Crippled facilities will greet the 300,000 public school children of Los Angeles when they return to classrooms next Monday, with many of the schools on half day sessions. The havoc created by the earthquake of last March 10 is responsible, many schools being wholly or partly closed up, or already dismantled, awaiting replacement. Hundreds of bungalows have been erected to provide temporary classroom accommodations.

When she was a year old she was crippled by infantile paralysis, last spring she had an operation. For days before the contest she practiced walking so that she could walk across the stage on crutches and stand without them, holding to the edge of a desk.

AVOID THE DANGER OF CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Overcomes This Condition Safely and Pleasantly

The first signs of constipation may be headaches, tired feelings, sallow complexions, sleeplessness, loss of appetite. If neglected, constipation may seriously impair health.

Today, you can banish constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action similar to leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, and gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of common constipation. If not relieved this way see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use it in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HALT PAYLESS FURLOUGHS FOR POSTAL CLERKS

2,000 at Convention Here Cheer Announcement.

Some 2,000 delegates and visitors at the National Federation of Post Office Clerks' convention in the Palmer house, were cheered yesterday by the announcement of First Assistant Postmaster General Joseph C. O'Mahoney that payless furloughs are to be discontinued.

Mr. O'Mahoney's announcement, made in his address at the opening of the six day convention, coincided with that of Postmaster General James A. Farley in Atlantic City. Under the payless furlough economy plan, effective July 1, the postal employés were to take 9 days leave without pay each quarter, but beginning Oct. 1, there will be no more payless furloughs.

Part of Economy Plan.

"It was the belief of the administration that the furloughs would be a necessary part of the economy plan adopted to place the post office department on a paying basis," said Mr. O'Mahoney. "However, the nine day furloughs which will have been taken by the end of this quarter, Sept 30, are expected to be sufficient."

The furlough plan was calculated to save the government about $24,000,000 during the 1934 fiscal year, but increases in postal revenues made it possible to discontinue the plan, according to Mr. O'Mahoney. The plan already has saved about $9,000,000, he said.

Welcomed by Mayor Kelly.

The postal clerks were welcomed by Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen. Meeting in conjunction with the clerks are several hundred members of the National Federation of Rural Mail Carriers.

Resolutions attacking the congressional franking privilege as a needless and wasteful practice are to be offered before the clerks' convention.

There also will be resolutions favoring a 30 hour week, restoration of the 15 per cent pay cut, sale of beer in post office cafeterias, and a return to the 2 cent rate on first class mail throughout the country. There also will be resolutions attacking "snooping" on the part of post office inspectors.

Woman Drowns at Lincoln Park; Police Seek Identity

Lincoln Park police last night were seeking the identity of a woman about 55 years old whose body was taken from the lake at the foot of Belden avenue yesterday. FRANCE FORBIDS TRAVEL ABOARD GERMAN LINERS

Presses Shipping War Against Berlin.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—France is waging a shipping war on Germany as a reprisal for the recent German plan to keep Germans from patronizing foreign lines despite an official announcement in Berlin ten days ago that Germany was abandoning the project.

American tourists in Paris who crossed the Atlantic on French ships with so-called "open" return tickets, entitling them to return on vessels of any line in the North Atlantic conference, are being informed by French line offices that tickets purchased at the company's headquarters in New York are not valid for German liners.

A number of Americans who crossed on the French liner Champlain and wished to return on the North German Lloyd liner Bremen were told that their tickets could be transferred to British or other ships, but not to German vessels.

French officials explained that this procedure was begun recently in retaliation against German restrictions on foreign ship lines, but why it is still effective is a mystery.

The North German Lloyd offices in Paris assured this correspondent that Germany no longer imposes any restrictions on persons taking passage in Germany on foreign ships and German shipping circles are at a loss to account for the French action.

The Nazi government's decree, promulgated a month ago, stated that no German could buy transportation on a foreign line for more than 200 marks —about $85—without special permission. This was equivalent to barring travel by Germans on foreign ships, first, because passage on big liners costs more than $65, and, second, a German admittedly might "put himself on the spot" if he tried to get permission.

The decree was rescinded after Great Britain filed a protest and German shippers themselves, fearing reprisals, opposed it.

The French admit that the German order has been "modified," but they apparently fear there is a "joker" somewhere and that business of foreign ship lines in Germany is still jeopardized. The French express a hope that the conflict will soon be settled satisfactorily, but do not indicate what steps, if any, are being taken.

ARREST DOCTOR TESTING PISTOL ON BACK PORCH

Dr. Clifford E. Steckbauer, 35 years old, an ear, eye, nose and throat specialist with offices at 25 East Washington street and at 743 East 75th street, will be arraigned in the South Chicago court this morning on a charge of discharging firearms within the city limits.

He was arrested at 1 a. m. yesterday when neighbors complained he was firing a revolver from the back porch of his home at 1903 East 73d street. Dr. Steckbauer, who formerly was an assistant professor at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, was held for an hour until bail was provided by a friend.

"I had had a few drinks," said Dr. Steckbauer, "and I was merely testing a revolver I had recently purchased for protection against burglars."

Child Dies in Crash.

A girl was killed and five other persons were injured in a triple smashup last night between a bus and two passenger cars in Route 4, near the Peabody farm, north of Joliet, in Will county. The girl was Alice Kalinowski, 10 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kalinowski, farmers near the Peabody place.

She and her brother, Stanley, 8 years old, were being driven home by their uncle, Stanley Murowski, 45, of 2875 Archer avenue. In the car also were Robert Murowski, 9, and Bernice Murowski, 16, children of Stanley Murowski. As Murowski made a left turn into the Kalinowski farm, his car was hit by a Zoller motor bus carrying twenty-five passengers en route from Chicago to Peoria. The driver was Edward Zoller of Peoria.

The bus hurled the Murowski automobile into the path of a machine driven by William Aaron of Kenosha. The Kalinowski girl was killed outright. Murowski suffered a broken leg. His son, Robert, received a skull fracture. Stanley Kalinowski suffered internal injuries. The Murowski girl was cut about the face. Troy Roberts of Kenosha, riding in Aaron's car, suffered a leg fracture. No one in the bus was hurt.

..A new Standard by which you may judge Beer of today

EXACTLY what you have searched for in the many beers you've tried... AGE! Month after month, the demand for dark beer has become increasingly more insistent. While many delivered beer that was dark, Chicago's largest brewery had dark beer, yet turned back orders, sacrificed early profits . . . Prima dark was aging . . . aging like no other domestic beer has been aged.

The time had come for a dark beer of rare excellence, costlier in preparation, ripened to greater perfection, brewed to a character that would definitely perpetuate Prima's reputation for famous "darks" of years ago. Such a beer could not be colored dark or flavored. It had to be brewed dark from roasted malt . . . and a genuine full-bodied natural flavor had to be developed in masterful brewing.

If you've failed to enthuse over dark beers before, taste the new Prima dark. It is winning favor like no modern beer has. You may enjoy it on draught or in bottles. Ask for a glass of Prima Dark draught beer.

One hundred fast motor trucks are making prompt case deliveries in Chicago and suburbs. Try a few bottles at your dealer's; if your dealer cannot supply you, telephone the brewery, MOHawk 2300.

FALL OF DOLLAR HITS AMERICANS LIVING IN CHINA

Increases Cost of Living by 40 Per Cent.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 4.—Numerous Americans who came to China a few years ago and established residences here in order to take advantage of low living costs due to the depressed value of the Chinese silver dollar, are now in a serious predicament. The Chinese dollar is no longer "cheap" in relation to United States currency.

Up to a few months ago an American could take his "gold" dollar to a Chinese bank and have them exchanged for Chinese silver dollars at a rate of 5 or 5¼ Chinese dollars for one American dollar.

Today the rate fluctuates around 3 Chinese dollars for one American dollar and it is rumored that the Chinese dollar may go back to the old exchange rate of two for one American dollar.

Army and Navy Feel Pinch.

The sudden change in the exchange rate has created havoc in the various American communities in China. Those who feel the pinch include local American employés of home concerns which pay salaries in American currency. The American military and naval forces stationed along the China coast and hundreds of missionaries scattered over the country, whose incomes normally are limited but who in recent years have suffered still further cuts due to a falling off in contributions from the homeland. For these Americans the fall in the value of the dollar has amounted to a 40 per cent increase in living costs.

The American commercial community in Shanghai, which includes several hundred employés of home firms engaged in selling American products, has been particularly badly hit because the sudden jump in the price of silver came immediately following drastic cuts in salaries necessitated by the depression at home. So long as Chinese dollars were depressed to a point where one could obtain five of them for an American dollar, the American salesman for automobiles, kerosene, gasoline, California fruits, shoe polish or hair tonic could take a cut in pay from the home office and still smile. But when the cut in salary from home was followed shortly afterward by an increase in the value of the Chinese dollar the situation became serious. In many cases it amounted to a reduction in income exceeding 50 per cent and in some cases to the writer's knowledge a reduction of 75 per cent.

Figures are Cited.

Some idea of the predicament of the American community at Shanghai may be gained from the following minimum figures covering costs per month of room and food at various local hotels and apartment hotels. The figures are expressed in American money at present exchange rates and before the slump:

Name of hotel or apt.—	Present rate.	Before increase.
Cathay hotel	$175	$100
Cathay Mansion	120	70
Astor hotel	100	60
China United Apartments	150	90
American club	70	40
Foreign Y. M. C. A.	60	30
Navy Y. M. C. A.	45	25

For man and wife the prices in the hotels and apartment hotels with central dining rooms would be not quite double those quoted for a single person. As for those families with children the cost varies with the localities, the minimum probably being 450 Chinese dollars at the present time, which works out at about $150 in American money. Before the rise in silver prices the cost would have been only $90 in United States currency.

The local American with wife and three children, for example, would have difficulty in getting along on much less than 850 Chinese dollars a month. This would work out at present rates of exchange at $283 a month in American money. A few months ago it would have been $170.

No one disputes the fact that an enhanced value of silver, upon which China's currency is based, would tremendously increase China's purchasing power in the American market. Also, it would bring prosperity in certain western states where silver mining is an important industry. But this obviously brings little joy to Americans here who have had their incomes slashed.

ENGLAND HIT BY DROUGHT; WATER SOLD BY BUCKETS

Wide Area Parched After Dry Summer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—A drought, actual if unofficial, is afflicting wide sections of Great Britain where the water shortage has become a grave problem.

The dryest summer in 20 years has parched southeastern England, created a severe water shortage, reduced milk yields due to poor pasturage, cut potato, beet and turnip crops, and in some cases has given hints of causing epidemics unless injunctions by health authorities to boil all drinking water are observed.

Water 2 Cents a Bucket.

The barest necessities are at a premium in many villages. Water is selling at two cents a bucket and baths in wide sections of East Anglia are possible only when obliging neighbors who have dug deep wells are willing to accommodate their neighbors.

All grass is parched, trees are shorn of leaves. There also is a danger of fire. The only persons to benefit are wheat farmers who have a dry season for their harvest. Most of the sheaves are already stacked although ordinarily this is not completed for another month.

Into some districts water is being conveyed by rail. In Essex, farmers walk miles with a pair of pails on a pole across their shoulders to the few ponds still in existence.

In Northumberland the reservoir supplying Newcastle and other important cities has fallen to the lowest level recorded since it was built in 1906. A submerged road bridge and hunting lodge have become visible. Health officers are warning all users of this water to boil it before drinking.

Carry Water to Cattle.

A minor epidemic has already broken out in Chester-le street in Durham. A plague of enteritis exists. Health officers who have sampled the water assert there is no need for general alarm but advised that all precautions be taken.

At Fishlake and Skyehouse near Doncaster all owners of water supplies are sharing their possessions with others. Water has to be carried to cattle and the River Don is at the lowest level in 40 years.

Farmers in many sections are hauling water for their stock. In the Bakewell district of Derbyshire water must be turned off between 9 p. m. and 6 a. m. At Winston near Mortlock each family is rationed four buckets daily, which are avcailable at the village pump only for an hour and one-half after 9 a. m.

Japan to Demand Arms Equality at Naval Parley

TOKIO, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Uchida said today Japan will stick to an "iron principle" of armament equality in the naval conference scheduled for 1935, but will avoid taking positive steps aiming at the abrogation of the Washington and London naval treaties. He added that the foreign office would name a commission to make necessary preparations for the parley.

RENEW LAMSON WIFE MURDER TRIAL TODAY

San Jose, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP)—After a three day court holiday, David A. Lamson will start his defense tomorrow against the charge that he beat his pretty wife, Allene, to death with an iron pipe at their Stanford campus home last Memorial day.

Attorneys of the 31 year old university press representative will depend largely on scientific testimony to show that Mrs. Lamson fell to her death in the bathroom of the campus home.

E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley, Cal., criminologist, will be a Lamson witness. Heinrich said he found sufficient evidence "to show she struck her head against the wash basin, causing her death."

The defense also will call witnesses to testify that Lamson's relations with Mrs. Sara M. Kelley, Sacramento divorcée, were purely of a business nature.

SEIZE 2 RAPISTS WHO KIDNAPED GIRL; CONFESS

Two men were held by Woodlawn police last night as alleged rapists. They are William Parks, 50 years old, of Palo Alto, Cal., and John Bega, 26, of 7209 Greenwood avenue. Police said they have confessed. The complainant is Miss Kathleen Kelly, 26, a maid employed at 1500 Farwell avenue.

Miss Kelly appeared at the Woodlawn station yesterday noon. She told a story of being forced into a car at 62d street and Drexel avenue some ten hours before, and being driven about 50 miles south where she was attacked and robbed of $5. She hitch-hiked back home.

She said the car bore a California license. From her descriptions of the two men, Sergt. Fred Crowley and his squad later arrested Bega and Parks at 62d street and Dorchester avenue.

CITY FIREMAN SHOT.

Thomas McCarthy, 26 years old, 10251 Hoxie avenue, a city fireman attached to Squad 5, was taken to the South Chicago hospital last night with a bullet wound in the left leg. He said he was without reason shot by a Mexican.

SAYS HARVARD TRAINS MORONS WHILE CLOSING DOORS TO U. S. WOMEN

Denver, Colo., Sept. 4.—(AP)—In a sermon preached at his wife's funeral services here today, Dr. Duren J. H. Ward, 84, educator scientist and author, denounced "society and an educational system which spends millions annually trying to inform average and moron minds while neglecting supernormal youths."

Standing beside his wife's casket, Dr. Ward said "Harvard, my own Alma Mater, is an example of such conscienceless waste. It shuts its doors to brilliant girls while welcoming all sorts of rich morons to its arms."

On her death bed, Mrs. Ward made the arrangements for her funeral. She selected the music and asked that excerpts from her writings be a part of the rites.

Dr. Ward, years ago lecturer on philosophy and anthropolgy at Harvard, told how Harvard had refused to accept his wife as a student and said he had waited 28 years "to avenge the frustrations and defeats by an educational system of what should have been a splendid life."

CONTRACT SIGNED FOR ALL YEAR ZEP ROUTE TO BRAZIL

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 4.—All year round air service between Germany and South America will be initiated by Luftschiffbau next year.

This has long been the pet scheme of Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, in furtherance of which he made several long stays at Rio de Janiero recently to negotiate with the Brazilian government. The arrangement carried through by him has now been formally confirmed. The government of Brazil to help this service will advance to Luftschiffbau a loan of 3 million marks, repayable in thirty years.

SLEEP SICKNESS VICTIMS GIVEN SPECIAL WARD

St. Louis, Sept. 4.—(AP)—A new ward of fifty beds was opened in the isolation hospital today to care for the growing number of sleeping sickness sufferers in the St. Louis area.

The death list reaches 71 today and the number of reported patients was well over 480, the exact number being unavailable because of lack of compilation yesterday and today, two holidays.

Ninety sleeping sickness patients were receiving treatment at the isolation hospital. The emergency has required a greatly augmented staff of nurses and physicians.

Of the 144 encephalitis patients treated there, the ninety remain, eighteen have died and 36 have been discharged, most of them with no lingering effects of the disease.

Camels don't interfere with healthy nerves, and they keep right on tasting good even when I go in for smoking in a big way."

●RIGHT—SHE TAKES NO CHANCES with her nerves. "I've tried most of the cigarette brands," says Mrs. Burnham, "but for a long time I have been an enthusiastic Camel fan. Camels, being so much milder, never ruffle or disturb my nerves, so I smoke them all I want."

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. Isn't this the most important statement ever made by a cigarette manufacturer? Consider what it means. Change to Camels and learn that it's the tobacco that counts!

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS

"The Albany-New York hydroplane race was a gruelling contest," says Mrs. Florence Burnham. "Three hours and a half of nerve strain! THE BANKERS' OPPORTUNITY.

The convention of the American Bankers' association in Chicago this week can be an event of considerable importance. It all depends upon the willingness of the members to speak their minds. Bankers have not been unaware of the criticism which has been heaped upon them, justly and unjustly, in the last four years. A good many of them have come to believe that the discreet thing to do under the circumstances is to remain as inconspicuous as possible until the storm blows over.

That kind of discretion can be carried too far, for the good either of the bankers or of the nation. The truth of the matter is that the bankers, whatever their failings may have been, have had more occasion to think over the economic and financial problems confronting the nation than any other single group of business men, and the conclusions they have to offer regarding national policies have a corresponding value.

One thing which it is to be hoped they will discuss with great freedom is the reckless policy of expenditure by the federal government and the financing of the government's deficit. The national debt today is within striking distance of being as large as it was at its peak after the war and in all probability the debt will be larger by several billions before the fiscal year is out. The bankers ought to let the nation know whether they think the additional loans can be financed by the banks and the federal reserve system without undue strain.

The bankers should also have valid advice to offer regarding the possibilities of financing the deficit without stabilizing the currency. The resources of the reserve system, large as they are, are not illimitable. To the layman it would appear that sooner or later the time must come when the value of a government bond, note, or bill will be the value which individual investors are willing to pay for it. If all the investor knows about the dollar is that it is likely to be worth considerably less later on than it is now, it is difficult to believe that a promise to pay more dollars than our government ever before owed, by a government which has already repudiated its solemn obligation to pay in gold, will strike any one as being a prime investment.

It will be instructive, too, to hear what the bankers have to say about the activities of the national recovery administration, the agricultural administration and the other agencies in Washington. It is to be hoped that a sense of propriety will not lead to silence on these matters. Silence may prove far more costly in the long run.

It is somewhat paradoxical that the one aspect of banking in the last few years which has been most vulnerable to attack has scarcely been mentioned by those most critical of bankers. The banks did, unquestionably, contribute to the expansion of the boom and the resultant depression, and the principal reason they did so was the fact that we have had about a thousand times as many independent bank managements in this country as we had any need for. There was a consequent competition in recklessness on the part of many of them and it was virtually impossible to restrain the speculative mania until the collapse came. The fault lies entirely with the governments which have blocked the natural tendency of strong banks to attract deposits over wide areas. The state and federal governments have done nothing worth mentioning to remove restrictions on branch banking and it remains to be seen whether the bankers themselves will demand action along this line.

To do so would require great courage, and even self-sacrifice, for many bankers would find themselves reduced to subordinate positions if the banking system of the country were to be permitted to reshape itself on rational lines. Nevertheless, with the experience of the last six or eight years fresh in mind, the great majority of the delegates to the convention ought to be acutely aware of the need for concentrating the administration of credit in a relatively few responsible hands. Only in the United States have bank failures and the loss of deposits aggravated the depression. Not a single depositor lost a penny in England, France, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Canada, or any other country which possessed a rational banking system when the depression descended upon all lands.

MR. ELMORE PRODS HIS COLLEAGUES.

Trustee Howard Elmore of the sanitary district has called attention to the fact that no progress has been made in getting the federal government to buy the sanitary canal. Mr. Elmore is the only Republican on the board. His remarks ought to sting his Democratic colleagues into action. The fact that they have accomplished nothing constitutes a reflection upon them.

California has obtained money from the government in the form of gifts and loans by the double handful. Southern California is getting a waterworks and power plant built at federal expense. San Francisco is getting a 60 million dollar bridge. New York is getting vehicular tunnels, bridges and housing projects. Chicago, and the sanitary district in particular, have received nothing. The federal government which could buy the unimportant Cape Cod canal and build water works for Los Angeles ought to buy the sanitary canal, which, by order of the federal government itself, is no longer to be of use for sanitary purposes, but which is a vital link in the federal system of internal waterways.

The Democrats on the sanitary board have an open and shut case for obtaining the money needed to complete the sewage treatment works. Mr. Elmore cannot remind them too often of their duty to the community. If they can't present the facts competently at Washington, the voters ought to know about it. If the two United States senators from Illinois, both Democrats, and the speaker of the house, also an Illinois Democrat, cannot obtain action from a Democratic administration, something is wrong somewhere.

FORWARD.

In placing its large order for presses specially designed to print color in its daily issues, THE TRIBUNE is carrying one step farther the policies which have made it the oldest metropolitan newspaper published in America that has not passed through a period of failure and reorganization.

In its early days THE TRIBUNE sold successfully for five cents per copy a product vastly inferior in every respect to its present day newspaper. If it had for any length of time been content with its product and its price its name would also be registered in the large graveyard of defunct newspapers.

When a newspaper or any other article is a novelty it sells because it is a novelty and its selling price is not based upon cost because competition has not arrived. As a novelty becomes a customary convenience its price is regulated downward, not only by competition but by the increasing indifference of purchasers. From that time the producer is faced with the continuing problem of decreasing his costs or increasing his quality, or both, or go out of business.

That is why the history of THE TRIBUNE is a list of improvements, editorial, artistic and mechanical. The latest improvement, color printing in the daily newspaper, was started experimentally on a one-color press. Later special attachments were added and now a press specially designed for this service is about to be installed.

THE TRIBUNE believes that color printing has increased its circulation and the value of its advertising, with all the benefits these factors involve to itself, its customers, and the public.

Each color added to a page increases the cost and employment as though an additional page were printed. These additional costs can be borne because they create an improved product which in turn leads to increased sales and the economies thereby derived.

THE TRIBUNE believes that this is the correct method of increasing employment and general prosperity rather than a policy of increasing costs without increasing values, which can only have the effect of decreasing consumption and further increasing costs in a vicious spiral.

When further improvements in journalism are devised, whether THE TRIBUNE devises them, or some other newspaper, or some manufacturer or inventor, THE TRIBUNE will immediately install them. This is the correct method of maintaining and increasing prosperity for an industry and for the nation.

CO-ORDINATION, NOT CENTRALIZATION.

Federal Attorney General Cummings' declaration against centralization of police control in the national government is encouraging evidence that American principles of government are not without some defense among the agents of government in the present administration. In his address before the American Bar association in Grand Rapids he draws a wise distinction between effective coöperation between national, state, and local police agencies and centralized control. The former unquestionably needs development to meet present conditions more effectually, but this should be accomplished, as he says, within the frame of our constitutional system. There are too many impatient reformers at Washington and throughout the country who are not looking beyond their noses, and if unrestrained would soon have the nation under the rule of a centralized bureaucracy. The remedy of present inefficiencies and inadequacies in the control of crime should be sought without destroying local initiative and responsibility and it can be accomplished by intelligent coördination.

Editorial of the Day

AS THE HYSTERIA SUBSIDES.

[Herald Tribune, New York.]

Now that nerves are steadying in Washington and directors of recovery campaigns are once more taking a night's sleep, the country, too, can sit down for a little quiet reflection.

It needs it. There has been enough wild talk in Washington in recent weeks to frazzle the nerves of the sanest people. Part of the excitement was necessary if the administration's effort to install a five year plan in five weeks was to go through. Part of it was the excitement of ballyhoo—the gesticulations of cheer leaders who felt that the best way to help was to frighten the wits out of their listeners.

"If this plan doesn't go through we'll all be out in the park eating acorns next winter." That was the theme song of these ardent souls. It was bad psychology, for fear never led any people to do anything well. Fortunately, not many Americans were greatly impressed by these extravagant appeals. As sanity returns at Washington there evidently need be no fear of the good sense of the rest of the country. It will carry on regardless.

We are sure that President Roosevelt is in thorough sympathy with the view that in the end only the people can save themselves. He said as much in his radio speech. The NRA may achieve a superb success—beyond the hopes of its strongest supporters. It may achieve a moderate success. It may fail utterly. In any case the American people will not fail. They will carry on to the better times and happier days that are inevitably returning to every people who have the courage to stand fast in the face of disaster.

In the last analysis recovery depends upon nothing that Washington can invent or plan or do—but upon the spirit of the American people. As the ballyhoo dies down and the long pull begins this forgotten truth deserves remembrance.

WHAT A MAN!

"Mother," said a little boy after coming from a walk, "I've seen a man who makes horses."

"Are you sure?" asked his mother.

"Yes," he replied. "He had a horse nearly finished when I saw him; he was just nailing on his back feet."—Vancouver Province.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AWAY UP in Algoma I thought the Ontario liquor control system quite admirable. First I bought a permit for five dollars and a half and then I took it to a liquor control store where I made my selection of bottled goods from a large list posted on the wall. Other posters warned that habitual drunkards, minors, or those whose families were in need would not be permitted to buy liquor. Being guilty on none of these counts I made my purchases, but was warned they must not be opened until I had reached my camp, hotel room or home. Drinking in an automobile was punishable by fine or imprisonment. And up in Canada when they say fine or imprisonment they mean just that and probably both. Returning to the U. S. A. I stopped at a drug store en route to Chicago and told the druggist I had been bitten by a large and undoubtedly venomous rattlesnake, as he was twenty-five feet long, possessed forty-nine rattles and had blue stripes on his body with green polka dots.

The druggist looked surprised and said it wasn't necessary to be bitten by a rattlesnake any more in these United States to get hard likker. Nor was a doctor's prescription needed. He said I could have all the whisky I wanted to buy at $3.50 a pint. Anyhow, Canada is still ahead, for good Canadian rye can be bought up there for something around two dollars a quart, while the best imported Scotch cost only $4.50 a quart.

Still it looks as though the sacred 18th was already repealed without waiting for any more states to sign on the dotted line. Which made me quite pleased that I did not try to smuggle in any whisky when coming from Canada. It would have been carrying coals to Newcastle, which one and all agree is a very silly performance.

REGRET.

Not that the days that I must live
Are lonely, bare, and free,
Or that the love I dared not give
Died between you and me.

But that I saw your face today
In a crowded noonday street,
And found the glamour gone away—
And turned lest we should meet.

MERRIDY PRESTON.

LABOR DAY is a turning of the corner. Summer begins to pack up and get ready to leave. Thanksgiving day is the next stop and then we'll begin counting the days until Christmas. We humans are a rather cheerful lot after all. As soon as one thing is over and passes away from us we merely look around and say: "Set 'em up in the other alley!"

WE ALL LOOKED FORWARD to the three day holiday just ended with great hope. But the hope was blasted, three day holiday notwithstanding. Claire Windsor horned in on the front page as usual with that love triangle suit.

A MAN down in Missouri has married his tenth wife. The same man once walked backward across the country and once he carried a cup of water from the Pacific ocean and poured it into the Atlantic. A man like that would get married ten times.

THE SHEPHERD.

A shadow on the noonday field,
The shepherd walks.
In silence, round him like a shield,
To God he talks.

His flocks are herded not by him;
His mind's astray.
He feels an ever-urging whim
That will not stay.

He sees the summer sky above
By Phoebus wooed,
And dreams the face of his fair love
In tender mood.

And even as the sunset wanes,
His heart is light;
He lifts his voice in merry strains,
And Death takes flight.

DELOS DEJOHN.

PROBABLY NO ONE enjoyed the three day holiday more than Henry Ford. It must have been quite a rest. But the holidays are over once again and the relentless NRA will point its long accusing finger in the direction of Detroit and say: "Well, Hank, what about it?" And we would warn Henry to be very careful and not drive through the red light.

EVERYBODY WONDERED and wondered yesterday what that long peculiar sound, something like a sigh of relief, was they heard over the radio. Many thought it was static, but it wasn't. The w. k. ex-president of Cuba, Señor Machado, had just arrived at Montreal.

And ravenous things outside?

BLOOD SUGAR AND WELLBEING.

MOST of us are pretty well informed about diabetes. We know there are several conditions that cause glycosuria and go by the loose name diabetes. While these disorders vary in several qualities, they are similar in that the body does not use all the sugar offered the tissues. The blood contains more than the normal amount of sugar.

We are just learning that there is another group due to the opposite condition. The common characteristic is that the tissues are not supplied as much sugar as they need—the blood sugar is too low.

It was Dr. Seale Harris of Alabama who proved that when too much insulin has been given a diabetic he may suffer a collapse. In some cases death has occurred in collapse of this kind. Every person who takes insulin should carry a few cubes of sugar or pieces of candy in his pocket for instant use if symptoms caused by a drop in blood pressure are felt. In bad cases the sugar must be used instantly if convulsions and death are to be avoided.

This is an illustration of an extreme condition due to low blood sugar. There are effects caused by a more moderate shortage. These should be better known since they cause a certain amount of incompetence and discomfort. Among the symptoms of a mild sugar shortage are sweating, poor coördination of muscles, tremor, a feeling of "goneness," a weakness felt at the pit of the stomach, and unreasonable fears.

Some of those who feel run down late in the day and need some sort of a pickup are suffering from the effects of sugar shortage. The pace we go burns up a lot of fuel to make energy. Of the several coals used to stoke the burners in order to get a quick heat, sugar is about the most important. Our tense way of living calls for so much of it that some one has said modern civilization would have been compelled to slow down had it not been for the cane and beet fields. Many persons of this group use either coffee or liquor for a pickup. A few lumps of sugar would answer as well, and a period of quiet relaxation would be more physiologic still.

The people who are restless sleepers, have rings and dark circles under the eyes, and who yawn repeatedly before breakfast are often suffering from sugar hunger.

There are several reasons for low blood sugar. There are four ductless glands that have much to do with blood sugar. These are the pancreas with its insulin, the adrenalins with adrenalin, the thyroid, and the pituitary. The two that are of great importance are adrenalin and insulin. The first builds up blood sugar, the second tears it down. One cause of low blood sugar is a lack of balance between insulin and adrenalin—insulin getting the upper hand of its adversary. Other causes are some disease of the liver, atrophy of muscles, starvation, certain nervous diseases, overwork, too much exercise, and too much loss of sugar through the urine but not due to diabetes.

PHYSICIAN ERRED.

Curious writes: Our doctor left me some morphine pills to ease intense pain after tooth extraction. I did not take any at the time, but have since taken one at night for severe headache. It produced a stupor which lasted far into the next day. Some friends and I have since been discussing the danger connected with taking these pills. What is the danger?

REPLY.

Your physician should not have left morphine tablets with you. You should not have taken them for headache. The pain following extraction of a tooth is rarely if ever sufficient to warrant the use of morphine by a physician. To leave this drug for the patient to take at his will could not be justified. The danger is not of death due to acute morphinism. There is no likelihood that you had morphine enough for that, however recklessly you may have used it. The danger is of the morphine habit.

20 POUNDS UNDERWEIGHT.

A & B writes: A is 6 feet 1 inch and his weight is 160 pounds. He has small bones. B says A is underweight by 20 pounds, that the weight goes by height and age. A says the weight goes by size of the bones as well as age and height. Has A a good weight or not? He is 28 years old. Also, is A or B right?

REPLY.

A is about 20 pounds underweight. Both A and B are right in part. Age, height, size of bones, and type of build are important factors.

GIRDLES AND HERNIA.

W. V. A. writes:

1. If a lady has a hernia and wears a girdle is it necessary to wear a truss?
2. Is it necessary to operate?

REPLY.

1. Depends on whether the girdle keeps the hernia back.
2. In some cases it is.

NRA QUESTION BOX

(Compiled by the Chicago Association of Commerce.)

QUESTION — In a downtown cafeteria where I work the owner has signed the code and immediately started charging all helpers $3 a week for meals. We told him this could not be done, since they never charged for meals before. He told us to "like it" or find a new job. What should be done about this?

ANSWER — Your employer should be reported to the NRA headquarters for this district, located at 201 North Wells street. Give all the facts in the case in writing and sign your name. Your identity will not be disclosed.

In this connection, your employer should be reminded of a statement made several days ago by Postmaster General Farley who said: "Any firm which signs the NRA and does not live up to it may be severely punished both for breach of contract with the government and for fraudulent use of the mail, since the entire transaction between the President and the employer was handled by postal authorities.

QUESTION—Will maids working in public washrooms benefit from the working hours prescribed by the NRA?

ANSWER—Maids so employed will come under the hours of employment determined by the retail trade code.

DYING DECLARATIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Under what circumstances and in what manner may a lieutenant of police take a dying statement from a witness so that the statement may be used as evidence in a criminal case? E. K.

Section 259 on the Article on Evidence in Corpus Juris is as follows: "Dying declarations, or the unsworn statements of one who is approaching death and has abandoned all hope of life, with respect to the circumstances which resulted in his injury, are received in evidence in prosecutions for homicide, and under some statutes, in prosecutions for abortions; but in other criminal cases, and in all civil cases, the fact that a declarant realized that he was approaching his end does not add to his unsworn statements such force as to entitle them to be received as evidence."

WORDING CONTROLS.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—During the last great rainstorm that caused so much damage, six windows were broken in our building. Can the owner of this house collect insurance if the building is in foreclosure and the bank holding the mortgage is the temporary owner? R. A. B.

Rights on insurance policies depend on the wording of the policies. It is customary where the property is covered by a mortgage to affix a rider stating that the insurance shall go first to the trustee as his interest may appear. If the policy does not bear such a rider, then it may amount to a misrepresentation as to the state of the title such as to give the company a basis for defense against liability.

LOCATING WILL.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother's aunt passed away recently. 1. How can I find out whether there was a will made? 2. If a will was not made, how can I obtain my mother's share of the estate? My mother passed away last year. A. B.

1. The first step would be to inquire at the office of the clerk of the Probate court.
2. If the estate is not being probated, you might tell the relatives that if your share is not paid you will get the public administrator to apply for letters.

JAPAN'S NEED FOR BIRTH CONTROL.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—An editorial in THE TRIBUNE today quotes Count Soyeshima, ex-member of the house of peers of Japan, as saying "the growth of the United States navy is becoming a menace to the peace of the world."

In conversation with this statesman following one of his lectures at the University of Chicago a few years ago he told me that the Japanese had only starvation to look forward to within the next thirty years. I suggested that the practice of birth control might do much to avert such a calamity, to which he replied, "Perhaps, but what can I say? I am the father of ten children."

It requires only an elementary sense of fairness to see and admit that the addition of 900,000 hungry mouths annually to the 65,000,000 in Japan is an infinitely greater menace to peace than the United States navy can possibly be, unless underpopulated countries are going to open their immigration gates invitingly to Japan's overflowing millions, of which there is at present no appreciable evidence. Her recent penetration into Manchuria is sheer land hunger.

There is no more pacific nation in the world than the United States, and there is not the faintest danger to peace from anything that her navy may do. The actual danger lies in an unreasoning expansion of population like that of Japan, and, as far as Mussolini can make it so, of Italy. JAMES W. WALKER, M. D.

SET 'EM UP IN THE OTHER ALLEY.

Watervliet, Mich., Aug. 30.—Today may be the turning point. "Scuttling the Ship" and "Protecting the Investor" this morning make it appear that THE TRIBUNE is beginning to talk up. God knows we need that. W. C. H.

ANOTHER WAR BEGINS.

Lake Forest, Ill., Sept. 1.—Reading about the speeches of Admiral Coontz at Milwaukee, I wonder why the navy did not do anything at all in the late war.

DOUGHBOY.

ONE OF NATURE'S NOBLEMEN.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—The editorial against Michael L. Igoe this morning was decidedly unfair. I happen to know that he is not the kind of man to resent the activities of police unless his keen sense of justice is aroused by irregular tactics. He very rightly concluded that a man playing golf should be given sanctuary until the game was over. There was no danger of Mr. McGurn trying to evade the service of the warrant. The intrusion created a great deal of excitement, spoiled the player's game, and left the impression of a grand stand display.

It may be added that Mr. Igoe is a friend of labor, a believer in the golden rule, an ardent advocate of repeal, and is, in truth, one of nature's noblemen.

FAIR PLAY.

PROBABLY FOR RAINY WEATHER.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—You know all, hear all, and tell all and yet I never have seen a word in your paper about the "floors" which the elevated trains of Chicago are using. Every time I enter one of these trains with a high heel my heel catches in between these floorboards, which are sided in sides up instead of flat, it seems purposely, to break a heel or pull off a lift from women's shoes.

If you know will you please inform me and all the other "L" passengers why the floors are built as they are?

KAY KAUMEYER.

AT THE ZERO HOUR.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—At the zero hour—when thousands of NRA doorbell ringers go over the top in their nuisance drive to tell the American housewife and the forgotten man where to spend the money they haven't got—I suggest a greeting: "Why waste our time [and yours] when your message can be read in the daily newspapers, and those who can't read will not understand you?"

Is the NRA program an appeal to reason or the emotions? Must we have the wartime hysteria all over again in this national farce to spend ourselves out of bankruptcy? S. WALTON.

LEADERS AT G.O.P. PICNIC ASK FAIR TRIAL FOR NRA

Advise Republicans to Withhold Criticisms.

Cook county Republicans attending a picnic at Riverview park yesterday were advised by speakers to put their own house in order and to refrain from criticism or obstruction of the policies of President Roosevelt. The speakers were former United States Senator Charles S. Deneen, former Judge George E. Q. Johnson, and former Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup.

The occasion was the annual rally of the Deneen faction, although there were representatives of other Republican groups present. Former Alderman Arthur F. Albert was chairman.

Asks Fair Trial for NRA.

Mr. Deneen said that while in power the Republican party was torn by friction, jealousies and rivalries. Now these causes of trouble have disappeared, he said, adding that the faction he heads has held together for thirty-five years. Regarding national affairs, he said:

"The radical legislation, unprecedented in our history, is now being put into execution. These measures should be given fair tests and a fair chance. The President and his administration are making a strenuous nation-wide campaign for coöperation and support in the trial of the NRA. Let us place no factional opposition in the way of this experiment."

Former Judge Johnson, who was United States attorney before he was appointed to the federal bench, and Attorney Northup were praised for their vigorous prosecution of gangsters. Each, in turn, spoke of the necessity of keeping up the war on criminals.

Holds Two-Party System Best.

In his plea to Republicans to maintain the party organization, Mr. Johnson said:

"Experience has taught us that a two party system furnishes a convenient and practical system through which public sentiment can express itself. No one should feel that because this is a time of national emergency that the function of the minority party, which at the moment happens to be our Republican party, should in any way be limited in the right to freely criticize, or to freely express different opinions, for that is one of the functions of political parties."

In advocating that Republicans "stand by the President," Mr. Northup said he wanted no one to think that the spirit of the Republican party is dead.

Other speakers and prominent Republicans present were City Treasurer James A. Kearns, Judges E. I. Frankhauser, and Alfred O. Erickson, County Commissioner William Busse, and Ald. James C. Moreland.

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Sheriff David Walton of Androscoggin county disclosed today that he and a member of his staff spent two days at Poland Spring to provide protection for Princess Don Francisco Caravita, the former Janet Snowden, 19 year old American heiress and the wife of Prince di Tirignono. Although no one would discuss the matter, a threat to kidnap the young heiress was reported.

FIND ARMS, LEGS OF WOMAN; HUNT FOR HER SLAYER

Victim May Be Missing Wife of Detroiter.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The arms and legs of a woman, found roughly hacked from the body in an outlying field, tonight sent police on a baffling quest for the slayer in one of the city's most sensational murder mysteries.

While patrolmen beat through the bushes in the city's northwestern section in search of the woman's torso, detectives unwound a tangle if circumstances pointing, they said to the identity of the limbs. The finger prints, they reported, were identified through immigration bureau records as those of a Mrs. Lourier Jobb, who in 1922 encountered difficulty in entering the United States from Canada.

Divorced and Remarried.

Mrs. Jobb, the police said, was divorced and four years ago married Edward McCann, a Detroit automobile factory employé. McCann could not be found today, and relatives of the woman, as well as neighbors, reported mystifying circumstances surrounding Mrs. McCann's disappearance Friday night.

The officials said one group of relatives informed them Mrs. McCann reported last week she was going to Ottawa, Ont., to visit a brother. Another group, they said, told them McCann had said his wife left Friday for A Century of Progress in Chicago, taking $115, all his money.

Report Husband Worried.

Neighbors at the Stanley avenue apartment building in which the McCanns lived said Mrs. McCann left Friday night, and McCann was reported as being worried over his wife's disappearance. McCann, police said, was seen leaving his apartment at 10 a. m. today. Neighbors reported the McCanns quarreled Friday night.

Mrs. McCann, relatives said, was 30 years old. Her father is Wilfred Desjariens, formerly of Ottawa Ont., but reported to have moved recently to Montreal.

CHANGE NORMAL COURSES TO AID IDLE TEACHERS

Courses of study at the Chicago Normal college, 6800 Stewart avenue, will be changed and augmented this fall for the instruction of teachers temporarily out of work because of the school board's economy program.

Supt. William J. Bogan has estimated that 600 teachers are absorbed into the system annually through deaths, retirements, and other causes. On this basis nearly all the 1,200 teachers unassigned this fall as a result of the economy program will be reemployed within two years.

At teachers' college the kindergarten course will be changed to a kindergarten-primary course. Graduates of the new course will be eligible for assignment in the kindergarten and first and second grades. A regular elementary course also will be offered to train students to teach all required subjects in the intermediate and upper grades of the elementary school.

Courses will also be offered to qualify holders of regular Chicago certificates in special elementary subjects to obtain regular elementary certificates, valid for assignment in all grades of the elementary schools of Chicago.

Special leaves of absence for study will be granted to those who enter the Chicago Normal college and enroll in the courses so that pension and tenure rights of teachers out of employment will not be endangered.

FOES OF SCHOOL ECONOMY REPEAT DENIAL OF SAVING

A reiteration of the charge that the board of education's economy program will not save any money, was made yesterday in a statement of the "Save Our Schools" committee. The committee, which is fighting the retrenchments in school expenditures, declared that approximately $1,000,000 might be saved by the program, but that $800,000 of this amount would be transferred from instruction to contracts for putting the plan into effect.

Thus far the school board has issued no statement on the amount to be saved by the economy steps, although it is said that $2,000,000 will be saved from the budget this year and more than $6,000,000 in 1934. The board contends that only $87,000 will be required to put the plan in effect. This is the amount of contracts for the conversion of junior high schools into senior high school plants.

The "Save Our Schools" committee claimed in its most recent statement that the school board under the name of economy had wrecked "the whole intricate and economically run system of Chicago's schools."

Competent observers of the conduct of the schools, the committee said, have long agreed that the taxpayer really gets more for his money in education than in any other government in the city.

DESIGNS MEDAL TO HONOR SOCKER OF HUEY LONG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The design was completed today for the gold medal that either is to reward the washroom gladiator who socked United States Senator Huey [Kingfish] Long at the Sands Point [L. I.] Bath club recently or to commemorate the occasion, if the hero proves too bashful to accept it.

George de Zayas of New York, is the designer. The medal was suggested by Owen P. White, magazine writer, of Kew Gardens, L. I., who promoted a fund for it.

The medal is to hang by chains from a bar. On the medal's face is engraved an image of Huey on the receiving end of a terrific wallop from a fist that emerges from a washbowl into which water is pouring from two faucets.

The Kingfish's crown is seen popping from his head as the result of the fist's impact. The head of Huey runs into a writhing fishtail, merman like. Around the lower part of the medal in Latin is engraved:

"By public acclaim for a deed accomplished in private."

THREE FARMERS DROWN.

Morgantown, Ky., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Marcus Turner, 45; Curren Hunter, 60; and Virge Jones, 45, farmers, drowned in Green river this afternoon when their automobile plunged off a ferryboat.

AIR TREATMENT HELPS SEASONAL ASTHMA VICTIMS

Breathing filtered, dehumidified air of constant temperature relieves seasonal asthma, a number of victims have found in the first two weeks of this season's experiments in the University of Illinois Research and Educational hospital, 1817 West Polk street. Their symptoms return, however, if they leave the pollen free, dry air of their ward.

Eight men and eight women have been treated in the special asthma ward since it was opened Aug. 20, and eight women remain in the ward. Experiments will continue for two weeks more at least.

"Only one patient failed to receive distinct relief," said a physician in charge. "In the other cases we had most encouraging results. But the experiments indicate so far that the relief is only for the time they are in the ward."

The temperature is kept at an even 78 degrees and dryer than outside air by 50 per cent. The air is filtered to remove all pollen.

Crocodile Seizes Baby Girl Before Father's Eyes

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Sept. 4.—A grim story has just reached here from Curiapo, Venezuela of how a crocodile seized a baby girl while bathing in a river near her home before her father's eyes. The father, working near the river, saw the crocodile seize his daughter. He rushed into the house, grabbed a gun and shot the crocodile which released the baby. She disappeared screaming into the river. Her body was recovered the following day, disfigured by the dread "carbide" man eating fish.

CHICAGO SPECIALIST* FINDS AMAZING NEW DIRECT RELIEF FOR HAY FEVER!

These tablets promise relief to hay fever sufferers of a kind never before possible with salves, sprays, inhalers, or any other form of local application.

Results of Short-Cut Method Surpass All Previous Efforts in Test Cases . . . Believed to Be Final Answer to the Riddle of Pollen Poisoning!

THIS announces the most remarkable relief in the history of hay fever . . . A Chicago specialist has simplified the complicated "pollen theory" to one single fact. And reduced its treatment to one simple remedy. With results that are the wonder of hay fever students.

Not a narcotic deadening of the nerves. Not an astringent drying up mucous membrane. Not a local treatment in any sense—but direct action in neutralizing the poison found in all hay fever victims observed. Relief is not only prompt, but thorough. It is believed to be the final answer to the baffling problems of hay fever and related allergic suffering.

Amazing New Facts

This specialist thoroughly believes in the theory newly advanced by medical science that all allergic diseases (hay fever, hives, etc.), result directly from a poisonous histamine-like substance found in the blood in excess amounts. Histamine is a poisonous end-product of protein—and all pollens are protein. Regardless of what pollens the patient was sensitive to, science has found that the histamine-like substance was always present. "It is the histamine poisoning caused by pollens—not the pollens themselves—which is the underlying cause of hay fever suffering," reasoned the doctor. A complete right about face.

The "Short-Cut" Treatment Found

Now, after 2½ years of research, this specialist has perfected Histeen—a safe preparation which promptly counteracts the effects of histamine poisoning. Often within a few minutes after the first dose relief from hay fever symptoms has followed. And the remarkable thing is that this relief is not just temporary but lasting. So rapid that relief in some cases appeared almost immediately; and so thorough that all apparent symptoms had disappeared.

Laboratory Tested

These findings were verified by independent scientific tests in the laboratories of a famous medical university before offering this discovery to the public.

Now Histeen is available in drug stores. It is taken internally, in convenient tablet form, and is absolutely safe. It is complete in itself without sprays, salves or any other addition. And being utterly different, will not interfere with any other treatment. It simply acts to neutralize the effect of the histamine poisoning. But that is enough to bring thorough relief—often in the first few minutes!

NOTE:
Hives, rose fever and urticaria are all "allergic" diseases like hay fever, and also are accompanied by excess histamine. Consequently Histeen, which combats histamine, is as effective in these diseases as in hay fever.

Negro Music in Original Is Heard in Show

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

After a dispute with the musicians' union, which delayed the première for half an hour, the Garrick theater celebrated Labor day by offering an oddity in musical shows called "Ethiopia," with a company of Negro singers and dancers. This piece represents the work as composer, librettist and impresario of Joseph Boyd, who is making a debut in the field of Afro-American lyric entertainment after years of musical study overseas.

Two of Mr. Boyd's years of preparation as a composer were spent in Africa, collecting the folk-music of his race at its source. This research is effectively expressed in the first act of "Ethiopia," which contains several choral numbers based on primitive African themes. They are interesting suggestions of the background of the Negro's racial gift in music, and they are scored with expert musicianship. In fact, it appears that as a composer of popular music Mr. Boyd has something new to say in the idiom of his inheritance and skill in its utterance.

In form "Ethiopia" is a curiosity. It might be called a revue, since almost anything that carries songs and dances bears that label nowadays. But it is not merry and brisk enough to earn this description. It is a sort of secular cantata to illustrate the customs of Negro song in the Africa of 100 years ago and contemporary America. It contains no story or connective tissue of narrative; its sketches are usually choral, and its comedians are laboriously occupied with material whose humor is exceedingly dim.

The first act is a little pageant of life in Ethiopia as visualized by the director of a robed choir. The costuming and ceremonials have an apparently authentic Abyssinian touch. The natives indulge in tribal dances, and the choir solemnly chants, in excellent voice, Ethiopian anthems, including a striking bit of musical savagery called "High Cow Udum."

But the standard themes of Afro-American ditties also figure in the concert, and the ancient Ethiopians deny their costumes by breaking out into ditties that bear such titles as "My Jungle Queen" and "Adam Never Had No Mammy."

The program of the first act, moreover, contains a number that happily recalls the musical comedies of thirty years ago, when "rag-time" was coming into vogue. This is "As Long As the Congo Flows to the Sea," first sung, unless my memory betrays me, by Marie Cahill, who died recently at the age of 60. It was a great hit in its period, and as revived in Mr. Boyd's choral arrangement it repeats its old success.

The second act deals with the Afro-American in his church festivals, his tap-dances, his "blues" and other characteristic folkways. It moves, like its predecessor, with infinite leisure. "Ethopia" is a departure from the cabaret type of Negro musical show; it is extremely slow of tempo and not addicted to clamor. Its choir singing, with and without accompaniment, is excellent; some of its soloists and dancers are fairly good; and its few comedians are desolating.

Bank Women Applaud Talk Praising NRA

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Grouped chummily in one of the Blackstone hotel dining rooms yesterday the most genuinely exclusive convention of the summer applauded Mrs. May Wood Simons of the faculty of Northwestern university as she characterized the NRA as "democratic, not autocratic; a move to preserve, rather than to destroy, all that is worthy of preservation in our present society." Her auditors were the women bank executives of the country, who will conclude today their deliberations on some of the major problems of the United States.

It is the first time in several years that the Association of Bank Women has convened in Chicago. In a membership drawn from business women of intelligence and ability, each of whom has had to submit evidence of her executive status to qualify for acceptance, it was considered especially appropriate that the season of A Century of Progress should be concurrent with their gathering, "since it is only in the last quarter of that century that women bank executives have emerged at all," in the words of Miss Jean Reid of New York, one of the five founders.

The war gave women their opportunity in the financial marts, Miss Reid pointed out, and since the armistice their numbers have increased materially, even though they are not yet exactly numerous. Approximately two hundred have achieved membership in the association, which was formed to clarify by discussion the obstacles and the experiences encountered by the pioneers in the field as to the real province of feminine bankers.

Miss Reid gave up portrait painting to enter her present vocation. Miss Minna M. Bruere, assistant secretary of the Central Hanover Trust company of New York, was a concert singer on the west coast. Miss Agnes M. Kenny, manager of the woman's department of the First Wisconsin National bank of Milwaukee, present head of the group, was a school teacher. Miss Reid, Miss Bruere, and Miss Grace Stoermer of Los Angeles, assistant vice president of the Bank of America there, are former presidents.

Mrs. G. W. Sammons of Farmington, N. M., is the only woman bank president to attend the sessions and did so only as a guest, as she is not a member. Among others holding important posts in various metropolises are Miss Reid, assistant treasurer of the Bankers' Trust company of New York; Miss Elizabeth Krouse, manager of the woman's department of the University State bank; Miss Mary Travers, assistant cashier of the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, and Miss Louella Ensworth, trust representative of the Northern Trust company, all of Chicago, and Miss Susan Sturgis, assistant manager of the First National bank of Boston.

Coördination of all industries into one general plan and the adjustment of consumption to production through national planning are the most important elements of the NRA, Mrs. Simons, instructor in economics, told the convention. Our real underlying difficulties are found in organization of industry and not in money, she added.

Goodman Theater Announces Plays for Winter Season

The Goodman theater of the Art institute has been renovated and the sky dome repainted preparatory for the opening of the winter season. Officials announced yesterday that there will be a members' series of seven plays for which free coupons will be issued to members of the institute.

The season will open on Monday, Oct. 30, with the "Romantic Young Lady," by Sierra. Among the plays following will be "Anathema," by Andreyev; "John Gabriel Borkman," by Ibsen; "Great Catherine," by Shaw; "Farmer's Wife," by Philpotts; "Saturday's Children," by Maxwell Anderson, and possibly "The Royal Family," by Kaufman and Ferber.

Genevieve Herrick to Talk on Women in Journalism Today

Genevieve Forbes Herrick, a member of the Washington staff of THE TRIBUNE and recently elected president of the Woman's National Press Club of Washington, will address the members of the Chicago Woman's club and their guests at 11 o'clock this morning in the large lecture hall of the Illinois Host building at A Century of Progress. Mrs. Herrick will speak on "Women in Journalism."

The lecture is one of a series of 23 by women well known in the various arts and professions being given this summer and fall as the contribution of the Chicago Woman's club to A Century of Progress. The public is invited.

Mrs. Ethel M. Colson Brazelton, former newspaper woman, will preside at this morning's meeting. She will be introduced by Mrs. John L. Pfaff.

Engagement of Kate Canfield to Harry R. Curran Announced

Her Twin Sister Frances Will Be Debutante of Present Season; Parents Plan Party for Their Friends.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THOSE two delightful twin sisters, Frances and Kate Canfield, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Canfield, have come to the parting of the ways. This morning we are making the interesting announcement of the engagement of Miss Kate Canfield to Harry Remington Curran Jr., son of the Harry Remington Currans of Evanston.

For months, in fact for many years, Mr. and Mrs. Canfield have anticipated presenting their twin daughters to society on the same occasion. Both of the girls were on this season's list of debutantes. But now Mr. and Mrs. Canfield are quite as delighted that they are to have the pleasure and variety of both a coming-out party for Frances and a wedding for Kate.

Miss Canfield's engagement is not a complete surprise to her intimate friends, since for many months Mr. Curran has been her devoted suitor. Last year Miss Canfield studied at the University School for Girls and previous to that she was a student at Miss Wheeler's.

Although the Canfields are giving no party now in announcement of their daughter's engagement, there is to be a cocktail party soon, probably next Sunday afternoon, at which Miss Kate and her sister, Frances, will receive all of the debutantes of this season and their beaux.

From then on much of Miss Canfield's pre-nuptial festivity will be intertwined with the debutante teas and dances climaxing with her sister's formal bow. Mr. and Mrs. Canfield have not as yet decided whether Miss Frances will be presented at a tea in November or at a party during the Christmas holidays.

Pre-nuptial Parties for Peggy Glidden.

With her wedding less than two weeks away [the 16th] and her fiancé arriving Saturday morning, Miss Peggy Glidden is plunging into the last minute plans for her marriage and the first of the pre-nuptial parties.

Because of the illness of her father, Miss Louise Ruffner, a bridesmaid, postponed the tea and bathroom shower she was to have given for Miss Glidden two weeks ago until this afternoon. A score or so of Miss Glidden's friends have been invited, and they are all bringing something suitable in peach or green.

Miss Mary Anderson is having a luncheon and magazine shower Friday at her home in Highland Park, and Saturday night marks the beginning of the evening parties. Richard Glidden, a cousin of the bride, has invited the wedding party to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay S. Glidden, in Highland Park, for appetizers, and they all will go to Exmoor Country club for the dinner-dance.

Miss Kathryn Rogers, a sister of the bridegroom and another of the bridesmaids, arrived in town last week, and Miss Bettylee Rich of New York will be coming next week after the wedding of one of her very great friends, Miss Lucia Page, daughter of the Cecil Pages of New York, formerly of Kenilworth, who is being married Saturday in Greenwich to Dr. William Garland Heeks.

The bridegroom, John Roderick Rogers, will be here in time for Mr. Glidden's party. His brother, James Rogers, who is to be an usher, and Mrs. Rogers, and Mrs. Horace Moore arrive Sunday for the cocktail party that one of the bridesmaids, Miss Welthyan Harmon, and her brother, Hubert Harmon, are giving for the wedding party at 6 o'clock in their Highland Park home, and for the supper that another usher, Robert E. Kenyon Jr., fiancé of Miss Rich, is giving that night at the home of his parents in Lake Forest.

Mrs. Hitchcock to Give Dinner.

Mrs. Fremont Hitchcock has invited just the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom to come to her Highland Park home for dinner next Monday night. Spaulding Rogers, another brother of the bridegroom, who

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Postmaster General Farley, who returned east from Kansas City at the end of last week, is having a few days vacation at his home on the Jersey coast near Deal Beach.

Former Representative Albert G. Simms of New Mexico, and Mrs. Simms, have returned from their summer spent in New England. Mrs. Simms and her daughter, Miss Katrina McCormick, who returned last week from a trip to Europe, came to their Georgetown home at the end of the week and then went on to Miss McCormick's country home in Virginia for the week-end. Mrs. Simms left tonight for Chicago, not to return here until the Christmas holidays.

Front Views and Profiles

PROBABLY the worst pun of the week is Elmer Rice's. He has been a student at the famous seminar, the University of Mexico, during the summer, and like all tourists, he was shown murals by the dozens—Riveras and Orozocos and many others in the small churches around Mexico City, many of them done by back artists. Gazing at one of the worst, he could control himself no longer. If we can believe Robert Pollak, Mr. Rice described it as a plain case of mural turpitude.

Mural—Comment—Whistle—Error—Potentate.

REMEMBER about Uncle Charlie, the old Irish fiddler we wrote about the other day who, after hearing Kreisler, commented that he could do everything with a fiddle except play a tune? Well, when Mary Ward, a brilliant interpreter of Irish folk music on the piano, first played at the O'Gallaghers, she had no more delighted listener than Charles O'Gallagher. [Uncle Charlie]. As the applause following her first selection—a group of fast intricate dance tunes—subsided, Uncle Charlie addressed her.

"Young woman, the Lord surely endowed you with a shower of fingers!" he said.

"Can you do a bob-white whistle?" asked a girl who came up to the concession stand.

The whistle man said he could and whistled several beautiful, loud bob-white calls for her. The girl kept looking about her as he whistled, and suddenly waved to another girl she sighted at the top of the nearby steps.

"Thanks," she said to the concessionaire, as she turned away. "When my sister and I get separated we do a bob-white whistle, and I was afraid she couldn't hear me in this noisy crowd."

JUDGE JOHN LUPE condemned a prisoner to the Bridewell the other day for drinking. The man insisted he hadn't taken a drink for over a year, but the judge was adamant until a probation officer whispered in his ear that it wasn't the prisoner who smelt of moonshine—it was the prosecutor. The prisoner was discharged with an apology.

HIS Highness Maharajah Gaekwar of Boroda visited the Russian Imperial Art Exhibit at Field's the other day, attended by Dr. Saunders, his personal physician, and Col. Tryggve Siqueland, and it was the jeweled Easter eggs of the czars that interested the Indian potentate. He asked for prices—and got them—in pounds as well as dollars, and took all the printed matter he could find on the subject. The maharajah is said to be the only ruling monarch who has yet visited A Century of Progress, in case you care for information of the kind. And did you know he is the owner of Tennyson's home in England?

BLOOD MONEY

SYNOPSIS.

Uncas Cresap and his Chinese servant are found dead in the upper room of Cresap's boathouse on Kettle pond, near the eastern end of Long Island. Gilbert Jonathan Redd, Cresap's stepbrother, keeps a written private account of developments in the case. A blow on the forehead from a slender, sharp edged implement killed Cresap. The cause of the Chinaman's death is not apparent. Capt. Bray, a special investigator, is an old friend of Redd's. Redd is a former police reporter. Florence Dane, Cresap's niece and an orphan, lived with him. Redd was fond of Florence's mother. He bought a home near Cresap's in order to protect Florence. Cresap made his fortune in the far east. Redd freely admits to Bray his hatred of Cresap, who was a drunkard and a debauchee. The Chinaman and a dwarf, Sabino, are the most important of the servants, and there seemed to be some secret bond between them and their employer. Bray finds, spread out on Cresap's desk, a new will disinheriting Florence. As it is unsigned, the old will stands. Cresap disapproved of Florence's moneyless sweetheart, Gregory Thorpe, who had arrived the day before Cresap died, having driven east from his home in Ohio in response to an urgent wire from Florence. Thorpe can't be reached at the local hotel, where he registered as George Thomas. Florence is on the verge of prostration. Bray picks up Tontini, a bootlegger who had been landing liquor on Cresap's property. He is freed of suspicion.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

A FUGITIVE DRIVER.

Tontini shook hands with Bray and then with me. "Chief," he went on, "if youse could use a case of good Scotch it'd be a pleasure for me to have one of my trucks drop off a case next time we're transferring a load."

"That'd be nice," said Bray, and told him where he lived.

We filed downstairs and Bray and I watched them depart. They slid away in the moonlight and Bray waited until their diminishing shapes were beyond earshot and then turned to me:

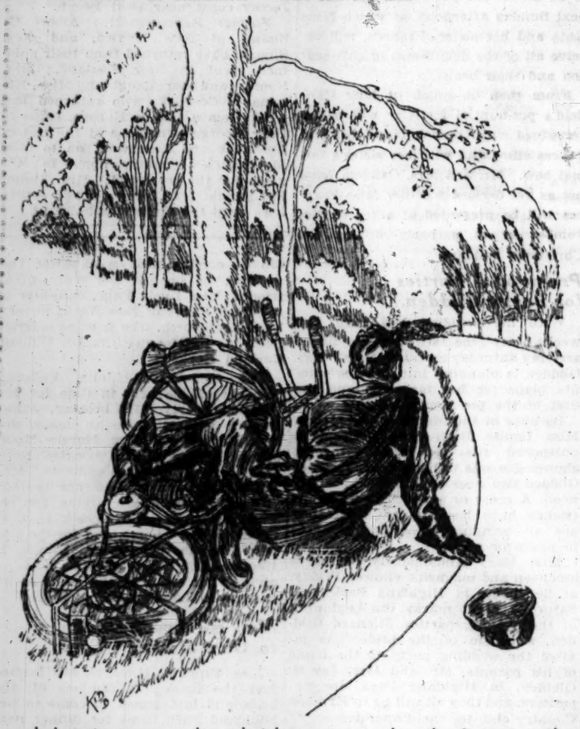
"Well, anyhow," he said, "I get a dozen bottles of bootleg liquor out of it. And all you get is your feet soaked, posting through these here flat lands. Tell me, Gilly, what made you pick out this wet neighborhood for a promenade?"

"I was out taking a constitutional along the beach," I told him, "and I saw a strange outfit making this way and I followed it in, naturally."

"Naturally," he assented. "Well, I've had one bogus battle-charger shot out from under me this night, which strictly betwixt you and me, Gilly, was no more than I'd half expected, but by Cripes——" his voice took on exultance— "but, by Cripes, I'm mounted on another and going stronger than ever!"

"If you ask me, I think you're astraddle a wooden hobbyhorse," I said. "That is, if it's young Thorpe you have in mind."

"Who else?" he demanded. "Who else but him?"



——he's not so groggy but what he can remember the figures on that license plate.

"Bray," I said, "I know that boy. I've studied him. I've had my reasons for wanting to know him. And I'm telling you it's utterly impossible for him to have done anything underhanded, let alone kill a man in cold blood."

"O, ho!" he exclaimed derisively. "And are you the seventh son of a seventh son of a gun, born with a caul, whatever that is?"

"I'm merely using common sense that's all. And I'm telling you that no matter how strange your circumstantial evidence might seem to be——"

"Wait!" he clarioned in a big voice. "Wait and leave me tell you something that'll maybe make you croon a different song. It's real news that was relayed to me not an hour ago from Central Office. It was my old buddy, Inspector Speckmann, that had me on the wire. But before I hand that news to you leave me suppose a case that might be an imaginary case, only I claim it's not: If a party in a car left this identical spot say around midnight and drove hard all the way in to New York and then turned north up the Albany post road and kept going, it's conceivable he'd get to Peekskill along about early breakfast time the next morning—ain't that so? Well, then, listen: At six o'clock Tuesday morning—Tuesday morning, mind you, and that would make it a matter of six hours, more or less, from the time when the doctors say this killing here was done—a bike cop just the other side of Peekskill chases a small car that's skihooting north like a bat out of the bad place. It's a two-seater Folker and it's painted olive green, and it's carrying Ohio license plates! And when he overtakes that car and shoots up alongside, there's a husky young fellow in it, traveling alone. This young fellow is humped over the wheel with his overcoat collar turned up either side of his jowls and a cap clamped down over his ears. Well, just as the coppy ranges up even with him and gives him the high sign to pull in to the right-hand side of the road, what does this young divil do but give his wheel a quick joggle so that the car skids out to the left sudden-like and hits the cop's bike a wallop. It might have done for him entirely, deliberately side-swiping him like that, but as luck would have it, he sees the lick coming in time to swerve over a little. So he takes the jolt on a slant and instead of being killed outright he lands all spraddled out on his face, with his wrecked bike underneath him. He's badly stunned and his hands and his knees and his chin are skinned up something scandalous. And whilst he's picking himself up and getting his wits back, the car beats it around the next turn and gets away. But he's not so groggy but what he can remember the figures on that license plate and he remembers that the young fellow who's driving is wearing a tan cap and one of these here tan polo coats with big white pearl buttons on it, such as these here young collegians love to wear.

"So that cop limps along until he comes to the first house where there's a telephone and he calls up the next town ahead and asks them to be on the watch for a car answering to those general plans and specifications, and he says to arrest the man that's piloting it on charges of reckless driving, breaking the speed laws and attempted murderous assault. But now there's a more serious charge than them, and from Peekskill as far west as Toledo, O., and beyond, and as far north as the Canadian line and beyond, the cops are on the lookout this minute. Because, Gilly, me-bucko, the number of that license is the number of the borrowed car that this here Thorpe drove down here on a Monday last. And, moreover, when last seen in these parts, Thorpe was wearing a tan cap and a tan polo coat with big pearl buttons on it. So what would you say now to all that?"

"I still say that you are wrong," I protested stoutly, but my brain was awhirl inside my skull. "I tell you, I know that boy. I'll admit that he'll have some explaining to do, but——"

"Yes. Explain why, in the first place, he uses a counterfeit name; and why, in the second place, he runs away from that there hotel with never a word to anyone, leaving his clothes behind him and his bill not paid, and why, in the third place, he skedaddles off upstate like the divil himself is behind him—I'll say he'll have some explaining to do. Be yourself, Gilly, be yourself! You were never the one to have such talk in the old days."

"Florence?" I said. "You haven't let her hear this?"

"What kind of a stony-hearted ruffian do you take me for, man? Would I be running to her now, and she on the flat of her back and supping sorrow every breath she draws, to tell her what she'll have to know sooner or later anyhow? Would I, without there was need of it, be hurting her more than already she's been hurt! You make me sick!"

In a huff he turned his back on me and stalked away toward the main house. After a minute or so I followed him, but I didn't see him about the place as I skirted it. So I tramped home and when I got there, went to bed and tried to get some sleep. Once asleep, I slept. The morning was almost gone when I woke up and then I had a snack of luncheon and sat down to write all this out.

Here at the finish of this installment I must add one scrap more: The identity of that nocturnal caller of mine is no longer a secret. Just before lunch, I went scouting, and in a patch of loamy soil at one end of my low porch I found shoeprints. The marks left by the soles were of proportions suitable for a fully developed male adult, but the spacing between each pair of tracks was abortively short. There is only one individual here in Bridgeton who has feet that are man-sized and legs that are child's length.

Shoppers Can Find Straight Line Sleeves

Shoulders Without Puffs Are Presented.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Fussy shoppers who have bewailed the preponderance of exaggerated sleeves, will now be able to find the smooth shouldered things they have been missing for a season or two. You can find a grand collection of new street clothes with shoulders that are not puffed and pulled out at the side. You can now buy these smart casual street things with cleverly cut raglan shoulder seams and with the rest of the sleeves flowing down to the wrist in one unbroken line, free, infinitely smart, and flattering to wear.

Also in town is a collection of suits and frocks with fitted, superlatively fitted, waistlines to the coats, with becoming silhouettes, with unusual color combinations and vastly distinctive fabrics used in combines that will make you gasp at the daring originality.

For instance, a dark gray plain toned skirt topped with a large gray and white checked coat made with a swathed high neckline, a double breasted closing, and the newest in raglan fashioned sleeves. Under it is worn a soft white wool round necked blouse that can be substituted for any of the gayer checked or plaid taffeta blouses for immediate wear.

Or you can find the old favorites, plenty of two piece dresses—some in soft sheer woolen fabrics made with wide lapeled tops, others of novelty knits that look like stunning English tweeds, and other two toned combinations too numerous to describe.

The tried and true two piece suits are also on display. They are the snappy, slim, tailored skirt and the ubiquitous swagger length coat. Most of the coats are made with high narrow collared necklines, with smooth unpuffed sleeves and the necessary pockets that such a swagger suit needs to be a success. They are as breezy, as smart, and as dashing as the particular shopper who discovers such finds.

Doris Explains Why Thousands Confide in Her

BY DORIS BLAKE.

In Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's introduction to her magazine public in the well known monthly's current edition she comments on the need of a friend with whom to discuss our problems. She says: "It is hard to find just the friend we should like to talk to. Often it is easier to write to some one whom we do not expect ever to see. We can say things which we cannot say to the average individual we meet in our daily lives."

That is the exact psychology of departments such as the Doris Blake. And it answers the question put almost daily to those of us trusted with the problems "that need a friend's counsel." We are asked: "But, do people really write you letters?"- The impression seems to be that we make them up. That they are newspaper copy, so to speak, created out of a more or less fertile mind.

The need of some one to talk your troubles out with is the commonest experience known. It does not imply that the inquirer seeks advice, nor, for that matter, has any intention of following it. Although personal experience has proved that advice is taken often. Our theory is that putting one's problems down on paper helps clarify it. One gets a better perspective on his or her own part in that problem. Frequently it has happened in this department that a confession confirming this theory follows the original letter.

One stands out in our mind of a young matron all worried and anxious about a former suitor and about a possible mistake she made in the man she did marry. It's a common happening, as you know. A little misunderstanding of a quarrel arises between the newlyweds—and the woman begins to wonder if she didn't choose the wrong man. Sitting down writing it out and the necesary concentration involved does very, very often straighten the young woman's problem for her. Also, the advice extended that she is not the only one to have faced the problems helps toward a new point of view.

It is easier to write to some one whom we do not expect ever to see than to spill troubles into the ear of one we shall met over and over again. It's a common experience to regret and to have reason to regret the confidence extended an associate. Sometimes it creates a barrier and often a broken friendship when the confidence is not respected. That confidences are respected, viewed sympathetically no matter what the problem, advised upon to the very best of our ability makes departments like this one "just that friend with whom you may safely discuss your troubles."

Believe us to be just that friend if some difficulty harasses you!

Mustard Pickle Finds a Place in Many Dishes

"The Pickle Parade," a booklet containing 18 recipes for making pickles and relishes, is on sale at the Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn, for 2 cents. By mail, 3 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Have you discovered what versatile affairs mustard pickles are? They've a tang and a zippy flavor which makes them the best kind of playfellows for scores of different sorts of food. They may be home concocted ones or any good grade of chopped, sliced, or whole store-bought pickles. But, however you acquire them, be sure to conjure them this fall into plenty of luncheon combinations and into beef, pork, veal, or fish entrées in the form of a nippy, palate-warming sauce.

Sandwiches also fall for these charming pickles in a sizey fashion. They particularly mention beef-pickle sandwich as a favorite. The how-to-do-it is simple:

BEEF-MUSTARD PICKLE SANDWICH.

12 slices white bread
6 slices cold roast beef
1 cup chopped mustard pickles
Crisp lettuce
Softened butter

Spread six of the bread slices with butter and the other six with the chopped pickle. Put together with a lettuce leaf and a slice of cold roast beef between each two slices.

Then to follow up the mustard pickle sauce I mentioned. Meat balls make a good foil for it, done after this fashion:

MEAT BALLS IN TOMATO-PICKLE SAUCE

For the balls grind together one pound of beef and one-half pound of pork and blend with two beaten eggs, a chopped onion, and salt and pepper to taste. Mold this mixture into twelve small balls and pan-fry in hot pork drippings, browning well all over and thoroughly cooking the meat. Serve with the following sauce poured over them: Two cups tomato sdup or tomato sauce combined with one-quarter cup chopped mustard pickle. Simmer the sauce, covered, for half an hour before serving over the meat balls.

DEVILED EGGS IN ASPIC.

2 cups tomato juice
1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 bayleaf
3 whole cloves
6 hard cooked eggs
1-3 cup cream
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
¼ cup chopped mustard pickles

Heat half the tomato juice to boiling with the cloves and bayleaf. Add the gelatin and stir till dissolved. Add the rest of the juice, then the salt and vinegar. Take out the bayleaf and cloves and pour a small portion of the mixture into each of six cold, wet molds. Let stiffen while preparing the hard-cooked eggs. To do this cut the eggs through near the large ends and remove the yolks. Mash these with the cream, seasoning and pickles. Pile back into the cuplike whites. As soon as the aspic has begun to set, place a stuffed egg, yellow side down, in the center, and around it pour the remainder of the gelatin mixture. When chilled and firm unmold each in a lettuce cup and serve with creamy mayonnaise.

And now a last tip for your recipe flies in the form of mustard pickles themselves:

MUSTARD PICKLES.

1 medium cauliflower
12 small cucumbers
½ pound string beans
1 pound small pickling onions
1 pimiento
1 green pepper

PICKLING SOLUTION.

2 quarts vinegar
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup flour
2½ tablespoons ground mustard
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 teaspoon turmeric

Wash the cauliflower and cut in small pieces. Do likewise to the peeled cucumbers, beans, peeled onions, and peppers. Allow these to stand twenty-four hours in a brine made of one gallon of water and one cup of salt. When ready to put up combine one quart of water with one quart of the vinegar and pour this over the drained, chopped vegetables, letting them stand one-half hour. Bring them to a boil. Have ready the mustard sauce made by cooking to a smooth dressing the second quart of vinegar, the brown sugar, flour, mustard, tumeric, and celery seed. Drain the vegetables and pour the dressing over them, blending well. Pack into sterile jars, seal partially, and process in a hot water bath for five minutes. Seal completely and store.

Smart Woman Lets Frocks Flatter Hair

Makeup Must Harmonize with Eyes, Skin.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Talking about colors, you do not talk about colors you cannot wear but about colors you wear best.

Makeup is responsible, of course, for the possible introduction into the wardrobe of colors undreamed of before. But that is still not enough. There are still best colors. And instead of thinking dress color in connection with skin and eyes it is the hair that is now coupled directly with the dress color. Possibly this is due to the fact that hair has undergone radical changes of late years, both in coiffure and coloring. It's particularly the latter we are thinking of at the moment.

Women do not have to go through life with hair of a negative or uninspiring color. They can become golden blonde, a honey blonde over night and no one holds it against them. But this hair change does or should influence the dress colors in a new way, too. That is, the color that went with the old shade best might be greatly improved on in a new choice now that the hair is different.

And then there are rinses to give the hair a new gleam, that are popularly used. These again may change the objections of dress shopping.

But the general idea, as presented by one well known authority on dress and makeup, is to let makeup take care of the eyes and skin—and let the hair dictate the dress color.

We can imagine a brunette, say, who decides to go blonde. Yellow has been her love with the old hair coloring. Yellow might be just the worst thing she could pick out for the new hair shade, although it doesn't always follow that blondes cannot wear yellow. It's too much yellow that's bad for them. Or, a newly made platinum blonde with a former penchant for white or pale pastels might take on an all washed up look in these insipid colors. No rules can be laid down, of course, since makeup can do so much to bridge the difference. But, we repeat, there are best shades and certain contrast between hair and dress color does make the woman more interesting looking.

I saw a startlingly lovely red head the other day in a black dress with pale yellow trim. The red gold of her hair, the eye shadow and the lipstick coloring and the pale yellow in the frock created a lovely color ensemble.

Women are so smart on the whole that one has to be just a little bit smarter than the next one to be outstanding. And this dress color study offers a perfect gold mine of inspiration.

MINUTE MYSTERY
By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

DEATH OF THE ACTRESS.

"What happened?" inquired Prof Fordney.

"Well," replied the excited Richard Harlowe, millionaire husband of the famous actress Diana, "my wife came home from the theater exhausted and after kissing me good night came up to her room. A few minutes later, hearing a scream and a shot, I dropped my book and rushed up here—we were alone in the house.

"I was a bit fagged myself—a tough day on the exchange—and, as paradoxical as it may sound, detective and mystery fiction relaxes me. I was reading Sir Conan Doyle's 'Hound of the Baskervilles.'"

"What time did your wife come home?" was the professor's next question.

"About 11:45."

"How do you know?"

"The clock had just struck the quarter hour as she entered."

Fordney paused a moment. "May I look at that clock?"

"Certainly," was the reply.

The professor pocketed the pearl handled revolver lying near the dead body of Diana stretched out on the bed and the two men descended to the first floor. Before entering the peculiarly furnished library he observed through the opened door a reading lamp standing back of a big red leather chair, the only piece of furniture in the room. He switched on the wall lights and, except for a black hair pin, found nothing on the floor and only cigar ashes in the chair.

"Do you smoke?" he inquired of Harlowe.

"Occasionally. Why?"

Fordney made no reply, but turned to the clock on the mantelpiece. He looked at it closely, then said, "Lying will do you no good."

HOW DID HE KNOW HARLOWE WAS LYING?

[See solution on page 27.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Kate Canfield Is Engaged to Harry Curran

Twin Sister Frances Will Be Debutante.

is to usher, will arrive a week from Wednesday, and the best man, Ward W. Briggs of Wilmington, Del., and the rest of the ushers from out of town, Roger Woolcott Hooker of New York, John W. White Jr. of Orange, N. J., and Lieut. William Searnley Bonell of Galveston, Tex., will come on Thursday, the 14th. The other usher has not far to travel, for he is Loren J. Massey of Winnetka.

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Snite [she was Betty Pierce of Plattsburg, N. Y., and will be one of the bridesmaids] are giving a dinner at their home in Deerfield, and Thursday evening the complete wedding party will be welcomed by three of the bridesmaids, Miss Gwendolyn Guergens, Miss Helen Marie Castle, and Miss Eleanor Page, for cocktails and dinner at the Century club, with a tour of the Fair under expert guidance on the program for the rest of the evening.

The bridal dinner is being given the night before the wedding by the father of the bride, Henry L. Glidden, in his home in Highland Park.

An attractive young woman who will be here to enjoy some of the parties for Miss Glidden is Miss Mimi Porter of Liverpool, England. Miss Porter arrives Friday and will be staying at the Drake with her parents for a week. She and her family, who have been touring Canada for the last month, decided to come to Chicago to see the Fair before going on to New York and back to England.

Many Parties for Miss de Tarnowsky

Quite as many and varied are the parties for another popular young woman, Miss Olga de Tarnowsky, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George de Tarnowsky, who is to exchange her wedding vows with William J. Hudson, son of the H. Newton Hudsons, next Saturday evening in St. Peter's church.

This morning the young couple is returning to town from a festive weekend spent at Lake Beulah, where the De Tarnowskys have long had a summer place. On Saturday evening Miss Helen Gillette and her sister, Marietta, who also spend their summers on Lake Beulah in a cottage next door that of the De Tarnowskys and are to attend Miss de Tarnowsky as bridesmaids, gave a supper dance for her. On Sunday evening she and Mr. Hudson were the reason for another dancing party given by Miss Elsa Kochs, daughter of the August Kochses.

Miss Margaret Jeffery, a cousin of Mr. Hudson, is entertaining at luncheon this noon at the Woman's Athletic club for Miss de Tarnowsky, and on Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lang will have a dinner for her and her future husband at their Winnetka home. Mr. Lang is to be one of Mr. Hudson's ushers. On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Hudson will give a dinner for the entire bridal party at their home in Hawthorne place.

After a wedding trip, the destination of which may be the Pacific coast, Mr. Hudson and his bride are to make their home in Bellevue place.

Onwentsia Goblets to Tennis Winners.

Added inducement to the American and Australian Davis cup stars to play their hardest in the Onwentsia tennis matches Sept. 12 and 13 came yesterday with the announcement that Onwentsia's historic goblets are to be given as trophies.

They are really mint julep cups with an interesting history back of them. And never has one been given in a sporting contest at the Lake Forest club that its winner hasn't accorded it a place among his most prized possessions.

The Onwentsia was one of the first golf clubs in the neighborhood of Chicago and Bland Ballard one of its first and most prominent members. Mr. Ballard came from Louisville and among his family heirlooms was a well worn and much used mint julep cup.

As the game of golf developed he became so enthusiastic about the sport that he offered his goblet as a prize in one of the early tournaments. In the 35 and more years that have elapsed since then the goblet has become one of the club's most cherished traditions, and, while the original is no longer used as a trophy, replicas have been given for many years not only for golf but as tennis prizes.

Heretofore the goblets have been awarded only to the winners of club events, but an exception is being made next week in the case of the Australian-United States Davis cup matches. The governors of the club agree that such an exception is warranted since these matches celebrate a restoration of the international conflicts of which Onwentsia has been the scene in the past.

In the "gold old days" many a championship and Davis cup tie were fought out on its court . . . Brooks and Wilding, the famous Australian team played there and so did McLaughlin and other American stars of a previous tennis generation.

Knollwood Club to Hold Style Show

Invitations worth framing are those that have just been issued for the fashion show and dinner dance Saturday evening at the Knollwood club. Done up in scroll form with a most alluring young woman sketched in black on a white background, they carry the announcement in bold red lettering . . . to match, of course, the young lady's lips and finger tips.

The fashion promenade is to start at 6:30 with the mannequins [all of them professionals] parading around the out of door swimming pool and then across it back into the dressing rooms which will be the shower houses. After this will come dinner and dancing.

Added gayety will be the parties of debutanes and their assistants planning to attend. With no less than six introduction teas on the north shore next Saturday afternoon, several of these attractive young women and their sister debutantes who are to bow later in the season have chosen Knollwood as the place to wind up their day.

Mrs. W. E. Macfarlane is chairman and members of her committee include Mrs. Richard H. Fleming, Mrs. Alfred C. Castle, Mrs. George T. Buckingham, Mrs. Franklin G. Clement, Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland and Mrs. Roscoe Parkinson.

One of the nicest parties of the Labor day week-end in Pittsfield, Mass., was the dinner given last night by Miss Kate S. Buckingham at Bald Head, her summer home, to celebrate the opening of the twenty-fifth annual art exhibition in Stockbridge. Many of the artists exhibiting were Miss Buckingham's guests as well as Miss Marion McAfee of New York, the musician, who has been spending several days at Bald Head.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps and their children, Miss Jane and Miss Betty Brooks, Mason Jr., and Louise Phelps, are expected at home in Lake Forest today. They have been spending the last month at the Biltmore hotel in Santa Barbara.

Lucien Lelong Designs Pajamas of Feminine Cut for Fair Marlene

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—When Marlene Dietrich was in Paris recently she must have thought better of her devotion to mannish clothes. She went to Lucien Lelong and let him make her some pajamas according to his own ideas. Lelong decked out the fair cinema star in as feminine a costume as the most rabid critic could desire. The model is pictured today.

While it may be a source of satisfaction to the lover of trousers to know that this evening frock is divided just like papa's pants, nobody who looks at it could know. The skirt is a skirt, to all appearances, cut in a wide circular movement that hides the division neatly. At the back a panel of chiffon covers the division completely and when Marlene wears it she is ostensibly in skirts.

Lelong has made this frock of black chiffon. It is for evening wear and has the sleeves and high neck which Paris likes for informal warm weather nights. The bodice is plain, with a dropped shoulder yoke from which the cape sleeves hang. They are sewed to a circular cape that is placed across the back of the bodice below the yoke.

A soft sash of bias cut black chiffon is draped close around the neck and tied in a bow with long ends at the left shoulder.

It's the same sordid tale of hatred, death and suffering, pictured in typical blunt, effective soviet style. Cruelly realistic, with flashes of a crude, childish humor and a slim thread of romance woven into its somber pattern, it's undeniably forceful, but slow moving and much too long. Subtitles are in English, and while they add a little to the clarity of the film, are most unsuitably phrased.

Photography is not up to the usual standard, but the acting, as in all Russian films, is extremely natural and sincere.

DAILY STREET REPAIR REPORTS CUT COSTS 16%

Hewitt Hopes to Effect Further Savings.

A decrease of 16 per cent in the average cost of repairing streets was noted yesterday by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, in a report to Mayor Kelly. The cost was reduced within one week after the commissioner had ordered foremen of the asphalt gangs to report daily on the work done by their crews and the total cost.

The comparison was made between the work of the asphalt crews during the two day period, Aug. 24 and 25, and the three day period, Aug. 29, 30 and 31. In the first period the costs ranged from $1.22 per square yard to 33 cents. They were reduced to a range between 91 and 33 cents in the latter period. The figures were compiled on the work of fifteen gangs.

Hopes for Further Savings.

"We are not through yet with our efforts to increase the efficiency of the repair crews," said Commissioner Hewitt. "The lower we can reduce the cost per square yard, the more holes will be repaired for the benefit of the motorists whose vehicle sticker fees finance this work."

Illustrative of the disparity in costs that the commissioner is trying to eliminate are the following figures, which show for each of fifteen gangs the amount of repairs laid and the cost per square yard:

Crew No.	—Aug. 24, 25— Square yards.	Cost.	—Aug. 29, 30, 31— Square yards.	Cost.
1	1,495	$ .45	2,020	$ .46
2	1,120	.68	1,410	.57
3	2,132	.53	2,975	.33
4	1,665	.42	2,428	.40
5	1,311	.53	2,827	.33
6	821	.94	1,156	.79
7	987	.81	1,778	.55
8	674	1.09	1,633	.61
9	1,063	.65	1,379	.66
10	654	1.06	1,420	.68
11	712	1.22	982	.91
12	900	.82	2,006	.47
13	1,324	.57	2,338	.38
14	450	1.19	1,708	.56
15	830	.81	2,274	.41

Cites Variation in Conditions.

"It is recognized," commented Commissioner Hewitt, "that conditions vary on different jobs, that unforeseen difficulties arise and sometimes unavoidable delays must be dealt with, but the difference in cost during the first period is exceedingly difficult to explain. But as between the two periods there has been improvement."

The commissioner has directed the attention of the bureau of streets to the figures he has compiled and propounded two inquiries for answer. They are:

"Why should one foreman spend $676.20 in labor to repair 830 yards while another foreman, by spending only 60 cents more, or $676.80, is able to repair 1,495 yards?"

"Why should one foreman spend $535.40 to repair only 450 yards while another foreman repairs nearly three times that yardage, or 1,311 yards, for a cost of $696.80?"

ARNOLD BABY DIES OF POISON AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Victim of accidental poisoning, Edwin Arnold, 20 months old, son of Julian B. and Mrs. Iris Bruce Arnold, former Chicagoans, was buried here today. Yesterday the child ate a quantity of ant paste, which contained arsenic. He died several hours later.

Little Edwin was the grandson of the late Sir Edwin Arnold, famous English editor and author of the "Light of Asia." He was born in the Englewood hospital, Chicago, in January, 1932. About a year ago the family moved to the west coast to make their home. They had lived in Chicago for 20 years, making their home on the south side.

The death of Edwin was the second major tragedy in the life of his father, Julian Arnold, who is now 72 years old. The first occurred at the turn of the century when Arnold's fortune was lost largely because of the Boer war. Charges of embezzlement resulted against him, but he was exonerated. In 1910 he went to Chicago, using the name of J. B. Lindon. He worked as an author and lecturer, and in 1915, for reasons of family pride, he revealed his true identity as Julian B. Arnold, son of the man who had edited the London Telegraph for 40 years, and who had won world fame for his poem on Buddha.

ORPHAN PETER FAILS TO HOLD HIS PROSPERITY

Boy Is Returned to Omaha Home.

Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Fourteen year old Peter Cristopolus has been returned to Father Flanagan's boys' home in Omaha, and will not be adopted by the Strengs family.

Peter, who came east eight weeks ago on probation to fill the place made vacant by the death of Henry Strengs, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Strengs of Paterson, N. J., just couldn't make the grade.

"Too much publicity," Mr. Strengs declared tonight, "apparently turned the boy's head. We wanted to keep him with us. We sent for him because we saw his picture in a magazine and were struck by his resemblance to our dead boy. But we realized soon after he arrived that he couldn't adapt himself to his new surroundings.

Seems Not to Care.

"Nevertheless, we wanted to give him a chance; we knew that everything was strange for him, and we hoped that, in time, he might change his attitude and learn to show some affection for us.

"There was no improvement, however, and a fortnight ago we notified him that we were going to send him back. He accepted the news with no display of emotion.

"A week ago Saturday I took him to New York and placed him in the care of a trusted employé from my silk dyeing works in Paterson. I instructed the employé to return Peter to the home in Omaha, and put them on a bus. They arrived in Omaha last Tuesday."

Thinks He Is "Big Shot."

Mr. Strengs was reluctant to discuss the situation in further detail. He confessed that his wife and their fourteen year old daughter, Jeanne, shared his disappointment. But from the time the boy first laid eyes on the stories printed about him in the newspapers, Mr. Strengs said, his whole attitude changed. He seemed to feel that he was a "big shot," and made no efforts to disguise his feelings.

All members of the Strengs family, friends declared, had done everything in their power for the boy. Mr. Strengs had planned to send him to high school and college and then take him into his business.

But back to Omaha went the orphan.

Dope Seller Out of Prison 2 Weeks Seized at Fair

Sam Gold, 52 years old, alias Moser, freed from Leavenworth penitentiary two weeks ago after serving 27 months for dope peddling, was arrested yesterday at the World's Fair while carrying narcotics. Gold was seized as he approached Bubbles Haines, a Negro entertainer at the Old Plantation concession, who also recently finished a year's sentence at Leavenworth on dope charges.

Gov. Rolph Improving Despite Trace of Pneumonia

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The presence of a small pneumonic area in the right lung of Gov. James Rolph Jr. was revealed today by four specialists called into consultation at the hospital where the executive is seriously ill. A slight improvement was announced, however. Mr. Rolph's cough was less severe and his temperature had dropped to 101 from 103.

42 CITIES REDUCE SPENDING 20 PCT. BELOW '31 MARK

Bonds and Interest Take Fourth of Total.

Forty-two representative American cities having populations of more than 100,000 reduced their 1933 estimated expenditures an average of 20 per cent below what they spent in 1931, it was shown yesterday by statistics collected by J. L. Jacobs & Co., the efficiency engineering concern of which Assessor Jacobs is titular head.

The statistics were gathered for all ordinary expenditures, omitting the money spent for relief purposes on the ground that it constituted an extraordinary item. Los Angeles, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Buffalo, and Cincinnati were among the larger cities furnishing statistics.

Permanent Projects Drop.

The greatest reductions were of expenditures for permanent improvements, which dropped 62 per cent between 1931 and 1933. Expenditures for general operation and maintenance of the municipal governments dropped 16 per cent. As a result of the wild issue of bonds for public improvements in previous years, and also of the issue of bonds for relief purposes, debt service expense, the payment of interest and maturity obligations on municipal securities, increased 6 per cent during the period.

Following are the consolidated accounts of expenditures of the various cities for the last three years:

	1931.	1932.	1933. [estimated.]
Operation and maintenance—	$316,061,873	$293,518,849	$264,835,978
Bond and interest—	96,012,623	94,207,351	102,205,405
Totals—	$494,276,292	$443,536,953	$398,080,480

"The larger reductions in expenditures for permanent improvements reflect the attitude of taxpayers and certain public officials in the matter of elimination of less essential public projects in order to carry on the essential governmental services in connection with police, fire, health, educational and similar services," says the report.

Pay as You Go Plan Gains.

"The increases in the totals for the payment of principal and interest on bonds is significant in that they indicate the burden that has been placed upon property owners because of the uncontrolled planning and financing of public improvements in the past. During the year 1931 expenditures for bond and interest payments were 19 per cent of the total, while in 1933 the percentage will increase to more than 25 per cent.

"Because of the heavy burden to meet the payment of principal and interest on bonded indebtedness some cities are readjusting their plans to finance such indebtedness and are gradually or completely changing to the pay as you go plan of financing other than self liquidating municipal improvements."

1,200 FINNS FLEE RUSSIAN SOIL AS FAMINE VICTIMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Sept. 4.—The rapid spread of famine conditions in Russia has resulted in the return of more than 1,200 Finns who illegally crossed the frontier seeking work in Leningrad factories.

As highly qualified mechanics the Finnish workers were much sought after by soviet enterprises. The Moscow government erected a special radio station to broadcast the beauties of life under the soviet régime in the Finnish language. The Finnish Red Cross is assisting the refugees to return to their homes. Their emaciated appearance and tales of starvation are regarded as the best antidote of the bolshevik propaganda being spread in Finland.

Among the recent illegal arrivals are two Finnish-Americans. They, together with 2,000 hyphenates, abandoned their rights to American citizenship to go to Russia to organize dairies near Leningrad in 1931. They have petitioned the government to permit them to remain. Their case has been held under advisement.

WOOD WINS AGAIN; RETAINS HARMSWORTH TROPHY

AMERICAN BEATS SCOTT-PAINE BY 22.33 SECONDS

British Pilot Thrills Crowd with Daring.

Marine City, Mich., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Gar Wood kept the bronze Harmsworth plaque, which symbolizes the world's speedboat championship, in America for at least another year when in the closest finish ever seen in the event he defeated Hubert Scott-Paine, British challenger, today in the second race of the 1933 international trophy series.

Wood's margin of victory was 22.33 seconds, but the closeness of the finish did not furnish the thrills of the race as much as did the driving of the British pilot in his tiny metal challenger, Miss Britain III. Frequently during the 35 nautical miles the British craft was pursuing Wood's Miss America X. it seemed in imminent danger of overturning.

Hubert Knows His Boats.

The little challenger at times bounced completely out of the water, but the skillful maneuvering of her pilot always righted her and as he went past the judges' stand on his final lap at an average speed of 87.215 statute miles an hour he waved his hand cheerily to the crowd. Wood's fastest lap was his third, when he attained a top gait of 89.339 statute miles an hour.

The time for the race was: Miss America X., 27:48.92, an average of 86.937; Miss Britain III., 28:11.25 an average of 85.789 statute miles an hour.

Wood's 22 second victory today was closer than when he first won the trophy in Osborne bay in 1920. At that time he won by a margin of 34 seconds over another American entry, Miss Detroit IV.

"We had a wonderful race from our standpoint, the hardest race we ever had for the Harmsworth trophy," Wood said after the finish. "Scott-Paine drove a wonderful race. He had a lot of nerve to press his boat the way he did. He told me he had it wide open.

"No, we never had Miss America wide open. I gave it the gun on the last straightaway for just a moment. The highest we turned over was 2,100 revolutions per minute.

Briton to Try Again.

"All through the race I was driving to win the Harmsworth trophy and keep it in America, not to set any records or endanger Miss America."

Scott-Paine's first remark after the finish of the race was that he intended to come over again and try for the Harmsworth trophy, "if I can make it and bring over a boat that can give Gar Wood a better race."

"Miss Britain performed perfectly all through the race. It took a lot of driving, as you saw. At the turns we were out of the water a large part of the time," he continued.

"On the straightaways Miss Britain was going more than 100 miles an hour, 104 to 105 at times. I was perfectly satisfied with the way she performed. I couldn't ask a better boat or a better engine."

Although the record showed his top speed for the final lap was 87.215, the figures represented the average for seven nautical miles around an ellipse.

More Motors Next Time.

Asked whether he would try again to lift the Harmsworth trophy with a single motored boat similar in size to the Miss Britain III, Scott-Paine replied: "Not with a single motor. I think I'll stick to the single propeller, though."

"The lower turn particularly bothered me," he said. "I couldn't seem to get 'ship mates' with the water flown there. I don't know what caused it. It might have been the change from driving in salt water to fresh water. Also I am more used to driving in water that is not confined."

As he finished his statement one of the feminine spectators asked the racer for a kiss. She got it amid the cheers of the crowd. Summary of final heat:

	Miss Britain.	Miss America.
Time for lap 1	5:54.55	5:37.24
Speed for lap 1	81.845	86.046
Time for lap 2	5:34.55	5:43.38
Speed for lap 2	86.738	84.509
Time for lap 3	5:35.47	5:24.81
Speed for lap 3	86.500	84.584
Time for lap 4	5:33.96	5:43.07
Speed for lap 4	86.891	84.584
Time for lap 5	5:32.72	5:30.42
Speed for lap 5	87.215	87.822
Elapsed time for race	28:11.25	27:48.92
Average speed for race	85.789	86.937

Loser Praises Wood.

Scott-Paine gave high praise to his adversary, calling Wood "a splendid sportsman, the finest in the world," and "one of the greatest racers in the world." There is "no man I would rather race against," he said.

This year's event was the 19th running of the British international trophy race and the ninth contest for Gar Wood. The trophy, a bronze plaque depicting a pair of speedboats in competition, first was contested for in Queenstown harbor in 1908, being won by the Napier I., owned by S. F. Edge, whose boat turned up a speed of 19.36 statute miles an hour.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A colt called Trey from down in the valley of Virginia and the favorite in the betting won the Joliet handicap at the opening of the Lincoln Fields autumn racing season yesterday afternoon.

After galloping along in front all the way—far out in the lead most of the time by two and three lengths—he dashed on past the winning post a length and a half in front of Dan Sabath, an extreme outsider from the stable of Albert Sabath of Chicago. Speedy Skippy, representative of Jack Howard, the plunger from Kentucky, was third.

It was the seventh running of the Joliet, a stake which has become one of the most coveted of the racing each year at Lincoln Fields and which usually has been won by the best of the western 2 year olds. It was witnessed by a record breaking throng of racegoers.

Crowd Numbers 30,000.

There were 30,000—some of the officials said more—in the holiday crowd. It was as large as any crowd that has ever gathered at the Lincoln Fields course and it packed every vantage point both in the grand stand and clubhouse sections. The thousands who promenaded the lawns broiled under the hot Labor day sun, but kept running in and out of the betting booths when each race came along.

Most of the folks had money, because the favorites had won the first three races. When three favorites win in a row most of the money goes back to the players and most of the time it is wagered right back on the later races.

Clubhouse Crowded.

Few heavy plungers were in the big crowd. The two and five dollar windows were jammed, while it wasn't necessary to stand in line long at the

THE WARFARE BETWEEN THE HELENS

The Story of Helen Jacobs, Helen Wills Moody and Their Feud.

(This is the second of a series of three articles. The first, published Monday, told of the early careers of the two famous tennis stars, and the beginning of their feud, one of the strangest in sport.)

BY RUTH REYNOLDS.

NOW Helen Jacobs had none of the Wills' social standing, and nobody knew it better than Helen Wills.

Helen was born in Globe, Ariz., on Aug. 6, 1908, the daughter of Roland Herbert and Eula Hull Jacobs. They were a family of German Jews, though two generations had lived in the United States. At one time Helen's father was a butcher and a follower of other humble trades. Today he is an advertising solicitor for a San Francisco newspaper. Mrs. Jacobs manages an apartment house in Berkeley. Helen finances herself—mostly by writing.

There never was much money in the Jacobs family, but they managed to send their daughter to Girls' High school, Berkeley High, and the Anna Head School for Girls. She started to Stanford, but changed her mind and went to California.

For in those days she tried to do everything her heroine, Helen Wills, was doing! There is no record of her graduation from the U. of C.

Helen Wins Title on Playground.

She first played tennis on the Spring Valley courts, a public playground in San Francisco. After winning the schoolgirl title there she transferred to slightly faster company, Golden Gate park, also a public playground.

In 1923, in her first competitive experience of any note—the Pacific coast singles at the Berkeley Tennis club—she was spotted by Pop Fuller, even as Helen Wills had been.

The little Jacobs girl didn't have money enough to join a private club and be coached by private trainers. But Fuller wanted her to succeed Wills. So he took her under his wing.

Loses First Match with Wills.

Always he kept his little protegée behind his star. He developed her at about the same pace he had developed Wills, and Helen Jacobs built up her Pacific coast reputation chiefly because Wills was far enough ahead to be competing nationally and internationally.

First Jacobs won the Helen Wills trophy for girls under 15. In 1924 she won the Wills cup again, and the following year she was a semi-finalist against Wills in a Pacific coast tournament in the first meeting between the two on a competitive basis. She lost, 6-3, 6-1. In 1924 and 1925 she had won the national girls' singles and by 1926 she held the California state women's singles and the Pacific

SOX LOSE FIRST TO DETROIT, 8-0, AND SECOND, 5-4

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—The White Sox this afternoon were obliged to take a double licking at the hands of the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 0 in the first affair, in which they were very meek on a diet of four singles, and 5 to 4 in the second game, in which they were held hitless for 5 1-3 innings, then busted loose in the seventh, eighth, and ninth innings to miss victory by an eyelash.

In the first game the Chicagoans never had a look in against Sorrell, following the collapse of Sad Sam Jones in the first inning. In the seventh inning of the second game they rushed across three runs and had the bases full when Al Simmons tapped into the third out. The next inning Appling and Kress opened with singles, but the rally ended with one run. In the ninth Lyons and Swanson opened with singles but got no help from subsequent batsmen, though the bases were full when Appling fouled out to end the game.

Simmons' Slump Worse.

Al Simmons made a hit in the third inning of the first game and forthwith retired. In the second game he went out with six mates on base. He fanned in the first inning with Swanson on third; in the fourth inning he popped to Gehringer for the third out; in the sixth he fanned with Swanson and Haas on base; and, as previously recited, he tapped to the pitcher with the bases full and two runs needed to tie in the seventh inning. In the ninth he walked to fill the bases.

The Sox had great difficulty in getting through the first inning of each game, just as they did yesterday and the day before that. In the Sox's last four games the enemy has made a total of 15 runs in the four opening innings, the highest total being five and the lowest two, with a couple of fours to complete the total. The second contest today wasn't actually decided in the first inning, but a couple

HAUSER BREAKS OWN HOME RUN RECORD WITH 65

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Joe Hauser, home run champion of organized baseball, broke his own record today as three drives from his bat whistled over the fences of St. Paul and Minneapolis baseball parks for his 63d, 64th and 65th of the season.

The Minneapolis first baseman, who in 1930 hit 63 homers while with Baltimore, equaled that mark and broke it with two drives over Lexington park's right field fence—365 feet from home plate.

Hauser has hit homers in every Association ball park this season. Forty-four have been hit at his home park in Minneapolis and 21 away. Most of the 44 in Minneapolis have gone over the short right field fence.

Tuffy Griffith's Father Dies of Heart Attack

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 4.—(AP)—James A. Griffith, 57, father of Tuffy Griffith, heavyweight boxer, died at his home today of heart failure. During the early days of his son's fighting career the elder Griffith served as trainer for his boy.

36,000 WATCH BRUINS POUND DEAN, CARLETON

6 Runs in 2d Inning Decide Opener.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs erased the two bright spots in the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching staff yesterday and went merrily on their way to two triumphs before 36,000 Labor day celebrants. First, the formidable Jerome [Dizzy] Dean was salted away, 6 to 4, the Cubs considering this proper compensation for the 17 strikeouts he hung on them recently. Then for good measure, Tex Carleton was handed a 5 to 2 beating. The Cubs still are 8½ games behind the leading Giants, but the double victory served one purpose. It hoisted them back into third place.

Dean's opponent in what was expected to be a dull of consequence was Guy Bush, but the duel lasted only one inning. The Chicagoans ripped off a salvo of murderous hits in the second inning, six runs scored, and Dean was no longer among those actively employed. The Cubs did little after that, but the half dozen proved sufficient. It was enough to nullify a sudden four run outbreak by the Cards in the eighth after they had softened up Bush by almost knocking his right leg from under him with a line drive in the seventh.

Only Four Hits Off Root.

Bush's 16th win of the year was more a matter of luck than skill, but it wasn't that way with Charley Root in the second game. The veteran right hander yielded four hits, but even on this limited allowance he had his troubles. Two of the wallops against him were homers, one by Jimmy Collins and the other by Carleton. Each homer occurred after the Cubs had taken one run leads.

And Root, like Bush, didn't escape without some physical punishment before clinching his 13th victory. A drive by Allen popped out of his glove and thumped against his nose in the ninth, but after shaking off the resulting dizziness, Root closed the battle by fanning Durocher, giving him a total of eight strikeouts.

Three Lead Cub Attack.

In the compiling of the runs needed to make Root's labors successful, Stanley Hack, Babe Herman and Gabby Hartnett were real benefactors. Hack turned in two run producing doubles, each the result of his speed. The Babe's return to life was marked by a pair of two baggers, both involved in run production. But the choicest tap of all was a robust drive with which Hartnett broke a 2 to 2 deadlock in the sixth. Gabby hoisted a homer beyond the left field brick wall with a teammate on base, and in appreciation of this Root surrendered only one hit in the last three innings.

FIRST GAME

Bush wasn't an impressive pitcher in the first inning, but the Cardinals, besides hitting him, gave him the break needed to keep the plate from being dented. Martin opened the game with a single and was forced by Watkins. Frisch looped a single into right, and Watkins took third. Babe Herman displayed no particular hurry about recovering the ball, and Watkins thought the Babe was about to indulge in some of his old Brooklyn baseball. Watkins made a break for the plate, but the Babe awoke in time to make the throw to Hartnett and nail him. Then Medwick singled, but Bush put an end to the uprising by fanning Collins.

The melting down of Dean in the turbulent second began with Stephenson's single over short. Hartnett whacked a long fly into the left field corner and it slipped off Medwick's finger tips for a double, Stephenson stopping at third. Grimm was purposely passed, filling the bases, but the strategy wasn't a success. Jurges spoiled it by singling to left, Stevie and Hartnett scoring. Bush tried to sacrifice, but Collins captured the bunt on the fly. The second out was recorded on Hack's pop foul to Lewis. Then Dean's suffering became acute.

Doubles Finish Dean.

Billy Herman whistled a two-bagger to left, Grimm and Jurges going home. Cuyler picked right field as a good spot for his double. That scored Billy Herman, who had taken third when his hit was relayed wild to the plate by Durocher. Babe Herman singled to send Cuyler home, and Dean then was convinced that it wasn't his day. He strolled out of the game to [illegible] Johnson finish the inning on a soft tap by Stephenson.

Bush developed another fever in the third, and again the Cardinals proved excellent doctors. Martin led off with a hit. Watkins bounced a legitimate single through second, but Martin, in his haste to dash around to third, let the ball flick him on the leg. The umpire called him out. Frisch then walked, but Hack made a snappy pickup on Medwick's grounder and Collins flied to Cuyler.

Another flurry in the sixth came within a few feet of cracking Bush's string of goose eggs. Frisch walked for a starter and Medwick forced him. Medwick pulled up at third on Collins' double, which almost cleared the right field screen. Allen bounced to Hack, and Medwick tore for the plate, but was cut down before reaching his goal. A pass to Slade followed, but Lewis poked into a forceout.

Besides being weakened by Martin's

AUTUMN BRINGS A FOOTBALL THRILL TO CUBS' FANS

Safe at home! Billy Jurges of the Cubs comes sliding into the plate while Catcher William (Buddy) Lewis of the Cardinals tumbles over him in an effort to retrieve the ball, which may be seen at left of the tangled players. The action occurred in the second inning of the first game yesterday at Wrigley field. Jurges had singled and dashed for home when Billy Herman smashed a double to left. Two more hits followed to bring the Cubs' total runs for the inning to six and cause the exit of Dizzy Dean, the Cards' strikeout king. The Cubs won, 6 to 4. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

A POPULAR SPORT, THIS PICKING WINNERS—30,000 TRY IT

Trey, an Audley Farm colt, dashes across the finish line a length and a half ahead of Dan Sabath, 66-1 shot, in Joliet handicap at Lincoln Fields yesterday. Speedy Skippy was third.

Trey, with Jockey A. Richard aboard, steps into the winner's circle after Joliet handicap. He was favorite and paid $6.04.

BELMONT PARK'S FEATURE EVENT TO MICROPHONE

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Before a disappointingly small crowd the fall meeting at Belmont Park began today with the Sage stable's Microphone the winner of the featured Highweight handicap. Only three went to the post.

Only 5,000 braved rainy weather to watch the races, which were run over a sloppy track. At the end of the six furlongs down the Widener chute, Microphone was a length and a half before Mrs. John Hertz's Fairbypair, well known as a nonmudder.

Blind Bowboy Is Third.

This western colt was able to get the place by a nose over George H. Bostwick's Blind Bowboy.

Microphone and Blind Bowboy were the joint choices at 13 to 10 each. Fairbypair was neglected at 5 to 1, but when it came to the running, Fairbypair was the only one to give Microphone any kind of a contest. He forced the pace for the first couple of furlongs and then was clearly the second best horse.

Microphone dashed along with Rider Silvio Coucci saving his strength for the development of a possible menace from Blind Bowboy. This was never forthcoming, Blind Bowboy being devoid of his usual early speed and unable to come on at the end to overtake such a game colt as Microphone.

Owner Collects $1,845.

The value to the winner was $1,845 and the Sage stable color bearer's time was 1:11.

Microphone's impost of 110 pounds was the lowest for any winner since the inaugural running in 1914, when Comely, a 2 year old, carried that weight.

PIRATES DEFEAT REDS, 1-0; RAIN HALTS 2D GAME

Face Giants Today in 1st of 5 Contests.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's Pirates moved up to within seven and a half games of the New York Giants today as they prepared for a five game series opening here with the league leaders tomorrow by taking a single game from the Cincinnati Reds, 1 to 0.

The second game of what would have been a double header was postponed because of rain.

INDIANS WIN PAIR

Cleveland, O., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Oral Hildebrand and Clint Brown kept the St. Louis Browns' hits well scattered to allow only two runs in 19 innings today and the Cleveland Indians won a double-header, 3 to 2, in 10 innings and 2 to 0.

The games ran the Indians' consecutive victories to six and gave them a firm grip on third place.

Joe Vosmik, Indian left fielder whose hitting has played a large part in Cleveland's recent winning streak, was taken from the first game in the sixth inning because of a fractured right hand which will keep him out of the lineup for the remainder of the season. He was struck on the hand by a ball pitched by Wells. A batted ball later hit Wells and forced his retirement from the game. Score: of extra base hits threw Lyons into a three inning panic that overshadowed the nice pitching he did later on.

SOX LOSE FIRST TO DETROIT, 8-0, AND SECOND, 5-4

The Chicagoans came here with a chance to go into a won and lost tie with the Tigers for fifth place. Instead, they finished so well sunk in sixth place that they scarcely can hope to dig themselves out within the next couple of weeks. And one thing became a mathematical certainty after they lost the first game today: The Sox will not win the American league pennant this year ever if all the teams ahead of them lose all their remaining games and the Sox go undefeated the rest of the way.

The double victory today gave the Tigers a 12 to 10 edge in the season series.

FIRST GAME

In their Saturday game the Sox held their foes to five runs in the first inning and Sunday they held the enemy to four runs in the first inning. Their hope in the first game today was to hold the Tigers to three runs in the first inning but alas, they were disappointed, for the Tigers made four runs as a starter and had the bases full when Rogell fouled out to retire the side.

Rogell, on his first time at bat in the opening inning, flied to Simmons and Fox was thrown out by Dykes. Then started the enterprise of pinning back Sam Jones' ears. Gehringer singled to left and went to third on Walker's single to center. Walker went to second on a wild pitch. Then Greenberg knocked a homer far over the left field screen, scoring Gehringer and Walker ahead of him. Kress drew his first error when he let Stone's easy grounder evade him. Owen walked and then Hayworth singled to left, Stone scoring and Owen stopping at third.

Exit Mr. Jones.

At this point it was decided that Jones wasn't effective. Kimsey went in and walked Sorrell on four pitches, filling the bases. Rogell, up the second time, obliged by fouling to Grube.

The Sox defense was just as good in the second inning as it was in the first, for it halted the Tigers after four runs had been scored. With one down Gehringer reached first because Kress dropped Appling's throw. Then followed a double by Walker, a single by Greenberg, a double by Stone, and a single by Owen, the net of which was four runs. The Tigers then were stopped because Hayworth popped to Hayes and Sorrell forced Owen.

SECOND GAME

Like Jones, Lyons got the first two men out in the first inning before the Tigers started leveling. Lyons walked Gehringer, third man to face him. Then Walker doubled to the left field wall, scoring Gehringer. Greenberg, who knocked a homer in the first inning of the first game, was held to a triple on this occasion, Walker scoring. Stone flied to Simmons.

Lyons didn't hold the strength of the Tiger batting order so well when he faced the power boys again in the third inning. He walked Fox, Gehringer doubled to left, Fox scoring. Walker singled to center, Gehringer stopping at third. Walker stole second. Greenberg flied to Simmons, Gehringer scoring, after which Walker stole third. Stone walked. Owen flied to Swanson. Walker coming home after the catch. Pasek also flied to Swanson.

Sox Get Going.

Haas made the first hit off Auker with one down in the sixth, but it accomplished nothing. In the seventh, however, the Tigers' young right hander weakened after two were out and enabled the Sox to cross the plate for the first time during the afternoon.

With Appling and Kress down in the seventh Rhyne beat out an infield single and stopped at second on Berry's single to right. Lyons also singled to right, Rhyne scoring and Berry third. Swanson walked, filling the bases, and Haas singled, scoring Berry and Lyons. Dykes walked, again filling the bases. Simmons, who previously had fanned twice and popped to Gehringer once, seemed due for at least a single, which would have tied the score. Instead Al tapped to Auker, who tossed to Pasek to force Swanson at the plate.

Catch Up with Auker.

The Sox drove Auker to cover in the eighth. Appling opened with a single to center and went to third on Kress' smack to the same place. Marberry then was rushed on the scene, Rhyne flied to Fox and Appling scored. Kress was out trying to steal second and Marberry threw out Berry.

The Warfare of the Helens

Here are the two versions of that sorority snubbing. Neither girl will talk about it: [1] That when the secret sorority balloting was held one black ball was dropped, thus keeping Helen Jacobs out; and [2] that Kappa Kappa Gamma voted unanimously for the admission of Helen Jacobs, but that the freshman, already keenly aware of the superlatives of her rival, wouldn't join because Helen Wills was a member.

At any rate something happened. It's been happening ever since until the climax of the warfare of the Helens came ten days ago when Helen Wills Moody defaulted her national match to heartbroken Helen Jacobs without a murmur of sympathy at the way things turned out or congratulation for her rival.

For years neither girl has spoken voluntarily to the other. They have posed for pictures together grudgingly. They've exchanged only perfunctory remarks when necessary. When they're on shipboard together—and that's seldom—or in the clubhouse they avoid each other. Their feud crops out at every tournament in which they appear together, although both girls are velvet gloved and gracious.

When the two girls are in Berkeley at the same time they seldom meet. Miss Jacobs does not travel in Mrs. Moody's circles. And the Jacobs and Moody families are not visiting acquaintances.

Wills Refuses to O. K. Rival to Society.

The second decisive cut came when Helen Jacobs came east in 1927, was twice defeated by the girl she wanted most to beat, and won national attention for herself. She had met Helen Wills once before, in a 1925 junior match, and had lost to her, 6-3 and 6-1.

Like Miss Wills, Helen Jacobs was accompanied east by her mother.

Mrs. Jacobs is a good-hearted, kindly, motherly soul. She loves her daughter and she loves to talk about Helen's tennis prowess. Volubly she resents any slight—real or imaginary—to her only child.

Tennis society looked to Helen Wills at first for her okay of her fellow townsgirl and player. Helen Jacobs. But when Helen Wills failed to rush forward to greet Helen Jacobs the ultra set took it as a tipoff that the Jacobses, socially, were not quite up to the Willses, socially.

They learned later—more by deed than word—that Helen Wills definitely disliked Mrs. Jacobs, presumably for the way in which she "stage mothered" La Jacobs. Helen Jacobs herself—after she won fourth place in national ranking, third place in world ranking, and became a member of the Wightman cup team—was nicely enough received here and there, but not with the completeness that was accorded Helen Wills.

Miss Jacobs Wins—Except Against Miss Wills.

But if Little Helen couldn't hold her own in the Wills' social world, she certainly could hold her own in the tennis world with every one but Helen Wills. The next five or six years presented a battle royal with Wills always the grim victor, Jacobs always the smiling vanquished.

For these two have met on the tennic courts at least eleven times in the last eight years and eleven times—even the last time—Little Helen was forced to grin-grin-grin to hold back the tears. But if the times she's lost to Helen Wills were heartbreaking, the times she failed in her opportunities to face the champion were even more disappointing.

In '29, '30 and '31 Helen Wills was named first ranking player in the country. Helen Jacobs was second. She simply couldn't quite catch up—unless Helen Wills Moody permitted her to.

In September, 1928, the champion, explaining that she expected to retire at thirty, suggested Miss Jacobs as her successor, saying, "She's very good and I think she'll be champion some day." But last winter in conversation with Paul Harding, pro at the St. Moritz Tennis club, Mrs. Moody exclaimed, "O, Alice Marble is much the better player of the two [speaking of Marble and Jacobs], but I can always beat her because I have too much tournament experience."

In August, 1928, Miss Wills protested indignantly when Mrs. Lillian Scharman Hester of Oyster Bay, L. I., defaulted in the national singles at Forest Hills, permitting Miss Jacobs to step into the quarter-finals. However, when Miss Wills learned that Mrs. Hester had defaulted because her little daughter was operated upon the day she was to play her match, she graciously and apologetically withdrew her protest. And in the finals she crushed her townswoman, 6-2, 6-1.

Eventually the tennis crowd came to know Helen Jacobs better and better, found her free, outspoken, friendly and unassuming—except when Helen Wills drew near . . . Then Miss Jacobs froze up as though a chilly blight had descended.

drive, which cracked him squarely on the right shin in the seventh. Bush also had to contend with infield pebbles when his shutout hopes fell apart in the eighth. Frisch singled to center. Just as Jurges was about to grab Medwick's grounder it took an unexpected hop over his head. Collins popped out, but Allen singled to right to score Frisch. Slade's poke bounced over Hack's head and Medwick scored. Allen counted on a single by Lewis. Crawford, batting for Walker, grounded to Grimm, but Slade scored on the play. Hack ended it by throwing out Martin.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs started properly by scoring one on Carleton in the first inning. Hack lined safely to left and Medwick played the ball badly, so Hack stretched it into a double. Billy Herman fanned, but Cuyler notched a single to right, scoring Hack. Then Babe Herman bounced into a double play. That slim lead lasted until Collins sailed his homer just inside the right field flag pole with one out in the second.

The Cubs picked up another run in the fourth mainly because Babe Herman had a big moment. Carleton started the inning by handing a pass to Cuyler. The Babe slashed a two-base drive past Collins to put Cuyler on third. The base runners didn't move on Stephenson's roller to Collins. Hartnett bounced to Frisch, who made the play at first, Cuyler scoring and the Babe moving to third. His travels halted there when Grimm grounded to Frisch.

Carleton, Gabby Get Homers.

Cuyler was disposed of on a grounder to Martin before the Cubs peddled some good news among the populace in the sixth. Babe Herman came up with his second double, this one a line drive to center. Stephenson was out on a grounder to Durocher. Then Hartnett stepped into Carleton's first pitch and it vanished behind the left field wall. That made the score 4 to 2.

Hack broke out again in the seventh and comforted Root with another run. The young speedster lined to right and didn't quit running until he had reached second. Two were out at the time. Billy Herman singled to center, Hack scoring.

MRS. GEORGE M. REYNOLDS DIES IN PASADENA

With Banker Had Sought Renewed Health in West.

Pasadena, Cal., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Elizabeth Hay Reynolds, wife of George M. Reynolds, former chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company of Chicago, died tonight in the Huntington hotel, where she and her husband had made their home for several months.

Mrs. Reynolds, who was 68 years old, suffered a stroke of paralysis last December and only partially recovered. There was a second stroke on Saturday and since then Mrs. Reynolds had been unconscious.

With her when she died were Mr. Reynolds and their son, Earle H. Reynolds.

NATIVE OF PANORA, IA.

Mrs. George M. Reynolds was born in Michigan, but was a resident of Panora, Ia., at the time of her marriage in 1884. The couple resided in Iowa and Nebraska until Mr. Reynolds came here in 1897 to become cashier of the Continental National bank of Chicago. He was later president of this institution and either president or chairman of the board of its successors as banking mergers were accomplished.

Shortly after Mrs. Reynolds became ill last December her husband tendered his resignation as chairman of the Continental Illinois bank, giving her ill health as one of the reasons.

"I feel that I should like the remaining years of my life to be free from business demands so that Mrs. Reynolds and I might do some of the things that we have long wanted to do," he said. "She has accommodated herself to my schedule so long that turnabout seems fair play."

Leave Chicago in January.

The resignation took effect Jan. 7, last and the Reynolds left soon afterward for California. Recently Mr. Reynolds conveyed title of the family home at 1444 Lake Shore drive to the Continental Illinois National bank.

Mrs. Reynolds was active for many years in philanthropic work and in women's clubs. For each of the last twenty-five years she had spent several months in California. Her son, Earle H. Reynolds, also resides at present in that state. Mrs. Earle Reynolds is at present visiting in Lake Forest.

FANNIE PRESTIGE, STAGE FAVORITE OF '70'S, IS DEAD

Fannie Prestige, a favorite on the stage of the 1870s, died yesterday of infirmities at the home of Mrs. Bertha C. Peck, 3240 Fulton boulevard, where she had lived for the last three years. She was more than 80 years old.

Mrs. Prestige's earliest and most spectacular appearance was in "The Black Crook," one of the oldest musical comedies. In it she played the part of Garline the soubrette. The play had a run of a year and a half and later Mrs. Prestige played an entire summer at the old McVicker's theater in Chicago.

She retired from the stage about the time of the old World's Fair. Mrs. Peck said that so far as she knew Mrs. Prestige had no surviving relatives.

CAPT. A. F. BROWN, 55, COAST GUARD VETERAN, IS DEAD

Capt. Albert F. Brown, who directed the rescue of hundreds of persons in the 15 years he had charge of the South Chicago coast guard station, died yesterday afternoon, a few hours after he was taken to the Marine hospital. He had been ill about a year and was 55 years old.

Capt. Brown was born at Ludington, Mich., and was taken to the Cana lighthouse off the Washington shore when his father assumed charge there. For several years he was a sailor on great lakes schooners until 1901, when he entered the coast guard service at Sturgeon Bay, Wis. He became No. 1 surfman here and in 1919 was placed in charge of the South Chicago station.

Capt. Brown aided in the rescue of all of the 14 men aboard a stone barge which foundered off Sturgeon Bay, and directed the saving of 7 men when the sand sucker Desmond sank near Chicago with the loss of 13 lives about 15 years ago.

Surviving Capt. Brown are his widow, Lorenza, four sons, and four daughters. Funeral plans are to be announced later.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Interest on savings deposits has been limited to 3 per cent per annum by a ruling just promulgated by the federal reserve board in Washington, it was disclosed yesterday at the annual convention of the American Bankers' association in the Stevens hotel.

This regulation applies to all national banks and to state banks which are members of the federal reserve system. The ruling becomes effective Oct. 31. An announcement of the board's decision is expected to be made in Washington shortly.

The board's action was disclosed yesterday by O. Howard Wolfe, cashier of the Philadelphia National bank of Philadelphia, who made an address on "Interest Rates on Time Deposits."

Authority to regulate interest rates on time deposits was conferred on the reserve board by the banking act of 1933. This act also contained a provision entirely barring interest rates on time deposits, which provision went into effect in June.

Makes Other Restrictions.

The reserve board's ruling also provides that when a certificate of deposit falls due or when a note matures interest must automatically cease. It defines the difference between savings accounts and other types of time deposits and gives some vague hints about preventing breaches of the ruling by subterfuge. Means of enforcing the regulations are left partly to the banks themselves.

In his address Mr. Wolfe pointed out that stricter governmental control of banks was the result of the inability of the banks to remedy their shortcomings by enlightened bank management and self-inflicted reforms.

"All of us can agree," he said, "that it would have been better had we been able to solve the question of interest on deposits by the method of enlightened bank management. The reasons why that has not seemed to be possible need not necessarily be taken as a matter of discredit to our intelligence or good sense. It is rather the result of conditions over which none of us has any control. I will mention a few.

Blames Dual Banking System.

"One is the dual banking system, which gives us two competing sets of banks—too often, I am afraid, competing to see which of the two can do more in the way of improvident banking that the other.

"The other is the free banking law, which permits a great many bankers or people to go into the banking business without any previous training, which always makes it difficult for banks in the same neighborhood to compete with each other on the same grounds.

"Then, finally, there is what we have come to call the department store banking system, by which we have commercial deposits and savings deposits and trust funds all being invested, relatively speaking, in the same funds."

Interest rates, Mr. Wolfe said, have been the chief cause of bad banking.

"First," he continued, "there has been the competition on interest rates and the payment of interest that bears no relation whatsoever to the return

Jesse Jones Gives Lessons on Credit (?)

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, who during the last few weeks has been seeking to force credit expansion by inducing the banks of the nation to liberalize their lending policies, has more than one way of keeping the bankers in line, according to cloakroom gossip at headquarters of the American Bankers' association convention in the Stevens hotel

In a little social gathering between sessions of the convention, says one of the bankers who participated, some of the boys suggested a game of backgammon. Mr. Jones, he says, contributed. That done, somebody else suggested a game of pitch, and Mr. Jones again contributed, according to the story. Then Mr. Jones tossed up the idea of a few hands of poker. "We discovered," says the participant, "that as poker players we were good backgammon players." The narrator discreetly declined to say whether the game was just for fun.

Registration at the bankers' convention yesterday totaled more than 2,000 and is expected to reach 3,000 today.

Most delegates to the bankers' convention yesterday dropped their conferences for an hour yesterday afternoon and glued their ears to loud speakers to hear what Gen. Hugh S. Johnson had to say in his address at the Hall of Science. With their own permanent code in process of formation, the bankers were eager to listen to the general's remarks. Special receiving sets were hastily installed in cloakrooms and at the various group headquarters.

Gov. Eugene R. Black of the federal reserve board, who will address the bankers today, was a much sought after guest yesterday. Under the banking act of 1933 the governor of the reserve board has greatly increased powers over member banks. "He's a regular fellow, you should know him," said one leading banker. "A level headed administrator," said another. The bankers seem to like their new boss, principally because of his forthright manner and his keen insight into banking matters.

* *

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, who was scheduled to speak tomorrow at the bankers' convention on "The Necessity of a Sound Banking System Outside the Guaranty Act," will not be able to make his address, according to an announcement yesterday. His paper, however, will be read by another.

Francis Marion Law, president of the First National Bank of Houston, Tex., is slated to be elected president of the American Bankers' association tomorrow to succeed Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company, New York. Rudolf S. Hecht, chairman of the board of the Hibernia National bank, New Orleans, is expected to move up from second vice president to first vice president, and, according to current dope, Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National bank, Washington, D. C., will be named second vice president, a post which automatically would make him president two years hence.

Ronald Ransom, chairman of the bank management commission of the American Bankers' association and vice president of the Fulton National bank, Atlanta, Ga., is the head of a committee charged with formulating a national NRA code for banks to replace the temporary code now in effect. The proposed code will be presented to the association on Thursday to be voted on. The only Chicagoan on the committee is Abner J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

BANKERS RAP GUARANTEE OF DEPOSITS FUND

Pass Resolution for 'Remedial Steps.'

The guaranty of bank deposits provided for in the banking act of 1933 was condemned yesterday by Charles F. Zimmerman, president of the First National bank of Huntington, Pa., and leader of the anti-branch banking group, in an address before the American Bankers' association.

Following the Zimmerman attack the association's national bank division passed a guarded resolution, which pointed out that the guaranty feature was a "radical departure from customary procedure" and suggested "remedial steps."

"Instinctively I recoil from every such suggestion," Mr. Zimmerman said in his discussion of the guaranty provision. "Good bank management ought never to be penalized directly for the errors of loose bank management. The validity of this statement stands approved, whether the two types of banks to which guaranty of deposits is intended to apply be between banks generally situated in different sections of the country or within a city block in the same community.

Condemn Risky Banking.

"Recent disclosures prove that the most dangerous element in the whole field of banking is a frame of mind that will permit a bank or banker to take chances in promotional finance, believing that means will somehow be found to cover up the bank's losses in case the plans miss fire.

"Guaranty of bank deposits, in any guise whatever, would directly promote the spirit of daring and adventure, instead of the spirit of caution and wisdom and individual accountability in our banking processes.

"Our reliance should be placed only on strict adherence to sound banking laws and sound banking practices, upon patience and a recognition of the common duty resting upon the individual bank and the public alike."

Resolution Urges Remedy.

The resolution passed by the national bank division of the association yesterday follows:

"Whereas, the banking law of 1933 in its reference to the insurance of deposits is a radical departure from customary procedure in American banking; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the national bank division of the American Bankers' association requests the administrative committee of the American Bankers' association to give proper consideration to this matter with the idea of taking such remedial steps as in its judgment seem fitting and proper."

TREASURY ISSUES NEW RULES FOR EXPORT OF GOLD

Coin Shipments Must Be Licensed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—The third series of regulations covering the presidential proclamations of Aug. 28 and 29, dealing with hoarded gold and gold exports, was issued today by the treasury department. They supplanted regulations in force in connection with earlier executive orders.

Regulations relating to the export of the newly mined gold so that producers may obtain the world market prices will be released soon, the department said.

The new regulations covered, first, the procedure for granting licenses for gold earmarked or held in trust before April 20, 1933, for a recognized foreign government, foreign central bank or the Bank for International Settlements, which the secretary of the treasury, under the executive order, may license for exportation.

Regulates Ore Exports.

In connection with the gold in metals containing not more than five troy ounces per short ton, if the mint is satisfied as to the accuracy of the data shown and that the exportation is made in the course of the applicant's regular business of supplying the metals other than the gold contained therein, a license may be issued to export the metal.

In the event that an application for license to export fabricated gold states that the shipment is made by mail, the copy of the export license shall be sent to the postmaster at the place designated in the application.

All licenses to export gold coin or bullion shall expire 15 days after the date of issue and no person, unless otherwise authorized to hold the gold coin and gold bullion described in the license to export, may hold it in the United States after the expiration of the license to export.

Check Up on Exports.

Every collector of customs and postmaster may make an investigation to determine whether any gold coin, bullion or gold certificate presented to him for export is held in violation of the executive order and he may detain the gold during such investigation.

The procedure where gold is imported for smelting or refining, under an agreement to export the gold bullion, is dealt with at length.

STOCK PRICES, BASED ON GOLD, UNDER YEAR AGO

Average 7.23 Points Below 1932 High.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—The level of prices on the New York Stock exchange, viewed from the standpoint of a European investor, has thus far failed to attain the highest point reached in September, last year, but has hovered 3 to 8 points below that level since the end of May, excepting for a period of several weeks following the July break, which reduced stock prices to the levels prevailing in March and April, this year.

This conclusion is reached by adjusting THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average for 50 stocks to a gold value based upon the corresponding quotations of the French franc on the local exchange market. This calculation would have to be performed by an foreign purchaser of American securities, and is therefore a real and not a fanciful measure of price on this market.

Averages Based on Gold.

Whereas the average for 50 stocks reached a high of 72.38 in September,

Chicago and North Western Railway Company

To Holders of Fremont, Elkhorn and Missouri Valley Railroad Company 6% Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, due October 1, 1933:

Holders of a large majority of the Bonds above mentioned have assented to the Refinancing Plan offered June 15, 1933, providing for payment of 50% of the face amount of the Bonds, with accrued interest, in cash, and delivery in respect of the remaining 50% of a like amount of 5% General Mortgage Bonds of 1987 of the Company due November 1, 1987. The Plan provides the only available means of taking care of the Bonds at maturity, and in order to obtain the funds with which to pay the one-half in cash, application has been made to Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a loan of the necessary sum.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has recently approved the application, subject to the condition that the loan be made only upon presentation of evidence satisfactory to Reconstruction Finance Corporation that holders of substantially all the Bonds to be refinanced shall have assented to the Plan. The amount of Bonds assented to date is inadequate to meet this condition. THEREFORE, YOUR OWN INTEREST, AS WELL AS THAT OF THE COMPANY, WARRANTS IT IN ASKING YOUR EARLIEST CONSIDERATION OF THE PLAN AND YOUR PROMPT ASSENT THERETO.

In view of the fact that many holders who wish to assent have been unable to present their Bonds within the time first set, the Railway Company will continue up to the close of business September 15, 1933, to pay in cash upon presentation of Bonds for stamping, 10% of the face amount thereof. Bonds should be presented for stamping to:

111 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, N. Y.

Stamped Bonds will be returned promptly to owners.

NO FURTHER EXTENSION OF TIME WITHIN WHICH BONDHOLDERS MAY RECEIVE AN ADVANCE CASH PAYMENT WILL BE MADE.

Holders of small amounts who do not wish to avail themselves of the advance cash payment are requested to promptly forward their written assent to the Company, 111 Broadway, New York, N. Y. In assenting by letter, the amount of Bonds (and their numbers, if convenient) should be stated.

Copies of the letter giving full details of the offer to which reference is above made will be furnished upon request.

Holding its Unchanging Character

. . . to the interest of people who have come to depend upon this institution

FOR many years firms and families have been bringing here their affairs of money and estate. They expect this institution to hold to the things for which it has always stood. It seems to The Northern Trust Company that this is a direct obligation.

So with the changing years The Northern Trust Company expands its services and keeps modern its methods. But it does not change its concept of banking, its full acceptance of the trust obligation.

It remains, as always, ready to do everything it can to co-operate with firms and individuals who bank here.

It exercises in the management of its trust estates, every care and conserving action that a trustee can undertake.

To its savings depositors as to customers in every department, it continues to offer service based upon the strength of conservative banking.

This old institution invites other families of large or of moderate means to bring here their problems of estate. It invites the commercial banking business of additional conservative firms, as well as the personal checking accounts of conservative men and women. It welcomes all people who want to save.

last year, when the dollar was approximately at parity and still on a gold basis, the highest levels reached this year, adjusted to gold values, were 69.71 at the end of May, 69.00 at the end of June, 67.27 immediately prior to the July break, and 65.15 at the end of August.

Thus it has been possible for European buyers to acquire American securities at average prices consistently below the September, 1932, prices for a period of twelve months. The summer rally of 1932 accompanied a moderate recovery in trade and a substantial recovery in commodity prices. The advance from July to September was brief and sharp, extending over nine weeks.

Recovery Is Prolonged.

The recovery in stock prices was longer and less precipitate this year, starting in March and ending in July, the total period of advance embracing eighteen weeks. But so far as gold values are concerned, the end of May marked the climax of the 1933 gains, which were not nearly as abrupt as those of late summer in 1932, on a gold basis. The March, 1933, level was considerably higher than that of July, 1932, and the May, 1933, high was 2.67 points under the September, 1932, high, measured in gold.

Always from the standpoint of a European observer, therefore, American stocks have advanced less in response to business improvement thus far in 1933 than they did last summer.

The volume of trading during the 1933 advance was three times that of the 1932 bull market, although extending over only twice as long a period: from July 8 to Sept. 8, 1932, sales on the stock exchange totaled 124,500,000 shares; from March 3 to July 18, 1933 [the exchange was closed until March 16], sales totaled 371,600,000 shares.

Commodities Lower in Gold.

Commodity prices valued in gold have declined further this year, in contrast to the advance last summer, so that there is actually a different picture of American conditions viewed from foreign points than there was last year.

The following table shows the monthly high and low marks for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average for 50 stocks, the highs and lows of the French franc and the gold value of the dollar on the corresponding dates, and the equivalent gold value of the stock average:

	Ave. price for 50 stks.	Franc value in cts.	Dlr. value in gold.	Ave. price on gold basis.
March 16	59.93	3.95½	99.06	59.37
April 4	50.19	3.93	99.70	50.04
April 29	68.63	4.54	86.29	59.22
May 2	67.90	4.58	85.54	58.08
May 29	84.42	4.74½	82.57	69.71
June 16	78.46	4.68	83.71	65.68
June 28	90.43	5.13½	76.30	69.00
July 18	98.05	5.71	68.61	67.27
July 21	76.52	5.38½	72.75	55.67
Aug. 29	93.79	5.64	69.46	65.15

The July break, measured in gold, is shown to have amounted to 11.60 points in the above tabulation, a decline of 17 per cent, whereas the actual average price showed a decline of 21.53 points, or 22 per cent.

When the dollar hit its low mark of the year on July 19, when it was worth 68.40 cents in gold, the corresponding day's highest stock average was 97.24, and the gold value of stocks, therefore, was 66.50 at that time. This shows again that each decline of the dollar and each advance in stocks tend to nullify each other.

BURLINGTON BUYS DIESEL ELECTRIC SWITCH ENGINES

The first of three high speed Diesel electric switching engines of revolutionary design will be put into service by the Burlington by Sept. 15, according to an announcement by Edward Flynn, operating vice president. The road has purchased three such engines in line with its policy of securing economies in operation.

Possessing a speed of fifty miles an hour, it is stated that the engines will cost 38 per cent less to fuel than steam operation and that cost of maintenance will be approximately 45 per cent lower.

The engines, which will be of light weight, will have a number of unique features, including a fuel injection system which preheats the fuel before it passes into the combustion chamber. Each locomotive will have two Diesel engines of the six cylinder type mounted on a chassis with a cupola type cab, assuring visibility from any angle.

National Life Insurance.

Investors' Guide: Please give me a report on National Life Insurance company of Montpelier, Vt.—A. M.

Answer—National Life Insurance company of Montpelier, Vt., was started as a stock company in 1848. The capital stock was retired in 1879, and the company has since been operated on a mutual basis.

Excess of income over disbursements in 1932 was $3,566,000, compared with $6,753,000 in 1931. The decrease was due largely to increased surrender values demanded and reduced income because of reduced amount of insurance in force.

The company finished 1932 with insurance in force of $579,601,000, a 5.54 per cent drop from the year before. This is in line with the experience of most other companies.

Net life reserves at the close of 1932 totaled $114,346,000. Other liabilities, including a $1,000,000 reserve set up for contingencies, amounted to $26,283,000. There was no borrowed money.

Admitted assets totaled $148,156,000. They were well diversified. Government, state and municipal bonds constituted 14.9 per cent of assets; public utility bonds and equipment bonds [none in default], 8.3 per cent; city mortgages, 19.5 per cent; farm mortgages, 21.2 per cent; policy liens, 24.9 per cent; real estate, 6.9 per cent; preferred stocks, 2.7 per cent, and cash, 1.5 per cent.

The company earned a return of 4.1 per cent on its assets in 1932, 4.6 per cent in 1931, 4.9 per cent in 1930, and 4.8 per cent in 1929. Ratio of actual to expected mortality in 1932 was 60.5 per cent, against 60.9 per cent in 1931, 59.1 per cent in 1930, and 51 per cent in 1929.

Wells Fargo & Co.

Investors' Guide: I would like to know something about Wells Fargo.—Miss H. M.

Answer—Wells Fargo & Co. has been out of business since June 30, 1918. At that time it turned over all equipment and property used in the United States to American Railway Express company in exchange for $10,467,000 of that company's stock. This was in line with the request made at the time by Director General of Railroads McAdoo.

Nearly all of the stock was distributed to stockholders in 1924 and 1925.

There are now outstanding 239,674 shares of $1 par stock. Total liabilities amount to $20,000. Assets on April 29, 1933, consisted of $31,000 property and equipment [unimproved lots in San Francisco and office furniture in New York], $3,000 stocks, $8,237 bonds, $66,000 cash, and $24,000 notes.

LONDON STOCKS FIRM BUT QUIET ON U. S. HOLIDAY

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Oil shares showed early improvement owing to the American off-code limitations in a quiet session of the stock exchange today. However, prices of these shares receded towards the close. International issues were generally quiet because of the American holiday, but an upward tendency was registered, especially in steel, nickel and radio issues. The market closed quiet.

Paris Market Irregular.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—(AP)—With the Wall street market closed, trading on the bourse was uncertain, with prices tending towards irregularity. Profit taking caused losses in some sections. International issues were weak, while rentes improved slightly. The closing was sluggish.

Berlin Market Weak.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Trading on the bourse was dull, the few sales made resulting in a general decline. The market closed listless and weaker.

Cites Secret Agreements.

"Second, time accounts have been treated as demand deposits. You all know how true that has been. A secret agreement with a customer to pay him his time account whenever he needed the money.

"Third, allowing customers to put into savings deposits what are really demand deposits, or at best, convenience deposits, as against keeping in savings accounts only simon pure thrift accounts."

Inasmuch as most of the large city banks now pay not in excess of 3 per cent on savings deposits, the new ruling will affect principally banks in smaller cities and rural districts.

BATTLE IS OPENED ON MANAGEMENT OF HUPP MOTORS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—A letter criticizing policies of the management of the Hupp Motor Car corporation, and asking proxies for the annual meeting of the company, to be held Sept. 13, has been sent to stockholders by Frederick W. Burnside Jr.

Mr. Burnside said he had been designated by several "very large" stockholders to represent them at the meeting, at which three directors are to be elected.

"My contact with the Hupp Motor Car corporation," Mr. Burnside's letter said, "came about through my engagement by the chairman of the executive committee to develop methods to increase Hupmobile sales. In a few months, with a small staff, I sold in the New York metropolitan area, which has sixty distributor and dealer organizations.

"In this capacity I was in a position to learn many things that have to do with the Hupp motor car management which, were they known to the rank and file of stockholders, would, I am convinced, cause the gravest concern."

OKLAHOMA WILL CUT OIL OUTPUT UNDER NEW CODE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Oklahoma today became the first oil producing state to accept allocations for production as suggested by Secretary Ickes of the interior department and the NRA code planning and coördinating committee.

Chairman Paul Walker of the state corporation commission informed Secretary Ickes that the Oklahoma oil allowable output would be fixed at 540,000 barrels daily, effective Sept. 8. This is a reduction of 61,569 barrels daily under the allowable for September.

Price of Oil Raised.

Ponca City, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The Continental Oil company today announced an increase of 10 cents a barrel in the price of crude oil. The new scale will range from 58 to 82 cents a barrel in Oklahoma and Kansas. A top price of 72 cents was posted for north Texas.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 5.—Evidence of the increasing popularity of single premium life insurance policies was cited here today by Arthur F. He reported that total payments to his company on this type of policy during the first six months of 1933 were 42.8 per cent ahead of the corresponding period of 1932.

U. S. WILL CREATE MARKET FOR NEW HOME LOAN BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—Formal launching of a market for bonds of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, created under the home owners loan act of 1933, is expected to be made shortly, following the issuance by the corporation of the prospectus outlining officially the status of the new securities. Pursuant of Wall street's custom to establish preoffering markets for new securities, a few sales of these bonds were put through last week on the New York Real Estate Securities Exchange, Inc., at prices several points under par.

At the close of the week the exchange indicated that trading on a "when issued" basis had been suspended in deference to the wishes of the corporation, which made the point that until the prospectus was issued traders could hardly be expected to know exactly what sort of an instrument they were dealing in.

Pay 4 Per Cent Interest.

Inasmuch as the act stipulates that the bonds shall not carry a higher interest rate than 4 per cent and run for not longer than eighteen years, the "when issued" bonds were arbitrarily designated as 4s, due 1951.

The problem of establishing an adequate market for these new securities is an important one and it is believed that every effort will be made to organize it on as firm a basis as possible. Under the act the issuance of a maximum of $2,000,000,000 of bonds is provided for. The corporation's capital of $200,000,000 has been subscribed by the United States government.

The bonds will be guaranteed by the government as to interest, but not as to principal, and will be exempt from all taxes except surtaxes, estate, inheritance, and gift taxes. The federal home loan bank board will constitute the board of directors of the corporation.

Follows Earlier System.

Thus, the corporation will supplant the federal home loan bank system which was created in 1932 to serve as a reserve system for financial institutions making 10 to 15 year loans on homes. The bonds issued by the banks of the federal home loan system, however, are not guaranteed either as to interest or principal by the government.

The vital problem of establishing a market for the corporation's bonds will be aided materially by the fact that under the Thomas amendment of the agricultural adjustment act of 1933 the President is empowered to direct the secretary of the treasury to enter into agreements with the federal reserve whereby the latter can purchase the bonds of corporations in which the United States government is the principal stockholder.

Treasury Can Accept Bonds.

The United States treasury can accept the bonds at par as security for the deposit of public moneys, and the Reconstruction Finance corporation has indicated that it will accept the bonds as security on loans at 80 per cent of par value.

The position of the corporation's bonds is strengthened in the market by the fact that the corporation is empowered to accept these bonds at par in payment of debts. The corporation is also authorized to retire and cancel its bonds as fast as its resources permit.

HOLLAND QUITS AGREEMENT FOR TRUCE ON TARIFF

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Sept 4.—(AP)—The Dutch government today renounced the temporary tariff truce set up at the world economic conference in London.

Foreign Minister Jonkheer de Graeff, in a letter to Ramsay MacDonald as president of the conference, said the Dutch government regretted that conference efforts to date have in no wise resulted in stabilization of monetary relations or diminution of restrictions to international trade.

Therefore, the letter adds, the government considers itself entitled to complete liberty of action and renounces the truce effective one month after the date of the letter.

WHEAT PRICES GAIN 2 CENTS AT LIVERPOOL

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Operations on the corn exchange were somewhat restricted today by the holiday in America, but a rise of 1 penny to 1⅛ in graded wheat futures resulted from reports of continued dry weather in the Argentine grain belts. [At the current rate of exchange 1 penny is equivalent to 1.9 cents and 1⅛ to 2.1 cents.] Part of this improvement was lost later and the market closed ⅞ [1.7 cents] to 1 penny higher than Saturday.

The price range of wheat futures follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
October	.73½	.72⅝	.73¼
December	.75¼	.74¾	.75⅛

NORTH GERMAN LLOYD RENEWS LEASE FOR DOCK

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special]—The North German Lloyd, whose speed queens, the Bremen and Europa, have been the pride of the Brooklyn waterfront, have made arrangements to dock there another three years, beginning next January.

Negotiations between the steamship company and the United States government were necessary to cut through the leasing situation at the army base at the foot of 58th street, Bay Bridge.

The new lease means that the efforts of the Max Thaten interests to lure the Lloyd across the harbor to the Hoboken piers, recently leased from the government, have failed.

The new yearly rental of pier 4 at the army base will be $144,000. This compares to $247,000 a year during the years 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, and 1932.

MISSOURI LIFE REINSURANCE UP TO COURT SOON

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 4.—(AP)—R. Emmett O'Malley, state superintendent of insurance, said today he expected the reinsurance contract of the American General Life Insurance company, proposing to take over the business of the Missouri State Life Insurance company, would be presented to the Circuit court within a few days. The General American Life company was organized by New York financiers to bid for the Missouri State business.

O'Malley answered criticism by J. Dan Talbot, state auditor of Kentucky, concerning the amount of impairment of Missouri Life assets, estimated in the report of Missouri examiners at about $27,000,000. In a telegram O'Malley asked Talbot to wire to the St. Louis Circuit court specific objections to the valuations fixed by examiners. Talbot had complained some properties were valued too low.

The American General contract, O'Malley said, calls for a possible recovery to Missouri State stockholders at the end of 15 years. The new company would agree at that time to purchase the remaining business of Missouri State at $7.50 for each $1,000 of insurance in force. Proceeds, if any, after making full provisions for all policyholders' contracts, would be distributed to the stockholders.
